CLAIM VICTORY FOR WILSON

DEMOCRATS REGAIN HOUSE

SOCIALIST VOTE HERE LIGHT

Democratic Representatives were elected yesterday in all four Congressional districts of the city where special elections were held to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of previous members of Congress. Every district showed a Democratic sweep, the returns far exceeding the most sanguine expectations of the Democratic leaders.

The election of four Democrats gives their party a lead of three in the House and wipes out the Republican plurality of one, caused by the six vacancies, the other two of which are still to be filled. Two Republican members are in the army, and by courtesy the Democrats have not attempted to have them removed. In return courtesy the Republicans have made no move to seek control of the House. The Democrats, moreover, now have a lead of five, as long as the two Republicans stay in the army.

The result of yesterday's election was watched with keen interest by National Democratic leaders, because of the indication it might furnish as to the trend of the voters at the country-wide Fall elections. Local Democratic leaders said last night that the result in the four New York City districts showed conclusively that the people are standing back of President Wilson and his war policies. They predicted that the November elections throughout the country would also furnish sweeping Democratic victories. The new members of Congress elected yesterday were:

In the Twenty-first District Jerome F. Donovan, the Democratic candidate, had a plurality of 2,102 over John A. Bolles, Republican. In the Twenty-second, Anthony J. Griffin, Democrat, had a plurality of 3,937 over Arthur F. Dieckman, Socialist, who ran ahead of Richard Furlong, the Republican candidate. In the Seventh District, the plurality of John J. Delaney, Democrat, over John S. Gaynor, Republican, was 3,166. In the Eighth District, William E. Cleary, Democrat, had a plurality of 4,744 over Wilmot L. Moorehouse, Republican. The vote by Congressional districts was as follows:

The Republicans made spirited contests in every district, but their showing fell far below their expectations. The biggest surprise was in the Twenty-first Congressional District, where the Republicans were confident of winning, because of the recent gerrymandering of the district in the interest of the Republican Party. The Democrats were not at all sure of carrying the district, but their candidate won out by a plurality of 2,102 votes. In the Twenty-second Congressional District, which takes in a part of the upper east side of Manhattan and part of the lower section of the Bronx, the Socialist vote exceeded that of the

BIG WAR POWERS GIVEN TO BARUCH

WILSON OUTLINES SCOPE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—President Wilson announced today the reorganization of the War Industries Board under the chairmanship of Bernard N. Baruch, of New York, who was a member of the board, and who now assumes the chairmanship vacated by the resignation of Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

Although Mr. Willard has stepped out of the chairmanship of the War Industries Board, he will continue his identification with the war work of the Government, as he was today re-elected chairman of the Advisory Commission of the Council of National Defense. It was announced at the same time that Judge Robert S. Lovett, who has done what is regarded by the President as admirable work as the Priorities member of the War Industries Board, has consented to take charge of the railroad improvement work, which the Director General of Railways has desired to be put upon the most effective footing possible.

The reorganization of the War Industries Board under the chairmanship of Mr. Baruch is outlined in a letter written by the President under yesterday's date to Mr. Baruch, which was given out at the White House today. This letter outlines the functions of the board under its reoganization.

Final determination of all questions of priority in deliveries to any department of the United States Government and to the Allies is vested in the board, and it is charged with co-ordinating and anticipating the needs of any of these, creating or improving facilities for production and advising as to prices. Much of the power is given to the chairman, with the board acting in an advisory capacity, and he, the President says, should "act as the general eye of all supply department in the field of industry."

Through the board it is proposed to eliminate all competition for supplies between the various departments and the Allies, thus meeting in a measure at least, the demand in Congress for centralization of power. There were suggestions that the action now announced was one of the steps contemplated by the President when he sent to the Senate the bill now pending to enlarge his powers for reorganizing and co-ordinating Government agencies, and that the delay in bringing the measure to a vote caused him to proceed without waiting for legislation. If the bill is passed it will be possible to make more specific some of the authority now given the Industries Board.

Text of President's Letter.

The President's letter to Mr. Baruch reads:

I am writing to ask if you will not accept appointment as Chairman of the War Industries Board, and I am going to take the liberty at the same time of outlining the functions, the constitution, and action of the board as I think they should now be established.

The functions of the board should be:

1. The creation of new facilities and the disclosing, if necessary the opening up, of new or additional sources of supply.

2. The conversion of existing facilities where necessary to new uses.

3. The studious conservation of resources and facilities by scientific, commercial, and industrial economies.

4. Advice to the several purchasing agencies of the Government with regard to the prices to be paid.

5. The determination, wherever necessary, of priorities of production and of delivery and of the proportions of any given article to be made immediately accessible to the several purchasing agencies when the supply of that article is insufficient, either temporarily or permanently.

6. The making of purchases for the Allies.

The board should be constituted as at present, and should retain, so far

CARPENTERS MAY RENEW SHIP STRIKE

Hutcheson, Their Chief, Is Defiant and Insists Upon What Amounts to Closed Shop.

WILL APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, through the agency of its President, William L. Hutcheson, took the definite stand today that it could not and would not become a party to the agreement with the Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board, despite the fact that President Wilson on Feb. 17, in a telegram to Mr. Hutcheson, requested that such action be taken.

In that telegram President Wilson after refusing to see Mr. Hutcheson personally and consider a request for special privileges for the carpenters, who then sought the closed shop, ended his message with the words: "Will you co-operate or will you obstruct?"

The decision was made tonight by Mr. Hutcheson, in face of the opposition of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and representatives of other trades engaged in shipbuilding, after an all-day conference with signers of the original labor adjustment agreement. Hutcheson's demand for a revision of the agreement was denied, and he summed up the situation in this manner:

"Our next move will be an appeal to the President of the United States. If he does nothing, then we are through, and it is up to the Government to straighten matters out and keep the men in line."

"Does that mean a strike?" he was asked.

"How can I know?" Hutcheson replied. "They struck last time and only returned to work in response to the President's appeal in the belief that the matter would be adjusted to their satisfaction. Our appeal to the President will be made at once."

The situation today was precipitated by the attitude of Mr. Hutcheson and his followers during the strike of the carpenters early in the month at shipyards in the New York and Baltimore districts, called because the closed shop was not granted to the carpenters as a special privilege which all other branches of organized labor had foregone in the effort to get behind the nation's war program and speed up ship construction.

Other Unions in Line.

Organized labor, as represented by Mr. Gompers, has stood firm in its determination to recognize the Labor Adjustment Board agreement, and it was stated today that there was no chance of a change of attitude now. What the outcome would be, as a result of Hutcheson's continued refusal to meet the wishes of President Wilson, the officials of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and Mr. Gompers, was an open question tonight.

At the conference today at which an effort was made to come to an agreement with Mr. Hutcheson which would avert the danger of further strikes, the Government was represented by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Charles A. Piez, General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation. Mr. Gompers presided, and at the conclusion of the conference made this statement:

"We had a conference all day until now, at which Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Piez, representatives of the International Metals Trade Union, and the representatives of the Carpenters' Brotherhood participated. The Brotherhood of Carpenters has presented memoranda for a proposed change in the agreement which is in existence between the Navy Department, the Shipping Board, and the Metals Trade Union.

"Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Piez thought the proposition was unworkable. The representatives of the metals trade believed it impracticable, and even if adopted would prove cumbersome. The carpenters desired to have a representative sit on the Wage Adjustment Board when matters concerning carpenters or woodworkers were under discussion. The officers of the metals trade declared that if such a condition prevailed, when each of the metals trade craft had a matter up, they likewise would want

Next Draft Movement Probable in April, Dependent on Early Amendment of Act

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Announcement of the date of the next draft is imminent. The Provost Marshal General's office has prepared "an important announcement" which is believed to deal with the time and method of summoning the second levy. The best opinion is that the first of the men will move to camp in April.

Publication of the announcement is held up for action by Congress on pending amendments to the Selective Service act. The most important of the proposed changes, in the opinion of Provost Marshal General Crowder, is that which will give him authority to base State quotas on the total number of men in Class A-1.

Preparations have been made for summoning the remaining negroes certified under the first draft. Between 70,000 and 80,000 of these were called, but only half of these have been sent to the training camps. The inadvisability of centralizing these troops in Southern camps and the fact that the army medical authorities do not believe it safe to transfer them to colder Northern camps during the Winter are given as the principal reasons for the delay.

The joint resolution, already passed by the Senate, providing for a change in the selective draft law so as to base the quota of each State on the number of men in Class A-1, instead of on the population, was favorably reported to the House today by the Military Committee, and will be acted upon promptly.

OUR TROOPS CHECK NEW LORRAINE RAID

HEAVY SHELLING MONDAY

German Barrage Followed by 2,000 Projectiles—Our Gunners Retaliate on the Foe.

PARIS, March 5.—A German attack last night on the trenches held by American forces in Lorraine was repulsed, the French official statement issued today announced.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 4, (Associated Press.)—Shells have been falling thick and fast within the American lines and upon the enemy's position on the Toul sector today. Aside from a big barrage which the enemy placed on the American positions at daylight in this neighborhood, 2,000 projectiles have been dropped in the vicinity of the terrain occupied by the Americans, many of them upon towns. The American casualties, however, have been extremely light.

Sunday night the Americans continued to shell the enemy and put down two barrages on his positions.

The infantry activity was confined solely to patrol parties. The Americans searched No Man's Land in the snow for bodies of enemies killed in the raiding. None was found, but the body of one American was discovered in the American wire in front of a listening post. The man had on his gas mask. A bullet has passed through his head. Only two cartridges remained in his rifle, which was found under his body, and there were other indications that he died fighting.

NAMES OF AMERICANS CLEMENCEAU HONORED

Six Who Were Decorated Sunday Likely to Receive New American Medals for Bravery.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, March 4, (Associated Press.)—It is now permissible to give the names of the officers and men decorated yesterday by Premier Clemenceau. They are:

Lieutenant JOSEPH CANBY of Brooklyn.
Lieutenant WILLIAM COLEMAN of Charleston, S. C.
Sergeant PATRICK WALSH, formerly of Chicago, Ill.
Sergeant WILLIAM NORTON, Arkansas.
Private "BUDDY" PITTMAN of Brooklyn.
Private ALVIN SMILEY of St. Louis.

Two artillery officers, Captain Holtzendorff, whose home is in Georgia, and Lieutenant Green, will receive the French War Cross. They were wounded by shell fire.

Lieutenants Canby and Coleman went out into No Man's Land in daylight and each took a German prisoner.

Sergeant Norton killed a German Lieutenant and two soldiers. He was challenged by the Lieutenant to leave his dugout and led out his men fighting.

The first Americans to win the new American medals for bravery in action will probably be men who took part in Friday's successful fight with the Germans on the Lorraine front. Among them undoubtedly will be some, if not all, of the men who were decorated yesterday by Premier Clemenceau.

The fighting records of the soldiers are being compiled, and on these records recommendations will be made by the General commanding the division. The data are being gathered carefully so as to make certain that none will be honored specially for simply doing his duty.

All the members of the expeditionary force are waiting to see who among them will be the first to get the new war medal.

A German machine gun in perfect condition may be sent to Washington as the first American war trophy. It was among the mass of material dropped hastily by the Germans when they retired from their ineffectual at-

SUBMARINES' TOLL STEADILY DECLINES

GERMANS PAYING HEAVILY

First Lord of Admiralty Declares U-Boats Are Being Sunk as Fast as They Are Built.

LONDON, March 5.—Sir Eric Geddes, First Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the House of Commons today that the shipping losses due to submarines were steadily decreasing and that the loss to the world's tonnage during February was little more than half the loss during February last year. The curve of losses continued downward, he said.

Submarines were being destroyed in increasing numbers, he declared, and, as the methods employed against them were developed, the numbers would be enlarged still further. There was a growing reluctance on the part of German crews to put to sea, he asserted. The chances that a submarine would return from a voyage in the waters around England were put at one in four or one in five.

"For some months," said he, "we believe that we and the Americans have been sinking submarines as fast as they are built."

The First Lord asserted that the rate of exaggeration in the German reports of tonnage alleged to have been sunk was increasing steadily. The exaggeration in the second quarter of the period of unrestricted submarine warfare was twice that of the first quarter. The rates in the third and fourth quarters were three and four times that of the first quarters, and in January four and one-half times the first quarter.

As a matter of fact, he said, the loss for the five months ended with February was 10 per cent. less than the loss during the corresponding months of the year previous, although during four months of the latter period unrestricted submarine war had not been proclaimed by the enemy.

He also said the naval forces of the Allies in European waters soon would be augmented by a force of Brazilian warships.

"I have stated," the First Lord continued, "that the curve of losses of merchant shipping continues downward. That statement is as true today as when previously made. It is true there have been bad weeks and bad months. February was, in comparison with recent standards, a bad month. But, on the other hand, January was a good one.

"As to the curve of the loss in the world's tonnage, only two months of the current quarter have elapsed, but assuming the March loss to be as high as that of February, I find that the falling curve continues.

Drop in Shipbuilding.

Regarding the rate of ship production, Sir Eric said that instead of a rise there had been a serious drop.

"Why?" he asked. "The main fact is that owing to labor unrest and strike difficulties the men in the yards are not working as if the life of the country depended on their exertions. The employers are perhaps not doing all they could. The long strain of the war must have an effect upon their nerves as upon every one's else. The serious unrest which existed in January will have an effect on completions in later months. I am driven to the conclusion that even at this late date the situation is not fully realized.

"I believe the individual piece worker on ships works as hard now as he did last year, when he is actually at work, but he seems readier to take holidays, and we cannot afford holidays. If improvement is not speedily made, the point where production balances losses will be postponed to a dangerous extent.

"Our allies are making every effort to increase their production of ships, but despite glowing reports in the American press and great as the effort of that country doubtless is, there is no doubt that a considerable time must elapse before the desired output is obtained."

Many Attacks at Night.

The First Lord said he was seriously concerned at the increasing number of vessels lost at night. It appeared, he said, that the Germans were assisted in this matter by negligence on the part of ship owners who displayed lights instead of darkening their vessels.

In the waters around the British Isles, which had been the chief field for submarine operations, the greatest successes against the U-boats had been obtained so far, latterly with the help of American naval forces, he said. On the other hand, conditions in the Medi-

WILSON WON'T ASSENT TO INTERVENTION BY JAPANESE FORCES IN SIBERIA; NOTE SAID TO HAVE BEEN SENT TO TOKIO

China's Cabinet Decides to Send 20,000 Soldiers to Siberia Simultaneously with Japan's Expedition

PEKING, March 5.—A Cabinet meeting today considered the question of sending troops to Siberia, and decided to dispatch an army of 20,000 Manchuli simultaneously with the Japanese expedition. The necessary ammunition will be furnished by Japan.

The Military Governor of Chinese Turkestan reports that Russians and Germans are fraternizing with Mohammedan natives, with the view of creating disturbances.

It is feared that the Japanese expedition will lead to many diplomatic problems.

CZERNIN DEMANDS PART OF RUMANIA

AIMS AT DANUBE CONTROL

Nation Is Notified That It Will Be Crushed if It Refuses Terms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Definite information reaching the State Department today through thoroughly reliable channels clarified the Rumanian situation to the extent of showing that the Jassy Government has before it the alternative of making humiliating surrenders of territory to the Central Powers or being wiped out as an independent nation.

The story has been circulated that Rumania asked the Central Powers to open peace negotiations. This story is contradicted in the information reaching the State Department. On the contrary, the Central Powers, speaking through Count Czernin, the Austrian Foreign Minister, approached Rumania with the statement that it was still possible for peace to be concluded with guarantees to Rumania that her national existence and dynasty would be continued, provided she would submit to the demands of the Central Powers.

The more essential demands were reported at the State Department today. One of these is that Rumania surrender her Black Sea littoral, which embraces the Dobruja coast, and another would require the rectification of the boundary between Austria-Hungary and Rumania. This would involve the surrender of Rumanian territory to Austria-Hungary for "strategic reasons."

The terms submitted to Rumania are thought significant in view of statements made by German statesmen recently that they were conducting a defensive war and not seeking annexation.

Bulgaria has been seeking to obtain the cession to herself of the Dobrudja, and it is believed to be the plan of the Central Powers to take this part of the Rumanian coast and turn it over to the nominal control of Bulgaria, which would give the Central Powers control over the mouth of the Danube.

At the other end of the Black Sea lies Batoum, the western terminus of the Trans-Caucasian Railway, which runs through Tiflis to Baku, and the oil fields on the Caspian Sea. From Baku is another important Asian railway, the Trans-Caspian, which runs from Krasnovodsk, through Bami, Merv, Bokhara and Samarkand to Taskkend and Ferghana. From Merv is a railway running down to Herat, Afghanistan, which was long known as the "Key to India." In the new terms imposed upon Russia, that country is required by the Central Powers to give up the region through which the Trans-Caucasian Railway runs.

Thus, with the Batoum-Baku region passing from Russia to Turkey and the Dobrudja passing from Rumania to Bulgaria, the Central Powers would control a new route to India, Persia and the provinces in Central Asia, regardless of whether they controlled the Bagdad Railway route.

The Rumanians of Transylvania have protested against what they call their abandonment by the Rumanian Government, according to an official dispatch today from France. A telegram to King Ferdinand from the Rumanian delegation in Paris says that the Transylvanians hailed Rumania as their liberator upon her advent into the war, and begged the King not to abandon 4,000,000 Transylvania Rumanians to the fury of Austria-Hungary.

URGES JAPAN TO SEND ARMY TO BALKANS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, March 5.—"A decisive victory by the Entente can secure the position of Japan in the East better than any partial or local success in Siberia," writes Senator Maggiorino Ferraris in the Messaggero. "It is with a victory in Europe that Japan will be able to obtain advantages in the East."

He argues that, as the war is to be decided in Europe, it would be to the advantage of Japan to send at once a contingent of troops to the Balkans as being the weakest point in the armor of the Central Empires.

PEACE TREATY MAY BE REJECTED

GERMANS STILL ADVANCE

LONDON, March 5.—Regardless of the fact that cessation of hostilities has been announced officially by Berlin, the invaders of Russia continue their advance toward the capital, and a growing feeling of hostility to them and against the treaty of peace is spreading in Russia, which appears likely to find decisive expression at the Congress of All-Russian Councils at Moscow on March 12.

Indeed, a Berlin dispatch received in Amsterdam today forecasts the early resignation of Premier Lenine, and of Trotzky, the Bolshevist Foreign Minister, owing to their increasing unpopularity.

It is reported by English correspondents in Petrograd that a section of the Bolsheviki is inclined to join the Left Social-Revolutionaires, the war spirit of which, according to the Daily Mail's Petrograd correspondent, predominates and constitutes a formidable opposition to the peace party. This war party advises that the Petrograd governmental institutions be removed into the interior of Russia, from where they can continue the fight against the Germans. It is suggested that the Congress of the Councils will be made the pretext for evacuating Petrograd, under the excuse that it is necessary for the governmental departments to attend the Congress.

Opposition to the Germans is said to be greater in the Moscow and provincial councils than in Petrograd.

Reuter's Petrograd correspondent, telegraphing Monday, says:

"It seems improbable that the peace treaty will be ratified by the Congress of Soviets at Moscow March 12. The delay of a fortnight granted by the Germans for ratification constitutes an opportune respite for the Soviets, which probably will be utilized in the organization of a red army and the development of means of defense.

"By a decision reached at an extraordinary meeting of the Council of Commissaries—which was published before the signing of the peace treaty—the evacuation of Petrograd is contemplated, together with a systematic destruction of all stores of provisions and war materials which cannot be removed."

A Petrograd dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, dated Monday evening, says that a German airplane appeared over Petrograd at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and dropped bombs. Airplanes also were seen flying over Nevsky Prospect, and the belief prevailed that the enemy was aiming at Nicholas station. Sunday night Zeppelins were observed at Gatchina, thirty-five miles from Petrograd, flying toward the capital, but they were driven off by the anti-aircraft batteries.

Narva, about eighty miles west-southwest of Petrograd, has been captured by the Germans, and the enemy is reported to be continuing his advance toward the capital.

Other advices say that owing to the refusal of the delegates of the Central Powers to treat with the representatives of the new Ukrainian Rada on the ground that the Central Powers already had acknowledged the old Rada the new Rada delegates have returned home from Pskov and issued a proclamation to the people asking them to resist the enemy and destroy all munitions supplies.

"Operations of the Austro-Hungarian forces for restoring order and security in the Ukraine," says an official statement issued by the Austrian War Office today, "are taking their course."

AMSTERDAM, March 5.—Replying to a message from the Premier of the Ukrainian Republic, announcing the entry of the Rada's troops into Kiev and expressing thanks for the assistance of the Germans, the German Chancellor, Count von Hertling, said:

"The German troops are still in your

CONTRARY TO OUR WAR AIMS

MIGHT ANTAGONIZE RUSSIA

Fear Expressed That Occupation Would Result to the Advantage of Germany.

LIKE OUR STAND IN MEXICO

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The United States Government has not assented to Japanese armed occupation of Siberia nor will it do so. No doubt exists in Washington that Japan intends to land troops on Russian soil, but this Government, it is now known, feels that it would be inconsistent with its own prior position to permit the occupation to take place without making clear to all concerned that it adheres to the principles heretofore enunciated by President Wilson with respect to America's war aims. Those principles, as applied by this Government, are not in accord with the presence of uninvited foreign forces within Russia's possessions under the conditions of necessity that Japan advances as reasons for her venture further into the continent of Asia.

To what extent the Government will make known its attitude as outlined above remains to be seen. After a regular meeting of the Cabinet today the understanding prevailed that a communication had been sent to the Japanese Government, but whether directly to Tokio or through the medium of Great Britain, which first approached the United States on the subject, is not disclosed. It may be taken for granted, however, that in any note outlining the position of the United States with respect to Japan's indication of a desire to place troops at Vladivostok and elsewhere in Siberia, this Government will adhere to the principle that such a course would be contrary to its war aims.

President's Consistent Policy.

The position of the United States in this matter is in accord with the doctrine laid down by President Wilson on several occasions, not merely with respect to the war in Europe, but the dealings of nations generally with one another. It is felt by the Administration that it could not consistently sanction, even by the rule that silence means consent, the occupation of Russian territory by Japanese armed forces where the purpose could not be construed as intended to assist in winning the war against Germany. This Government, through the President, has declared that it sought no material advantage in entering the war. It has eliminated from its war aims any purpose of annexation or indemnities. It has made known that its chief desire was to eliminate militarism, with its attendant evils, and has asserted frequently the rights of peoples to determine their own destiny.

President Wilson's declared attitude toward Mexico and perturbed Latin-American countries was that while this Government would send troops into foreign territory to defend its honor and safeguard the lives of Americans and other foreigners, it would not use its land and naval forces to protect investments and other material interests which were threatened by political disturbances.

The present position of the Government concerning the Japanese desire to place troops in Siberia is understood to be practically the same. Japan, in occupying Siberian territory with her troops, it is contended, would be doing so, for one thing, in order to protect the material interests that are represented in the vast stores of Russian supplies purchased with money furnished by Japan to Russia when the two Governments were co-belligerents. There would be no occasion, according to the construction of this Government, to have troops in Siberia to safeguard the lives of Japanese subjects. No objection to having Japanese troops undertake that purpose would be offered by the United States, but it is held that Japanese subjects in Eastern Siberia are not in danger, and furthermore are not in such numbers as to require the military measures which Japan contemplates.

In these circumstances the Administration feels, it is understood, that if Japanese troops enter Siberia the impression will be created among the Russian people that Japan's purpose has to do with material advantage, even ultimate retention of Russian territory.

Contrary to Aims of Allies.

It will be maintained, according to the dominant official view here, that Japan is going contrary to the war aims of her allies, and will make the Tokio Government liable to the accusation by the Russians that it is following a course likely to be construed as analogous to Germany's invasion of Belgium. It is not intended to convey the impression that the United States Government indorses such an accusation, but merely that Russia, with German encouragement and taunting, will be certain to interpret the Japanese occupation in that way and bring forward the charge that Japan has shown the inconsistency of the assurances of the allied nations.

This Government is understood to hold the view that there is unrest among the peoples of belligerent countries due to the desire for greater freedom, and that this desire should be encouraged in every way. It is hopeful that this unrest will manifest itself potently in Germany and Austria-Hungary. A corollary of this view, according to the contention, is that liberals in enemy countries would have pressure brought to bear on them to be convinced that allied acquiescence in Japan's occupation of Russian territory marked a departure from the democratic professions of the Allies concerning self-determination and no indemnities.

The Government, it is advanced, has sought to impress upon the Russian people in particular that it sympathizes with their democratic ideals and freedom from foreign restraint upon their demand for self-determination. It has also sought to make clear that the war aims of the Allies had no selfish material object and that every effort would be made to assist helpless nations in attaining the fulfillment of their nationalistic aspirations. The fear is expressed that Russia will regard the occupation of her territory by Japanese troops as contrary to this doctrine and may turn her sympathies away from the Allies and toward the German invaders.

The circumstances that led the Government to take issue with the Japanese desire to place troops in Siberia are not known. Heretofore, since the Japanese feelers became known, the understanding prevailed, even in circles close to the Administration, that the United States preferred to take no direct part in the exchanges between the Allied Powers over Japan's suggestion. The Government, it was understood, was all the more able to maintain that attitude because it had been approached through the medium of inquiries from Great Britain, and not directly from Tokio.

It was the belief of some of those concerned that the matter might be adjusted without bringing the United States into it formally except, perhaps, to the extent of being asked by Japan after the exchanges between the other Allies had been concluded whether this Government had any objection to the occupation of part of Siberia by Japanese armed forces. The expectation existed in certain official circles that this Government would respond briefly that it did not object.

Developments today suggest that the Japanese Government approached the United States directly, but no information to that effect was obtainable. At any rate, the President and his advisers decided that a positive dissenting declaration was necessary to meet the situation and place this Government in a consistent light throughout the world.

While the course of the Administration will be approved by many Senators and Representatives, it is apparent that it is not in accord with the views of a considerable number of others, who feel that Japan is justified in sending armed forces into that portion of Siberia adjacent to the sphere of her interest.

Information was obtained today that if Japan decides to act two columns probably will move into Siberia and meet at Chita. Japan already has concentrated military forces in Korea and Manchuria, which are prepared to advance whenever the order is given. It was inferred that something definite was known here of the Japanese plans, but the outline of movements may be based more on what is obvious in a military way than on inside advices.

BRITAIN'S TRUST PLACED IN WILSON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—The eyes of all the world are turned to Washington. It has been recognized here that the problem in regard to Japan, now before President Wilson, is in some respects the most difficult which the war has yet produced and that issues of universal and enduring interest depend upon America's decision.

It is a mere bald statement of fact to say that the enlightened public opinion of Great Britain is in this grave crisis well content to leave the solution in President Wilson's hands. His moral ascendency has never been so well established.

The curtain which hangs over the diplomatic consultations has hardly been lifted for the public eye, and so far as press comment is concerned there never was perhaps a crisis of which so little was heard in the forum of public opinion.

The British official attitude is established within certain definite lines, drawn from the starting point of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The criticism of that instrument, which found expression in some political quarters in England when it was arranged, is now necessarily ruled out of court, for Japan has not only proved herself a faithful and useful ally, but from a British point of view treaties are more than "scraps of paper."

To think that the possible developments in the Far East are not viewed with some misgivings would be to assume that the British democracy had abdicated the right to think for itself, but the arguments that are being employed to remove those doubts are undoubtedly exercising some effect. Foremost among them is the plea, first advanced from Tokio, that Japan must be trusted. This has due weight. The arguments for intervention, based on practical and strategical grounds, can hardly be said to carry entire conviction, though they are strongly exposed in various organs of such different line as The Daily News and The Daily Mail. A new interpretation of General Foch's idea, as outlined in his NEW YORK TIMES interview, is one that assumes his belief in a long, protracted war, with America and Japan, the latter possibly aided by China, mobilizing great armies to resist the Teutonic advance eastward.

The rapid advance by Germany across European Russia into Siberia which has been forecast by some writers here, with the Teutonic acquisition of the Trans-Siberian Railroad and war stores at Harbin and Vladivistok and the eventual appearance of German U-boats in the Pacific, is derided as a bogy in other quarters, where it is held that General Foch's strategic vision embraces not so much present possibilities as the developments of the distant future.

Similarly the stories of hundreds of thousands of German and Austrian prisoners in Siberia who are only waiting an opportunity to take possession of the country are taken with several grains of salt. The case for what The Manchester Guardian calls "not a violent attack upon Russia, but friendly approach and co-operation against Germany rather than emulation of her excesses," is clearly put by that paper which expresses the hope that "America will see to it" that President Wilson who "declared that German occupation in the west cannot stand, can be no party to allied occupation in the east."

The earliest information of developments is expected from America, and speculation is keen as to the method in which it will be conveyed. The English press has printed very little from America regarding the problem, and that little has been far from illuminating. Under the circumstances, interest in President Wilson's decisions has reached the highest pitch.

JAPANESE OPINION SPLIT OVER SIBERIA

Government Said to be Anxious Not to Arouse Hostility of Loyal Russians.

LONDON, March 5.—A Reuter dispatch from Tokio under date of March 3 says:

"Public and press opinion is radically divided on the question of Japan's intervention in Siberia. One of the strong political elements, which is also commercially powerful, urges Japan to remain inactive, insisting that the talk of a German menace through Siberia is merely a mare's nest, and opposes the mobilization of men and resources.

"Another, including the best elements in Japan, is daily and more loudly demanding action. The leading newspapers in the capital belong to this side. The newspaper Kokjmin, which is regarded as frequently expressing the views of the Premier, unequivocally asserts today that the Government is running the risk of irreparable loss if it longer delays action against Germany and the Bolsheviki in Siberia, which must shortly come under their complete control."

It is understood, according to a Reuter dispatch from Tokio, that the Japanese Government is extremely well informed of the developments in Siberia, but at present is adopting a policy of watchful waiting. Japan is carefully avoiding arousing the antagonism of loyal Russians, who, notwithstanding their dire need of assistance, appear to be extremely sensitive of outside interference.

The Evening News says the question of Japanese intervention in Siberia has been settled and that all the Allies, as well as the United States, have agreed to immediate action to safeguard the interests of the Powers.

The Daily Mail says that the joint representations by the British, French, and Italian Ambassadors in Tokio that Japan intervene in Siberia will be tantamount to a request that Japan take steps necessary to afford prompt and adequate protection to Entente allied interests there, the immediate object being to safeguard the military stores at Vladivostok and along the Trans-Siberian Railroad.

"The Japanese military authorities," says The Daily Mail, "will decide how far into Siberia it is feasible to carry the protective measures, which, besides safeguarding the military stores, also would seek to prevent the vast food supplies in the Siberian area, bordered on the west roughly by a line parallel with Omsk, falling into Germany's hands.

"There is every reason to believe Japan, in return for a free hand, desires and is prepared to give the Allies every assurance of disinterestedness and of the single-minded purpose to act swiftly and efficiency, solely in the joint allied interests."

PARIS, March 4.—Significance is attached to a meeting of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon, which was attended by Foreign Minister Pichon, the understanding being that the Russian situation, as it affects the Far East, was under discussion.

While the committeemen, as a matter of course, declined to make known the exact terms of M. Pinchon's statement, they nevertheless, says the Havas News Agency's report of the meeting, allowed it to be understood that it now seems certain that all the Allies are in agreement to leave to Japan the task of intervening in Manchuria and Siberia.

SENATOR LEWIS DENIES ANY SECRET COMPACT

Illinois Member Says He Has Received Many Telegrams of Alarm Over Rumors About Japan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Assuming to speak from a "knowledge of the facts," Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois declared in the Senate today that fears conveyed to him in telegrams from all over the country that the United States had a secret compact with Japan embracing approval of her entry into Siberia were groundless. He spoke of a "gentlemen's agreement" existing between Japan and the United States respecting Japanese immigration, and asserted that this was the only compact between the two nations.

The Illinois Senator undertook to voice the sentiment of the Senate with an avowal that that body would "under no circumstances, while the country fights for the principles of democracy, allow them to be violated by any agreement with any country," and in any way repeal American policies. His attempt to speak for the Senate was challenged by Senators Brandegee of Connecticut and Johnson of California, who insisted that he expressed only an individual view. They, as well as other Senators, wanted to know upon what Senator Lewis based his assertion respecting any understandings that might exist between Japan and the United States. Senator Lewis explained that they arose from his knowledge of affairs and were given upon his own authority

Referring to inquiries he had received, Senator Lewis said:

"These telegrams disclose a fright, a scare, based upon what they claim to be information coming from the East charging that the United States is in some form of alliance or compact with Japan permitting Japan to enter into Siberia and take possession of that portion of the East without our hindrance, in consideration of the United States allowing Japan a free hand in the Philippines, permission to establish a base in Mexico, and the allowance of her citizens to come ad libitum to the United States.

"Mr. President, it is to be regretted that any such views have been sent forward from any source whatever. Whether they are sent to Mexico to stimulate Mexico in opposition to us, I can only surmise. Whether they are sent by those who are opposed to us I can only approximate; but from my position, Sir, let us assume to state that there is no ground for such fear as expressed in these messages. There is no alliance between the United States and Japan; there is no compact between the United States and Japan touching this war, and no services being exacted of Japan by the United States in the war, and no arrangement whatever by the United States with Japan as to anything anywhere in consideration for anything Japan does in this war.

"Let the country understand now, as these reports which we are getting constantly inflame minds not accustomed to be met with propaganda, that the attitude of Japan in this war is the result of her compact with Great Britain; that Japan has an understanding or an alliance in form with Great Britain, guaranteeing to Great Britain her services in any manner of assault against the rights of either Japan or Britain, particularly in the East; that whatever Japan is doing she is doing in pursuit of and in obedience to this understanding between herself and Britain, and, I may add, in no wise is the result of any alliance or contract with the United States.

"There is existing between Japan and the United States an arrangement designated as a 'gentlemen's agreement.' This has to do with the question of immigration of the people of the East, of Japanese, into the United States. There is no movement now by our country or Japan to modify that agreement as a condition of any service by Japan in this war, nor is there any existing understanding at this time for the modification of that agreement in any wise whatsoever.

"I dare take it upon myself to say to this Senate that, without regard to any difference of little political matters sometimes engaging us, we prefer to have certified to the world from this body that the United States under President Wilson will under no circumstances, while it fights for the principles of democracy, allow them to be violated by any agreement on our part with any country anywhere that would lessen the protection we owe to the American citizen and in anywise repeal the policies which have so long preserved America and which are necessary to be continued for its perpetuity and preservation."

Senator Brandegee asked if the Senator made the statement on the authority of the President or the State Department.

Senator Lewis replied that he spoke upon his own authority.

Senator Brandegee remarked that the did not feel that he wanted the Illinois Senator's observations to go forth as having been "guaranteed by the Senate, which is one-half of the treaty-making power."

"The subject the Senator has touched upon is one of extraordinary importance to the State from which I come," said Senator Johnson. "I do not at all want to discuss any of the matters that have been suggested by the Senator, but, by mere silence, I do not wish to subscribe to aught that has been said by him concerning the various alliances or understandings."

Terms of Peace That Russia Signed, Involving Disarmament of Nation

AMSTERDAM, March 4.—Following is the text of the peace treaty signed at Brest-Litovsk between Russia and the Central Powers, according to dispatches from Berlin:

"Article 1.—The Central Powers and Russia declare the state of war between them to be terminated and are resolved henceforth to live in peace and friendship with one another.

"Article 2.—The contracting nations will refrain from all agitation or provocation against other signatory Governments, and undertake to spare the populations of the regions occupied by the powers of the Quadruple Entente.

"Article 3.—The regions lying west of the line agreed upon by the contracting parties, and formerly belonging to Russia, shall no longer be under Russian sovereignty. It is agreed that the line appears from the appended map, No. 1, which, as agreed upon, forms an essential part of the peace treaty. The fixing of the line in the west will be settled in the German-Russian Mixed Commission. The regions in question will have no obligation whatever toward Russia, arising from their former relations thereto. Russia undertakes to refrain from all interference in the internal affairs of these territories and to let Germany and Austria determine the future fate of these territories in agreement with their populations.

"Article 4. — Germany and Austria agree, when a general peace is concluded and Russian demobilization is fully completed, to evacuate the regions east of the line designated in Article 3, No. 1, in so far as Article 6 does not stipulate otherwise. Russia will do everything in her power to complete as soon as possible the evacuation of the Anatolian provinces and their orderly return to Turkey. The districts of Erivan, Kars, and Batum will likewise without delay be evacuated by the Russian troops. Russia will not interfere in the reorganization of the constitutional or international conditions of these districts, but leave it to the populations of the districts to carry out the reorganization, in agreement with the neighboring States, particularly Turkey.

"Article 5.—Russia will without delay carry out the complete demobilization of her army, including the forces newly formed by the present Government. Russia will further transfer her warships to Russian harbors and leave them there until a general peace or immediately disarm. Warships of States continuing in a state of war with the Quadruple Alliance will be treated as Russian warships in so far as they are within Russian control. The barred zone in the article continues in force until the conclusion of peace. An immediate beginning will be made of the removal of mines in the Baltic and in so far as Russian power extends in the Black Sea. Commercial shipping is free in these waters, and will be resumed immediately. A mixed commission will be appointed to fix further regulations, especially for the announcement of routes for merchant ships. Shipping routes are to be kept permanently free from floating mines.

"Article 6.—Russia undertakes immediately to conclude peace with the Ukraine People's Republic and to recognize the peace treaty between this State and the powers of the Quadruple Alliance. Ukrainian territory will be immediately evacuated by the Russian troops and the Russian Red Guard. Russia will cease all agitation or propaganda against the Government or the public institutions of the Ukrainian People's Republic. Esthonia and Livonia will likewise be evacuated without delay by the Russian troops and the Russian Red Guard. The eastern frontier of Esthonia follows in general the line of the Narova River. The eastern frontier of Livonia runs in general through Peipus Lake and Pskov Lake to the southwesterly corner of the latter, then over Lubahner (Luban) Lake in the direction of Lievenhof on the Dvina. Esthonia and Livonia will be occupied by a German police force until security is guaranteed by their own national institutions and order in the State is restored. Russia will forthwith release all arrested or deported inhabitants of Esthonia and Livonia and guarantee the safe return of deported Esthonians and Livonians. Finland and the Aland Islands will also forthwith be evacuated by the Russian troops and the Red Guard, and Finnish ports by the Russian fleet and Russian naval forces. So long as the ice excludes the bringing of Russian warships to Russian ports only small detachments will remain behind on the warships. Russia is to cease all agitation or propaganda against the Government or the public institutions in Finland. The fortifications erected on the Aland Islands are to be removed with all possible dispatch. A special agreement is to be made between Germany, Russia, Finland, and Sweden regarding the permanent nonfortification of these islands, as well as regarding their treatment in military, shipping, and technical respects. It is agreed that at Germany's desire the other States bordering on the Baltic are also to have a voice in the matter.

"Article 7.—Starting from the fact that Persia and Afghanistan are free and independent States, the contracting parties undertake to respect their political and economic independence and territorial integrity.

"Article 8.—Prisoners of war of both sides will be sent home.

"Article 9. The contracting parties mutually renounce indemnification of their war costs, that is to say, State expenditure for carrying on the war, as well as indemnification for war damages, that is to say, those damages which have arisen for them and their subjects in the war regions through military measures, inclusive of all requisitions undertaken in the enemy country.

"Article 10.—Diplomatic and Consular relations between the contracting parties will be resumed immediately after ratification of the peace treaty. Special agreements are reserved relative to the admittance of the respective Consuls.

"Article 11.—The prescriptions contained in appendices 2 to 5 shall govern the economic relations between the Powers of the Quadruple Alliance and Russia, namely: Appendix 2 for German-Russian, Appendix 3 for Austro-Hungarian-Russian, Appendix 4 for Bulgarian-Russian, and Appendix 5 for Turkish-Russian relations.

"Article 12.—The restoration of public and private relations, the exchange of prisoners of war, interned civilians, the amnesty question, as well as the treatment of merchant ships which are in enemy hands, will be regulated by separate treaties with Russia, which shall form an essential part of the present peace treaty and as far as is feasible shall enter into force at the same time.

"Article 13. For the interpretation of this treaty the German and Russian text is authoritative for the relations between Germany and Russia; for the relations between Austria-Hungary and Russia, the German, Hungarian, and Russian text; for the relations between Bulgaria and Russia, the Bulgarian and Russian text; for the relations between Turkey and Russia, the Turkish and Russian text.

"Article 14. The present peace treaty will be ratified. Instruments of ratification must be exchanged as soon as possible in Berlin. The Russian Government undertakes at the desire of one of the Quadruple Alliance powers to exchange ratifications within two weeks. The peace treaty enters into force on its ratification, in so far as its articles, appendices, or supplementary treaties do not prescribe otherwise."

The signatures of the plenipotentiaries are attached. The treaty was drawn up in quintuple form at Brest-Litovsk on March 3.

The semi-official Wolff Bureau of Berlin says that the trade and political questions to which Article 11 refers are to be regulated according to the demands of the German ultimatum and analogously to the Ukrainian treaty. The legal and political agreements correspond substantially to the proposals which were submitted at the first sitting by Germany on the basis of its ultimatum.

ISHII HAS "URGENT BUSINESS."

Cables Pacific Merchants He Must Go Direct to Washington.

A PACIFIC PORT, March 5.—Viscount Ishii, the new Japanese Ambassador to the United States, cabled the Chamber of Commerce of this city today that he would be unable to attend entertainments on his arrival, as urgent business would call him direct to Washington. The cable was from Tokio.

RED CROSS MEN GO BACK.

American Mission to Stay in Petrograd as Long as It Can.

PETROGRAD, March 5.—Raymond Robins, head of the American permanent Red Cross Mission to Russia, with a contingent of Red Cross workers, and Roger C. Tredwell, the American Consul, returned to Petrograd last night.

WANTS MUNITIONS, NOT CAKE

Soldier Writes Mother Not to Waste Cargo Space on Sweets.

WASHINGTON, March 5. — "Don't take good space up with sweets that should be used for needed ammunition. Candy and cakes taste fine, but they won't do much good when the Hun starts his offensive, so don't do anything to hinder the United States."

That is the spirit of the American soldiers in France as expressed by an Asheville, N. C., trooper, in a letter to his mother. Postmaster General Burleson, to whom the mother wrote, quoting her son's letter, declared today such a sentiment expressed the American spirit that would win the war.

One avalanche cut an Austrian military train in two south of Botzen. Twenty-six officers and men were killed.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, March 3, (Delayed.)—The compulsory cession to dying Turkey of the rich territories of Kars and Batoum is the bitterest draught the Germans could have compelled any Russian Government to swallow. If this peace were a real peace it would mean that the work of four centuries had been undone and that the Russian state had ceased to exist. But the Brest-Litovsk agreement cannot be regarded as a peace. It simply marks the beginning of a new era of extraordinary convulsions.

The decision to sign peace at any cost has caused serious dissensions in the governing group. The peace party, headed by Premier Lenine, insists that real defense being out of the question in view of the complete collapse of the army, it is better to accept the German terms and thus render it possible for the Soviet Government to maintain itself on limited territory and continue its work of fostering a world revolution which will ultimately upset all the plans of the German Imperialists.

The opposition party urges that once Russia is completely delivered over into the hands of the powerful Imperialists of Germany it will be impossible to maintain Soviet rule to any serious extent on Russian territory, and that it would be better to retire fighting into the depths of Russia than to consent formally to the present humiliation.

The majority of Left Social Revolutionaries and the section of the Bolsheviki headed by Radek and Riazanov, are for a revolutionary war. Trotzky has made no public declaration either on one side or the other. As a matter of fact no serious defense is possible. The regular army, except for a few small groups, is simply flocking into the interior as far as possible from the enemy. The bulk of the regiments of the Petrograd garrison, after resting for a year on their laurels as the heroes of the revolution, have sold the regimental property, divided up the proceeds, and gone home, leaving unwonted space and freedom in the streets. The new Red Army, which consists mostly of workmen, is enthusiastic and sincerely patriotic in its Socialist way, but raw and untrained it cannot oppose any serious resistance to the invaders. A force of Esthonians and Germans is reported to be advancing along the Reval line toward Narva.

The invading Ukrainian and Austro-Hungarian troops, which on Friday occupied Kiev, according to reports of the British, French, and American Consuls, who have just arrived at Moscow from Kiev, were commanded by the former Ukrainian War Minister, Petliura, who had at his disposal a picked German punitive force and a Hungarian Division. Proclamations announced that the army had come to deliver Ukrainia from the great Russian yoke. The troops advanced by three routes via Zlutomir, Sardy, and Berdicheff.

The male population was recruited on the way and formed into Cossack detachments, and provisions were immediately exported to Germany. The Kiev Soviet moved to Kurs. It is reported that in Pskov the Germans are arresting all men of military age and sending them to Germany.

Petrograd is very quiet, quieter than it has been at any time since the revolution. It is difficult to analyze the prevailing feeling. After a year of unparalleled nerve strain, perception is blunted and the mass of people seem to be dazed, stunned, and indifferent to their fate. The man in the street talks lightly of the Germans as deliverers from Bolshevist tyranny, but during the last few days, amid all party bitterness and desire for personal comfort, I have noticed a dim but growing sense of the terrible tragedy through which Russia is passing.

The amazing German peace terms have struck a blow at the slumbering national feeling in all classes. Here and there one hears patriotic appeals. The Petrograd Committee of the Cadet Party publishes today a declaration in which it states that the party on the eve of a terrible separate peace affirms the principle of national defense that it has maintained from the beginning of the war. It notes the decline of public morale as a result of the prevailing anarchy, and expresses immense indignation at the attitude of those who regard the German invaders as deliverers.

"All the calamities of anarchy," it says, "are not to be compared with the horror of enslavement of the country by a foreign enemy. The defense of the country and conclusion of peace must be conducted in association with our allies, and this national task can only be accomplished on a national scale, taking into account not the interests of classes and parties, but the needs of Russia as a whole."

country, but I look forward to hear from you, as soon as you believe their work is finished, that orders can safely be given for their withdrawal."

VOLOGDA, Russia, March 3, (Associated Press.)—A new Siberian Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Republic at Irkutsk, which has determined not to recognize any imperialistic German peace, has organized a council of national Siberian Commissioners composed of eleven members of the Bolsheviki and four Left Social Revolutionaries.

The President of the council is M. Shozatsky and the Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. Weinbaum. A Siberian Central Executive Committee, to act as an independent legislative body, also has been formed.

TO THE PRESIDENT

1. We are opposed to peace negotiations with an unbeaten and unrepentant Germany.
2. We believe that the war can only be won by FIGHTING.
3. We believe that peace discussions while Germany is consolidating her successes will prolong the war by encouraging Germany and weakening America's will to fight.
4. In view of Germany's victory over Russia, we believe a long and bitter war faces us, requiring millions of American soldiers in Europe.
5. We respectfully urge the President to organize the fighting forces of the American nation to the full limit of our power and to prosecute the war to final victory, which alone can secure an assured peace—peace with justice.

RUSSIANS AGREE TO EVACUATE FINLAND

British, French, and Italian Embassy Staffs from Petrograd Reach Helsingfors.

STOCKHOLM, March 5.—The Politiken's Helsingfors correspondent reports that a treaty was signed on Friday at Smolny Institute, (Bolshevist headquarters at Petrograd,) defining the future relations between Russia and Finland. Russia renounces all claims to property, telegraphs, railways, lighthouses, requisitioned ships, and fortresses in the territory bordering the Arctic Ocean. Finland relinquishes all right to the Valkeasaari-Petrograd Railway and grants Russia cable and telegraphic facilities to Finland. The Fortress of Imo remains in the hands of Russia. The details of the delimitation of the frontiers are to be arranged later and evacuation is to take place immediately.

In case of dispute an arbitration tribunal will be established, the President to be chosen from the Swedish Social Democratic Left Party.

The members of the British, French and Italian embassies, who left Petrograd last week, are now at Helsingfors, according to information reaching the American Legation here. The Swedish Government will be asked to use its good offices to secure a train to carry the diplomats to Tornea, on the Swedish-Finnish border.

Two hundred and fifty other Entente nationals, including some Americans, are now at Abo, on the western coast of Finland. They have been advised to attempt to reach territory under control of the Finnish Government, as Sweden will not likely send ships to Abo.

EXPOSES BULGAR TERRORISM.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The official Serbian Press Bureau tonight made public a statement exposing the plans of the Central Powers in connection with the ambitions of Bulgaria for part of the territory of Macedonia, Old Serbia, and the Dobrudja.

The statement was prepared by Leon Savadjian, formerly Secretary of the Bulgarian Ministry of Public Works, and now Director of the "Agency Balkanic" in Switzerland. It contains the text of a significant telegram which Dimitri Rizoff, Bulgarian Minister at Berlin, sent to Sofia Oct. 18, 1917, immediately after he had been in conference with Herr von Kühlmann, the German Foreign Minister.

Minister Rizoff informed the Bulgarian Government in this dispatch that while Berlin had always regarded the Bulgarian claims as "perfectly just," there were questions involved as to the "legitimacy" of which the judgment of Berlin might not be accepted as decisive, and, therefore, that it was necessary "to get the populations of Macedonia and the Dobrudja to speak for themselves." Rizoff sent to the Bulgarian Government a communication from the German Secretary of State saying that the Bulgarian cause would be greatly facilitated if the Bulgarian Government would actively preoccupy itself "in spreading the idea, especially in the enemy's camps, that the regions desired by her are Bulgarian in character."

"For some time past," says M. Savadjian's statement, "The Bulgarian Government has been distributing dispatches and resolutions which the people of Macedonia, Old Serbia, and the Dobrudja are stated to have addressed to it affirming their wish to become Bulgarians. It is thus that the Government of Sofia seeks to demonstrate the Bulgarian character of these populations, emphasizing at the same time the idea that the principle of nationality would not be in any way affected by the incorporation of these territories in the Bulgarian Kingdom.

"The signatures which have been collected, the dispatches which have been sent, the meetings which have been organized, all have been the result of armed force exercised by the Prefects, and carried into effect by the gendarmes by means of unheard-of terrorism and deeds of violence not to be described.

"I denounce these methods, and I proclaim once more that the aggrandizement of Bulgaria at the expense of her neighbors would constitute the most monstrous iniquity of the century."

Money Stock Up a Billion.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—War needs have increased the general stock of money in the United States more than $1,000,000,000—from $5,312,000,000 last April 1, shortly before the war began, to $6,351,548,056, March 1. The increase was caused almost entirely by the rapid expansion of Federal Reserve notes.

LANSDOWNE PLEA FOR PEACE STEPS

ASKS CLARITY ON BELGIUM

'REJOINDER' TO VERSAILLES

Daily Telegraph, Which Prints the Letter, Attacks Its Viewpoint Sharply.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—The full text of Lord Lansdowne's letter to The Daily Telegraph analyzing Count von Hertling's recent speech and reviewing the prospects of peace, is as follows:

"Count von Hertling's speech, unsatisfactory as it is at many points, seems to me to mark a perceptible advance in the discussion. This is the more remarkable because the speech may be regarded as a kind of rejoinder to the depressing announcement recently made—some of us think rather gratuitously—by the Versailles conference.

"Let us note, in the first place, that Count von Hertling ends with a cordial reference to the speech delivered Feb. 21 by Lord Milner at Plymouth, a speech which he regards as 'still more conciliatory' than that made by Mr. Runciman in the House of Commons. Lord Milner is a member of the War Cabinet. He is under no suspicion of desiring a German peace. His speech is instinct with courage and determination, but he recognizes that in the torrent of oratory with which the country has lately been flooded 'we have seemed sometimes to get into rather a tangle, to be putting forward too many propositions, to be putting our total claims perhaps rather too high. Simple people in this country have sometimes been rather confused by the talk about the readjustment of territory in distant parts of the world, about future trade arrangements, and so forth. All these are details, very important details, which will have to be settled when we reach the stage of negotiations, but they are all subsidiary to the main object, which is the securing of human freedom and a just and enduring peace.'

Finds Four Prominent Points.

"Let me proceed with my examination of Count von Hertling's speech. It contains:

"(1) A distinct expression of the wish that in order to remove misunderstandings and in the hope of reaching a 'compromise of existing contradictions' responsible representatives of the belligerent powers should come together 'in an intimate meeting' for discussion.

"(2) An admission that 'a general peace is discussable' on the basis of the four principles laid down in President Wilson's message of Feb. 11 if recognized definitely by all States and nations.

"(3) The assurance that the Chancellor would 'joyfully greet' an impartial court of international arbitration and 'gladly co-operate to realize such ideals.'

"(4) The intimation that Germany does not think of retaining Belgium or making the Belgian State a component part of the German Empire.

"I make the following comments:

"By 'intimate meeting' I understand Count von Hertling to mean a small and informal meeting, not of plenipotentiaries, but of persons authorized to discuss confidentially and without prejudice the possibility of a more formal conference. It is true, as Mr. Balfour has pointed out, that it is unwise to begin negotiations unless there is a certain amount of potential and preliminary agreement. But how is such preliminary agreement to be reached unless there are preliminary conversations?

Emphasizes Clash of Aims.

"As matters now stand, the spokesmen of the Allies recite in language of stern reprobation the crimes which Germany has committed, and put forward a series of demands which are not likely to be conceded until she has been beaten to her knees. German spokesmen, on the other hand, put forward inadmissible demands which Mr. Balfour regards as probably representing the extreme high-water mark of German concession, and impute selfish and aggressive ends to the Allies.

"In these circumstances there seems at first sight nothing for it but what von Hertling calls 'adherence to the existing method of dialogue across the Channel and ocean—dialogues which may prove, after all, to be not without their use.

"Count von Hertling's acceptance of the four principles is satisfactory so far as it goes. Mr. Balfour is in thorough agreement with the spirit of all those four propositions, but rightly points out that we are entitled to scrutinize the manner in which the principles thus laid down are to be applied by Germany.

"Von Hertling's assurance that he will co-operate to realize the 'ideal of an impartial court of international arbitration may be welcomed. Mr. Balfour also (House of Commons, Feb. 27, 1918) speaks of the ideal for which we all long, in which there shall be an international court armed with executive power so that the weak may be as safe as the strong.'

"Belgium is properly regarded as a test case, and the language in which Count von Hertling deals with the Belgian case has consequently been closely scutinized. 'We do not,' he says, 'think of retaining Belgium or making the Belgian State a component part of the German Empire, but we must, as was also said in the Papal note of Aug. 11, 1917, be safeguarded from the danger that a country with which, after the war, we desire to live again in peace and friendship should become the object or jumping off ground of enemy machinations.'

"The language has been adversely commented upon, and certainly suggests particularly, when read by the light of other German utterances on the same subject, the inference that what von Hertling has in his mind is the imposition of terms which, by subjecting Belgium to onerous conditions, territorial, commercial, or military, would prevent her from having an independent place among the nations of Europe.

Might Give Belgian Guarantee.

"It is, therefore, worth while to examine the text of the note of Aug. 1, 1917, on which apparently von Hertling relies for a description of the steps which would have to be taken in order to prevent Belgium from being used as a 'jumping off' place. The material passage runs as follows: 'Plainly there must be on the part of Germany a complete evacuation of Belgium with a guarantee of her full political, military and economic independence toward all powers whatsoever.'

"If such guarantee is really all that von Hertling requires in order to prevent Belgium from becoming the object or jumping off ground of enemy machinations, it ought surely not to be difficult to satisfy him. Let us hope that in the course of the 'dialogue' which will no doubt be continued, he will tell us whether that is his meaning or whether wholly different designs, unhinted at in the Papal note, were in his mind when he penned his somewhat unfortunate phrase. The point requires clearing up, because if von Hertling's overture has been 'turned down,' this has been in great measure due to the interpretation which has been placed upon his reference to Belgium.

"It may here be observed that with an international court in operation there would not be much likelihood of such an abuse of the neutrality of Belgium as Count von Hertling apprehends.

"Up to this point I am unable to see why the 'dialogue' should not be usefully continued or even allowed to lapse into 'intimate discussion.' There is a basic agreement as to four principles and as to the need of an international tribunal with executive powers and I believe as to Belgium, with regard to which gallant and long-suffering country we are, as Mr. Ramsay MacDonald said in the House of Commons, 'certainly going to have no humbug.'

"The restoration of Belgium is, of course, as the President puts it, 'the healing act,' without which the 'whole structure and validity of international law is forever impaired,' but it will be necessary to make sure that similar treatment will be extended to other areas now occupied by the Central Powers in France and elsewhere. One German statesman after another has disclaimed a policy of conquest and annexation.

Settlements for Peace Congress.

"When, however, we come to the claims that, for the sake of future peace, territory now forming part of the dominions of one power shall be transferred to another, the difficulties to be surmounted become much more formidable. Such difficulties arise in regard to the French claim to Alsace-Lorraine, the Italian claim to certain districts in Austria, and the British claim to parts of the Turkish Empire.

"I am far from suggesting that all these are on the same plane, but they all differ in kind from cases in which the question is merely one of restoration. If we are, as the Prime Minister has told us, to have a great international peace congress at the close of the war, is it not inevitable that there must be remitted to it the questions belonging to the latter class?

"Mr. Lloyd George has added a special suggestion, in which President Wilson apparently concurs, that the question of the German colonies, one of extreme difficulty and delicacy, should be reserved for such a congress. Does any one suppose that these questions could be settled and in a reasonable time while the war is still raging? Can we do more now than lay down in advance the principles upon which a peace congress would deal with them, and can we improve upon those which the President has proposed and which both sides are apparently not indisposed to accept?"

Telegraph Differs from Lansdowne.

"Balfour's treatment of the matter still seems to us entirely right, and we are obliged to say that differences of matter and manner between his speech of last week and the letter which we publish today are differences too wide to be reconciled in any common principle of determination to carry on the war to the end sought by this country and its allies.

"We would point out, in the first place, that some considerable events have happened since Lord Lansdowne's first letter was published at the end of November, events which have just culminated in the acceptance by Russia of a humiliating peace, dictated at the point of the sword.

"There is only one way in which allied statesmanship, without compromising its cause and abandoning its hope of the future, can confront that fact and all that it implies. That is the way of stiffening its spirit, writing off its losses, and firmly facing the prospect of a prolongation of the war, with its unaltered aims of justice and liberation and permanent settlement still before its eyes. That is the way of Balfour and the way, we are quite convinced, of the vast mass of his fellow-countrymen. Any one taking it is bound to recognize that what has happened has modified profoundly the temper of our adversaries, thrust their more pacific counselors into the background, and set militarism more firmly in the saddle than it has been for many a day in Central Europe.

Distrusts Hertling's Professions.

"Does Lord Lansdowne's letter recognize this? Is it not rather concerned to make the most of the few and insubstantial instances in which von Hertling does lip service to this or that ideal of world settlement pursued by the Allies and lately put into set terms by President Wilson?

"We say that so long as Germany is engaged in breaking with both hands the principles which she is at the same moment professing to accept it 's useless to think of negotiation; that there must be, as Mr. Balfour has said, 'that measure of potential agreement between the belligerents which would make diplomatic conversations fruitful of good results.'

"Not so Lord Lansdowne. He takes von Hertling's professions as made in all good faith and 'satisfactory so far as they go'; takes them not only without regard to their context, but without regard to the positive acts by which they were both accompanied and succeeded. The statesmanship which made this war, invaded Belgium and is still enthroned in Berlin, disposing of the rights of other peoples at its own despotic will, cannot expect to have its mere word taken when it makes a profession of liberal and enlightened political aims."

Referring to Lord Lansdowne's suggestion that questions involving the taking away of territory from a power which had it in its possession before the war should be remitted to the peace congress, The Daily Telegraph says that a point which Lord Lansdowne does not mention is that von Hertling has insisted upon the unconditional dropping of those questions as preliminary to peace. The paper concludes:

"Willing as we are to follow the argument of any statesman who can point out to us sound reasons for regarding the Chancellor's speech as "marking a perceptible advance in the discussion,' we confess ourselves unable to take that view of it upon the representations made by our distinguished correspondent. We remain of the opinion expressed last month that the true temper and real indwelling principle of the enemy's attitude toward peace was disclosed in the recent declaration of the German Emperor: 'We are willing to live in friendship with neighboring peoples, but the victory of German arms must first be recognized.'"

HENDERSON APPEALS TO GERMAN SOCIALISTS

Says War's Duration Rests with Them—Labor Chief Contests New Seat in Commons.

LONDON, March 5.—The campaign for the next general election has already begun. Arthur Henderson, former member of the War Council, finding that the secretaryship of the Labor Party compels him to spend most of his time in London, has decided to resign his seat in the House of Commons from the Barnard Castle division of Durham and has been invited to contest the southern division of Eastham.

Mr. Henderson addressed a meeting last night at Eastham, making a strong appeal for the abolition of secret diplomacy, peace by conciliation, and a league of nations. He said that before the war began the people had entrusted foreign affairs to statesmen and diplomatists and were paying dearly for their neglect. It had to be recognized, he asserted, that no greater disaster had occurred in the course of the war than the fatal omission to do the utmost to keep Premier Kerensky and his Government in power in Russia. The people must be on their guard against a repetition of the same fatal policy over a wider field.

It was highly improbable, Mr. Henderson said, that the war could be ended by a decisive Prussian military triumph. It might end by a process of exhaustion and that meant a continuance of the war, with all its horrors, until the destruction of human life and material of one or both sets of belligerents made continuation impossible. Such a termination, he asserted, would be a disaster of the first magnitude to mankind.

There remained, he said, a third alternative—a policy of conciliation through the combined forces of labor and socialism to secure a real people's peace. That did not mean a surrender to the enemy, or a patched-up peace, or peace at any price, nor that the people were willing to condone German brutality, or to leave Germany with all her power for mischief unimpaired. What the policy of conciliation meant, Mr. Henderson said, was the destruction of militarism, not only in Germany, but everywhere.

Mr. Henderson then recited the war aims of the Labor Party, including a league of nations. He said that such a league implied the complete democratization of the machinery of government in all countries, the suppression of the greed of diplomacy and the publication of treaties, which must never contravene the stipulations of the league of nations. It meant the concerted abolition of compulsory military service in all countries to be prepared for by a common limitation of armaments, and also that they must abandon every suggestion of an economic boycott or of the financial or commercial isolation of Germany.

The speaker quoted a recent speech of Philipp Scheidemann, the German majority Socialist leader, and articles in the Socialist Vorwärts as proving that there was a struggle in the Central Powers between the military caste and the forces of democracy. The people, he said, must help the forces of democracy in Germany to the utmost.

The German policy toward Russia, he asserted, made the possibility of peace by conciliation much more remote. The people must convince the German people that victory for such ruthless militarism would fasten permanently upon democratic nations the awful burden of armaments and enforced service, and that the greater the German success on the battlefield the more remote was world peace.

"We must tell the German Socialists," Mr. Henderson continued, "that we have done our part. Whether the struggle is to terminate soon or is to be indefinitely prolonged depends largely upon how soon they can produce a change of mentality in their Government. When they induce their Government to accept the broad human principles which inspire the proposals of allied labor and socialism, then a world peace is insured. Then only will the peoples of the world agree to sheathe the sword and walk together in the paths of progress and peace."

OUR EXPORTS TO ALLIES FEED 16,000,000 MEN

Great Britain Alone Receives Enough Each Year to Ration 8,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Food sufficient to furnish a balanced ration to an average of more than 16,000,000 men yearly was shipped from the United States to the Allies from the beginning of the war to Jan. 1, 1918, the Food Administration announced tonight in making public an analysis of the nation's enormous exports to Great Britain, France, Italy, and Russia. In addition, there was a surplus of some 625,000 tons of protein and 268,000 tons of fats.

Russia received less than 1 per cent. of the total, or only enough to feed about 10,000 men a year. Great Britain took more than half of the entire total, or enough to feed about 8,000,000 men. France was next, with enough for 4,200,000 men, and Italy sufficient for more than 2,000,000 men. The three together received an excess of protein capable of supplying this portion of the diet to some 20,000,000 additional men.

The total exports of wheat and wheat flour to Great Britain, France, and Italy was equivalent to 384,000,000 bushels, or an avarage of 110,000,000 bushels per year. Exports of pork and pork products totaled almost 2,000,000,000 pounds, while sugar exports to those countries showed a yearly average of 648,000,000 pounds. Oats exports for the three and one-half years totaled 212,751,000 bushels, corn 24,310,000 bushels, and rye 3,618,000 bushels.

Exports of fresh beef amounted to 443,484,000 pounds in the three and one-half years, while exports of butter totaled 29,000,000 pounds, cheese 103,500,000 pounds, and condensed milk 126,000,000 pounds. Cottonseed, linseed, and other oil products and by-products to be used for feeding cattle totaled 611,000,000 pounds.

CALLS ON AMERICA TO RUSH NEW SHIPS

BRITISH OUTPUT FALLS OFF

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—"The necessity for more shipbuilding is overwhelming," said Sir Joseph Maclay, Shipping Controller, to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today, "and only the United States can help us. But the situation is not hopeless if your country can make good its expectations. Only the United States must realize the reality of the crisis and how much depends on her."

Figures of shipbuilding in Great Britain have been recently given officially. In 1917 two hundred steamships of over 1,600 gross tons, aggregating 1,067,696 gross tons, were completed, as against 516,000 gross tons in 1916. Recently, however, the figures have been far less satisfactory. In November twenty-two vessels of over 1,600 tons, or 130,375 gross tonnage, were built. In December twenty-one vessels of a total of 115,753 tons, and in January only eleven, totaling 55,588 tons. This, it has been explained officially, was partly due to the transfer of some of the inadequate supply of skilled labor from construction to repair work. However, no explanations and no reorganizations of what ships are left can avoid the conclusion that new ships and more new ships are now the vital need of the Allies, and the Shipping Controller lays the utmost stress on the value of the service that American shipbuilders can now perform.

598 Ships Lost Last Year.

"Remember," he said, "in 1917 the net shipping losses of the Allies were 598 vessels. That is a fleet large enough to import all the wheat this country needs, and from 50 to 75 per cent. of all the food it has to import. Remember, too, that the submarines are still sinking considerably more than twice the number of ships that are being turned out in the British shipyards, and you will see how urgent this matter is. Then, every day, the number of American troops, we are glad to say, is growing on this side of the Atlantic, but every additional soldier of yours over here puts a permanent additional strain on shipping in keeping him supplied with food, munitions, and clothing.

"The Atlantic at present is the neck of the bottle. On your side are boundless supplies of men, food, and material; on this side a boundless demand for their help, but everything must pass through this narrow neck, and it is literally true today that every new ship launched in your yards means more American soldiers in the trenches."

"But what about British shipbuilding?" he was asked.

"We are doing our best, but we are handicapped, while you are still fresh. At the beginning of the war the European Allies were faced by other and more insistent demands. First, there was the army, then the navy; then munitions, and our strength was committed. Only later did the shipping situation become serious. Now our men are war-weary and their nerves have been strained by more than three years of hard, relentless toil. It is inevitable that their output should have suffered.

"No country at the beginning had shipyards to outbuild the submarine losses. Great Britain could not have done this at the beginning of the war, apart from the necessity of efforts in other directions. It must be for America to do it now, and it will be better and more economical to rely on your help. You may not have had enough shipyards, but you are the first industrial country in the world, and have ample resources in men and steel.

"Suppose we withdrew large numbers of our men from the army to build ships; we should be throwing away all their military training and experience, and perhaps disintegrating important units. On the other hand, if you send men to the shipyards instead of the training camps, they are performing just as great service to the common cause. They are working where the food is, where the steel, so to speak, grows, and the ships, when completed, are where they are needed.

America Can Save Situation.

"It is really curious, when you remember the immensity of the strain this world war is putting on the resources of the whole world in men and material, to consider how small a matter is now of such vital importance to us all. If you calculate how much steel the Germans have sunk in a year, it is less than one-tenth of the annual steel output of America. All the ocean-going cargo ships in the world at the outbreak of the war were worth no more than the Midland and London & Northwestern Railroads. It would be absolutely incongruous if we were to be defeated in this life-and-death struggle through our failure to find the means to strengthen ourselves in this comparatively small but supremely important matter.

"Our position is critical, particularly until the next harvest, but the United States can save us. We have committed our resources in many directions and cannot go back. We cannot scrap our army, but you Americans have the men, the skill, and the material to save the allied cause."

AMUNDSEN GOING TO ARCTIC

Explorer, Now Returning from War Front, Tells of His Plans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 5.—Raold Amundsen has passed through Liverpool on the way to America. He has been visiting the front at the invitation of the United States Government and traveling as its guest in order to lecture in America on what he has seen.

The explorer says he intends to leave Norway next Summer in a new arctic vessel, the Maud, which is specially built for his north pole venture. The vessel is to be fitted out for a seven years' stay in the ice, but Amundsen hopes to be back within four years.

EIGHTH GERMAN WAR LOAN

To be Issued at 98 and Bear 5 and 4 1-2 Per Cent. Interest.

AMSTERDAM, March 5.—The eighth German war loan, to be issued March 28, says a Berlin dispatch, will consist of 5 per cent. certificates and 4½ per cent. Treasury bills.

Both will be issued at 98.

HUGHES'S ADDRESS APPLAUDED IN PARIS

Disposition to Discuss Peace, Fostered by Czernin, Has Now Been Offset.

POLITICAL STRATEGY WEAK

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 5.—Charles E. Hughes's recent speech in New York is enthusiastically received here. As a leader of the Republican Party he represents a large body of American opinion and his strong attitude has a bracing effect.

Within the last few days, despite the overrunning of Russia by the Germans, allied sentiment shows an improved tone. Such expressions as General Foch's TIMES interview and Judge Hughes's address increase spirit and determination among the Allies. Whereas, shortly after Czernin's speech there was a disposition in many quarters to explore peace possibilities, the feeling in Europe is now turning toward the attitude taken by Judge Hughes in his stirring appeal.

Recent activities on the Western front are not regarded here as initiating the advertised German offensive, but as small operations for the purpose of getting information, especially regarding the strength and disposition of the allied armies. By the same methods the Allied Intelligence Departments gain exact knowledge of German units. Information of every division, brigade, and regiment on the front line and reserves from the Channel to Switzerland is corrected daily by the allied intelligence system of observation, which makes surprise well nigh impossible.

The Germans hold the western front strongly and have made preparations of every kind on an immense scale. Nevertheless, the belief grows that attack brusque is not contemplated. A former Prime Minister discussing the situation expressed to me the opinion that probably Germany would now busy herself in Russia. Extension of conquered territory eastward assures her of future supplies of all kinds. For these reasons it is unnecessary to incur the hazards of a great western offensive.

It is an illustration of that lack of allied imagination which has characterized this war throughout that the inevitable consequences of the Russian collapse were not fully foreseen. The Entente world is only now awakening to the realities of the Russian surrender. While it looks as if nothing much worse is left to happen, the progressive calamity in Russia ought to bring home finally the supreme need of allied unity in political strategy. The Versailles council is a body composed of civilians only for military action exclusively. It has worked satisfactorily. Military men sit on the job so that when formal meetings are held Prime Ministers can reach decisions on predigested material. On the military side, therefore, there is continuity.

The same is not true of the political council. Even conceding that Russia has exhausted evil possibilities—a wholly unsafe assumption—there will still be opportunities for promoting allied interest in the field of political strategy that cannot be availed of without centralized and unified authority. To establish such authority only the action of the United States is needed in sending a representative of Cabinet rank. The argument that such a representative would find himself without occupation between meetings is quite unfounded. On the contrary, there are more big things than even the biggest man could possibly attend to. To cite a pending instance, reports reach Paris constantly of dissatisfaction in Switzerland growing out of delay on the part of America in carrying out agreements made by the House mission last November. The shipping shortage doubtless is the reason, but the matter is one of the greatest possible importance and should be dealt with directly and authoritatively.

American officers visiting France are not permitted to talk for publication, but from several of them I have had interesting accounts of their visits to the various fronts. All have been struck by the wonderful strength of the French in artillery. American experts show enthusiasm about the French and English. All visiting officers are eager for European experience, and turn homeward reluctantly.

The French are delighted with their personal association with American soldiers. Meanwhile, increased touch with actual fighting has given a big boom to training. Now that Americans are having their daily bouts with Fritz, our training camps will take on new life.

The Nivelle offensive may be fully aired in Parliament later. Painlevé is temperamentally unfitted for such work as Clemenceau is now doing in the Bolo-Caillaux-Malvy prosecution. He is lacking in oratorical gifts and reformatory zeal. He is the kind of man that, if he lived in New York, would not become excited about Tammany. Painlevé personally is upright and clear-headed, and his administration has been marked by several life-saving decisions. After the April, 1917, offensive, Painlevé's installing of Pétain and retaining of Roch restored equilibrium. He had never been an advocate of a whirlwind offensive. When Nivelle failed, Painlevé went back to his original convictions, and under his subsequent régime the French Army enjoys ever-increasing prosperity.

Another decision made by Painlevé was the sending of French help to Italy last October. To withdraw troops from a long and already thinly held line and send them post haste to Italy was indeed hazardous and at that moment not a popular décision. That it saved the Italian situation by restoring morale no one now denies.

Clemenceau possesses peculiar temperament and genius for carrying out reforms. His motto is "Let no guilty man escape." The general belief here is that the shooting squad at Vincennes will be kept busy for some time. From quarters close to the Government I have had assurance lately that abundant evidence exists to convict all the big traitors.

NAMES OF AMERICANS HONORED IN FRANCE

tack on the American lines last week. The weapon, with several belts of ammunition, is now in possession of intelligence officers.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Lieutenant Joseph Canby is a resident of Chicago instead of Brooklyn, according to C. H. Canby, former President of the Board of Trade.

"He is my son," said Mr. Canby. "He was born in Brooklyn, but we moved to Chicago in 1891. He obtained his commission as a Second Lieutenant of infantry in November, 1916. He attended the first Plattsburg training camp in 1915."

Lieutenant Canby is 29 years old. In Chicago he was connected with a tool manufacturing concern.

ST. LOUIS, March 5.—David Alvin Smiley is the son of J. W. Smiley of Hannibal. He enlisted in the army soon after the United States entered the war. He was in one of the first contingents sent to France.

IDENTIFY LEADER IN LORRAINE FIGHT

Lieut. S. W. Hoover Believed to be the Captain Reported in Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—War Department officials are certain that the "Captain of the West Point 1917 class," referred to in dispatches describing the unsuccessful German attack upon the American trenches in Lorraine Friday, was Lieutenant Stewart W. Hoover of Blackfoot, Idaho, whose name appears in the casualty list reported by General Pershing last night. No reference has been made in reports reaching the department to any American Captain having been killed in that action.

Lieutenant Hoover was a member of the West Point class which was graduated ahead of schedule April 20, 1917.

BLACKFOOT, Idaho, March 5.—Stewart W. Hoover, who was killed leading the American forces that repelled an attack near Toul last Friday, had been acting as a Captain since last October, according to information given out by his family tonight.

This announcement is believed to clear up confusion as to his rank through his being mentioned as a "Captain of the West Point 1917 class" in recent dispatches.

In the casualty list Hoover was listed as a Lieutenant. He was born July 4, 1894. He was the son of Dr. C. A. Hoover, a physician of this place. His elder brother Clayton is also in the army.

AUSTRALIANS WIN IN RACE OF SAPPERS

TRIP UNDER NO MAN'S LAND

Correspondent Threads Tortuous Galleries Which Menace the Positions of the Enemy.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, March 3.—I went into a world the other day where no shells, bursting high or bursting low, can have any effect upon the British who live there. No German barrage can put up a wind because in this world there is no wind. The visibility may be good or bad, but the enemy has no observation here, though he is on top all the time. I went into No Man's Land beyond the British lines, and was as safe as at home, though only a few yards away from the enemy's outposts.

This world into which I went, leaving the blue of the sky and noise of things that go off suddenly, was deep underground. It is a place of long galleries, sixty feet below the earth, in which one may walk for hours and hours and not come to the end of them. I walked for hours and hours, and my guide, who knows these tunnels blindfold, pointed to the entrance of another gallery and said that leads to another part of the front and would take another day to explore.

Recruited from the Gold Mines.

My guide was one of the officers of an Australian tunneling company which during the last two years has done a great part of the work in boring this subterranean system below some sections of the battle line. They are mostly miners from the gold fields of Western Australia, hard, tough fellows, with a special code of their own in regard to their ways of discipline and work, but experts at their job, and with all their pride in it and courage which would frighten the devils of hell if they happened to meet in the dark.

When they first came over with their plant the Germans were mining actively under the British lines and blowing up the infantry in the trenches. It was the worst terror of war before the poison gas came, and I used to pity the poor officers and men, who knew and hated to know that the enemy was sapping his way under them and that at any moment they might be buried in a crater or hurled sky high.

It is many months now since the enemy's mining activities were reported in the British bulletins. They were beaten out of the field by British, Australian, Canadian, and New Zealand miners, who fought the Germans back underground from gallery to gallery, blowing them up again and again whenever they drew near, and racing them for the possession of leads whenever they tried to regain a part of their destroyed systems.

Beat the Germans Underground.

The Australian tunnelers had a race with the Germans then, and lives of many men depended on their speed. They could heard him tamping or charging a mine, but they drove in at three times his speed of working, (when they are "all out," they can do that every time,) blew in the ends of one of his galleries and then broke through his timber into the tunnel with rifles and revolvers. The enemy had escaped, but their system was destroyed before they could touch off their mines.

The Germans know now that they are beaten underground, and it is an honor of which this Australian company is proud that apart from their own casulaties not a single British infantryman has lost his life by hostile mining since they challenged the enemy and beat him in this part of the battlefront.

It is an uncanny thing to walk through this subterranean world. It reminded me yesterday of "The Time Machine," by Wells, where the traveler in the fourth dimension goes down a shaft and discovers the underground people and hears the throb of mighty engines and feels the touch of soft bodies in the darkness.

It was dark in the beginning of the tunnels and down some of the galleries running out to the fighting points, and men pressed against the chalk walls to let us pass, and I heard their breath. Sometimes there was a clank of steel hat against steel hat here and there.

For 500 yards or so the tunnel roof was so low that one had to walk half doubled, and even then hit one's head sharply against the timber props. The candle held by the man in front was the only light in the blackness.

But presently the underground world became more spacious and lightened. A tall man could walk upright, and the long galleries were lit by bulbs of electric light. On each side of the galleries were rooms carved out of chalk. They were furnished with wooden tables and benches, and the miners were playing cards there. A muggy smell and a dampish mist crept toward us, and my guide said that there were a good many men hereabouts.

Through holes in the chalk walls I looked into caverns where men lay asleep in their bunks. The voices of men, yawnings, and hummings and whistlings came through chinks in the rock to the silence of galleries.

Later on, after much more walking, there was a queer throbbing and whirling, and in a big vault was a power house with three electric engines providing the light for the galleries.

A Subterranean Kitchen.

Not far away was room from which fierce heat came and the smell of good food cooking. It was a kitchen with big stoves and ovens, where meals were being cooked by sweltering men within a few yards of the front-line trenches. In a little while a big electric fan will blow a draught through the kitchen and take away the heat.

In other rooms were field dressing stations, and we came to lines down which the wounded are brought from the battlefield up above, so that there is none of that stumbling and drooping and danger of death on the way as when stretcher bearers have to carry men over the shell-cratered land and down narrow trenches under fire.

The roofs were richly colored with reddish fungus, which hangs down like stalactites, and by a queer freak of life, which persists by the stubborn desire of nature, some of the square planks used for propping up the galleries had sprouted, and there were little white shoots from these beams.

We went deeper down and further forward. In one room men were listening like telephone operators, but the instrument in their ears tells stranger tales than those that travel along the overhead wires. They were listening to the sounds of German life in other tunnels like these—sounds of men walking and talking and filling sandbags and moving timber. The listeners are so expert that they can tell by the nature of the sounds exactly what the enemy is doing through the chalk wall seventy feet thick. Their knowledge of the enemy life is so exact by this means that when they captured some of his galleries they found them exactly as they had mapped them out beforehand by the indications of sound.

Under No Man's Land.

Presently we went into one of the fighting points, driven out beyond the lateral galleries, and my guide said here: "We will be quiet, because we don't want the enemy to get suspicious. We are now out in No Man's Land."

It was a safe and pleasant way of wandering into No Man's Land. The war seemed a world away. It was only some hours later, after a good luncheon with the good fellows in the bowels of the earth, when we came up to the surface of the earth and saw the sky again, and the dreary waste of the battlefield, and heard the cry and crash of scattered shells, that we remembered our whereabouts and this business above ground.

The Australian tunnelers live below the ground for the greater part of their lives and some of them have the pale look of men who are out of light in their spare time. Down below they play cards and spin yarns of old days in gold fields and carve faces in the chalk. One man had carved the face of Shakespeare, "Old Bill," as he called him, exactly like the Stratford bust.

It is a strange life in this modern world below the fields of death, and there is a sinister purpose at the end of tunnels. But these men, by their toil and their courage, with picks and explosives and listening instruments, have saved the lives of many hundreds of British soldiers, and long after the war is finished this underground world of theirs will remain as a memorial of their splendid labor.

UPTOWN CLUB'S HOME.

Will Have Quarters in Winfield Building, in Fifth Avenue.

At a luncheon at Delmonico's yesterday final plans for the new Uptown Club were decided upon. It has enrolled 850 of its proposed membership of 1,000, and rooms are to be taken in the Winfield Building, at Fortieth Street and Fifth Avenue. James W. Gerard is President.

In an address to the club members Jacob Wertheim said the Government was issuing books of thrift stamps similar to books of postage stamps, and that while members of the club were possibly more likely to invest in Liberty bonds than in saving stamps, they could do much good by tipping porters, waiters, bellboys, &c., with stamps.

W. H. Black New Assistant to Burr.

William Harman Black, recently Assistant District Attorney of New York County, was appointed yesterday special Assistant Corporation Counsel to succeed William McMurtrie Speer by Corporation Counsel Burr. Mr. Black will have charge of the legal proceedings in connection with Catskill Aqueduct matters. His salary will be $8,500 a year. Mr. Speer's salary was $12,000 a year. In making the appointment Mr. Burr stated that he had continued in this instance to follow his plan of curtailing the expenses of his department. He said that in every change in the staff where mandatory regulations did not prevent retrenchment had been effected in like manner.

as necessary and so far as consistent with the character and purposes of the reorganization, its present advisory agencies, but the ultimate decision of all questions, except the determination of prices, should rest always with the Chairman, the other members acting in a co-operative and advisory capacity. The further organization of advice I will indicate below.

In the determination of priorities of production, when it is not possible to have the full supply of any article that is needed produced at once, the Chairman should be assisted, and so far as practicable guided, by the present priorities organization or its equivalent.

In the determination of priorities of delivery, when they must be determined, he should be assisted when necessary, in addition to the present advisory priorities organization, by the advice and co-operation of a committee constituted for the purpose and consisting of official representatives of the Food Administration, the Fuel Administration, the Railway Administration, the Shipping Board, and the War Trade Board, in order that when a priority of delivery has been determined there may be common, consistent, and concerted action to carry it into effect.

Advisory Committee on Prices.

In the determination of prices the Chairman should be governed by the advice of a committee consisting, besides himself, of the members of the board immediately charged with the study of raw materials and of manufactured products, of the labor member of the board, of the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, the Chairman of the Tariff Commission, and the Fuel Administrator.

The Chairman should be constantly and systematically informed of all contracts, purchases, and deliveries, in order that he may have always before him a schematized analysis of the progress of business in the several supply divisions of the Government in all departments.

The duties of the Chairman are:

1. To act for the joint and several benefit of all the supply departments of the Government.

2. To let alone what is being successfully done and interfere as little as possible with the present normal processes of purchase and delivery in the several departments.

3. To guide and assist wherever the need for guidance or assistance may be revealed. For example, in the allocation of contracts, in obtaining access to materials in any way pre-empted, or in the disclosure of the sources of supply.

4. To determine what is to be done when there is any competitive or other conflict of interest between departments in the matter of supplies; for example, when there is not a sufficient immediate supply for all and there must be a decision as to priority of need or delivery, or when there is competition for the same sources of manufacture or supply, or when contracts have not been placed in such a way as to get advantage of the full productive capacity of the country.

5. To see that contracts and deliveries are followed up where such assistance as is indicated under (3) and (4) above has proved to be necessary.

6. To anticipate the prospective needs of the several supply departments of the Government and their feasible adjustment to the industry of the country as far in advance as possible, in order that as definite an outlook and opportunity for planning as possible may be afforded the business men of the country.

In brief, he should act as the general eye of all supply departments in the field of industry.

ADMITS SURPRISE BY FOE AT CAMBRAI

MIST FAVORED ASSAILANTS

Field Marshal's Report Says That This Concealed Their Movements from His Aviators.

LONDON, March 4, (Delayed.)—The War Office tonight made public a long dispatch from Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig covering the much-discussed battles on the Cambrai front last November. It relates in much detail how the operations were carried out, tells of the successes at first achieved, and alludes, quite as frankly, to the subsequent reverses which compelled a withdrawal from territory that had been captured, no blame being imputed to any one for this latter occurrence.

Discussing the reasons for the decision to attack on the Cambrai front, Field Marshal Haig says that the repeated assaults in Flanders had caused a weakening of the enemy's line elsewhere, and that of these weakened sectors that of Cambrai was deemed the most suitable for the surprise operation contemplated, the ground being favorable for the employment of tanks, the plan being to dispense with previous artillery preparation, which would have prevented secrecy, and depend instead on the tanks to smash their way through the enemy's wire.

"The enemy," writes the Field Marshal, "was laying out fresh lines of defense behind those which he had already completed on the Cambrai front, and it was to be expected his troops would be redistributed as soon as our pressure in Flanders relaxed. He had already brought large forces from Russia in exchange for divisions exhausted in the struggle in the western theatre, and it was practically certain that heavy reinforcements would be brought from the east to the west during the Winter.

"Against the arguments in favor of immediate action I had to weigh the fact that my own troops had been engaged many months in heavy fighting. The conditions of the struggle had greatly taxed their strength. Only a part of the losses of my divisions had been replaced, and many of the recently arrived draft were still far from being fully trained and included in the ranks of the armies."

Haig Had Planned Cavalry Raids.

Eventually the British commander decided in favor of immediate action.

"The infantry, the tanks, and the artillery, working in combination," he continues, "were to endeavor to break through all the enemy's lines of defense on the first day. If this were successfully accomplished and the situation developed favorably, cavalry were then to be passed through to raid the enemy's communications, disorganize his system of command, damage his railways, and interfere as much as possible with the arrival of reinforcements.

The attack, the Field Marshal notes, was started at 6:30 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 20. The spectacular successes which first attended it have been told in the correspondents' reports written at the time. It was on the last day of November that the triumph began to give way to disaster.

"At the northern end of the Bonavis Ridge and in the Gonnelieu sector," the commander relates, "the swiftness with which the advance of the enemy's infantry followed the opening of his bombardment appears to have overwhelmed our troops, both in the line and the immediate support, almost before they had realized the attack had begun. The nature of the bombardment, which seems to have been heavy enough to keep our men under cover without at first seriously alarming them, contributed to the success of the enemy's plans.

Admits a "Local Surprise."

"No steadily advancing barrage gave warning of the approach of the German assault columns, whose secret assembly was assisted by the many deep folds and hollows typical of the chalk formation, and was shielded from observation from the air by the early morning mist. It was only when the attack was upon them that great numbers of low-flying German airplanes rained machine-gun fire upon our infantry, while the extensive use of smoke shells and bombs made it extremely difficult for our troops to see what was happening on other parts of the battlefield, or to follow the movements of the enemy.

"In short, there is little doubt that, although an attack was expected generally, yet in these areas of the battle, at the moment of its delivery, the assault effected a local surprise."

"The strength the enemy had shown himself able to develop in his attacks made it evident that only by prolonged and severe fighting could I hope to re-establish my right flank on Bonavis Ridge. Unless this was done the situation of my troops in the salient north of Flesquières would be difficult and dangerous, even if our hold on Bourlon Hill were extended. I had therefore to decide either to embark on another offensive battle on a large scale or to withdraw to a more compact line on Flesquières Ridge.

"Although this decision involved the giving up of important positions most gallantly won, I had no doubt as to the correct course under the conditions."

Field Marshal Haig notes that the withdrawal was completed successfully without interference from the enemy on the morning of Dec. 7.

Says Cambrai Aided the Italians.

Summarizing the results of the three weeks' fighting, he says:

"There is little doubt that our operations were of considerable indirect assistance to the allied forces in Italy. Large demands were made upon the available German reserves at a time when a great concentration of German divisions was still being maintained in Flanders. There is evidence that German divisions intended for the Italian theatre were diverted to the Cambrai front, and it is probable that a further concentration of German forces against Italy was suspended for at least two weeks at a most critical period, when our allies were making their first stand on the Piave line."

Had Field Marshal Haig not met with a check which compelled him to abandon part of the captured territory, what he might have accomplished he thus discloses:

"My intentions as regards subsequent exploitation were to push westward and northwestward, taking the Hindenburg line in the reverse from Meuvres to the River Scarpe and capturing all the enemy's defenses and probably most of his garrisons lying west of a line from Cambrai northward to the Sensee and south of that river and the Scarpe.

"Time would have been required to enable us to develop and complete the operation, but the prospects of gaining the necessary time were, in my opinion, good enough to justify the attempt to execute the plan. I am of the opinion that on the 20th and 21st of November we went very near to success sufficiently complete to bring the realization of our full program within our power."

HAIG'S MEN CAPTURE PRISONERS AND GUNS

LONDON, March 5.—"Australian troops carried out a successful raid last night against the enemy positions at Warneton, capturing a number of prisoners and two machine guns," says the day War Office report. "A hostile party which attacked one of our posts in the same neighborhood was repulsed after sharp fighting.

"Yesterday afternoon our patrols brought in several prisoners south of St. Quentin."

Sharp fighting in the vicinity of Lens was reported in the official communication of last night. The statement reads:

> Under cover of considerable artillery bombardment at dawn today, a hostile raiding party attacked our trenches west of Lens. The attack was completely repulsed after sharp fighting wherein we captured a few prisoners. Many casualties were inflicted on the enemy during his withdrawal to his own lines.
>
> Another enemy party which approached our lines this morning northwest of St. Quentin, also was driven off successfully.

PARIS, March 4 (Delayed).—An official statement issued by the War Office tonight says:

> East of the Meuse we carried out, despite violent opposition, a surprise attack on a large scale against the enemy positions in the Calonne trenches. Our troops penetrated to the fourth German line on a front of 1,200 meters and attained an extreme depth of 600 meters at certain points. In the course of the attack the enemy counterattacked against our left flank. He was repulsed after a sharp fight in which he suffered heavy losses. The enemy lost a number of prisoners, 150 having been counted passing through our lines up to this time. We also brought back material. Our losses were extremely small.
> Northwest of Bézonvaux we repulsed an enemy surprise attack. In Upper Alsace the artillery activity was very great on several sectors. We checked an enemy attempt against our trenches east of Largitzen.

BERLIN, March 5, (via London.)—Increased fighting activity on the Lorraine front in Northern France and in the Central Vosges region is reported in today's Army Headquarters announcement.

EXPLAINS PICHON DELAY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 5.—There has been a great deal of speculation here about M. Pichon's revelation of the German telegram in July, 1914, relative to the surrender of Toul and Verdun. At the outset every one asked why the authorities had not made public before such damning proof of Germany's intention to force France into war.

The response was that the telegram was in a code which had only just been deciphered, the German code having been changed since 1911, when the Germans discovered that the French knew it at the time of Caillaux's secret negotiations with Germany over Morocco.

terranean had been more difficult. Losses there accounted for some 30 per cent. of merchant ships sunk, he said. The resources for combating the submarines in those waters were less adequate and the successes obtained less satisfactory, he declared.

It was becoming increasingly evident, the First Lord went on, that as the resources for combating the submarines improved it would be possible to turn attention more to the Mediterranean. He continued:

"I recently went to Rome for a meeting of the Allied Naval Committee and also inspected naval establishments in the Mediterranean, including those of the Greek Navy. British naval officers are assisting the Greeks in reorganization of their navy, which already is co-operating in the Mediterranean and rendering valuable service."

It was perhaps natural, he said, that co-operation between Great Britain and the United States should be extremely close. He said he wished publicly to pay tribute to the whole-hearted and generous devotion to prosecution of the war which governed the action of every representative of the United States Navy with whom they came into contact. The personnel of all ranks, he said, had the respect and esteem of the officers of the British Navy.

Concerning shipbuilding, he said there was no lack of materials at the present time, and that there were more men in the yards, but the output reached only 58,000 tons in January, although it should have been much larger. It was true, he said, that the weather was exceptionally bad, and also that January, owing to the holidays, always was a bad month for the output of ships. He expressed the opinion that February would be shown to have made nearly twice as good a record as January, although only about two-thirds of what the same yards had done previously with fewer men.

The Past That Makes The Present Possible

Year after year since 1851 the Western Union Telegraph Co. has gone ahead, growing in scope and public usefulness. Now it uses one million, five hundred thousand miles of wire—goes into twenty-six thousand cities, towns and hamlets—and gives work to fifty thousand employees.

Today under war conditions, thousands of our boys in khaki are safer, happier, better clothed, better housed and better equipped because there is such a thing as a world-wide telegraph system.

WOMEN BRING MEN VOTERS TO POLLS

MARK BALLOTS QUICKLY

Woman suffrage leaders predicted yesterday that because of the unprecedented vote cast by women in proportion to the number registered the Federal amendment would be speedily passed in Congress.

In contrast to their apathy during the registration period, women were the life of the election yesterday. With organizations in every election district, they drew to the polls 90.8 per cent. of the registered women. Approximately two women voted for every three men, although about four men were registered for every one woman.

Apparently the candidates for Congress and the Republican and Democratic leaders left the polling of laggard voters almost entirely to women. Male political workers were scarce and inactive. Scores of men were brought to the polls by women political workers.

Active in Getting Out Vote.

Far more interest was taken in the record which the women voters would be able to make than in the results of the election. Each election board took a special pride in the number of women they registered. They were active in helping women district captains and lieutenants to find the women who had not yet voted and they eagerly asked visitors how their record of women voters compared with that of other districts.

As a rule women went about their politics in a workmanlike, almost professional manner. It was an event out of the ordinary if a woman made a mistake in folding her ballot. Generally speaking, their handiwork in this particular was little better than that of the men, according to election officials.

After getting early returns from members of the suffragist organization in various districts, Mary Garrett Hay, Chairman of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, issued this statement:

> The woman voters of New York City who took part in the Congressional elections have fully justified the bestowal upon them of the franchise by the State of New York. They voted in large numbers, 90 per cent. of those who registered going to the polls and casting their ballots. They voted in a direct, businesslike way that won praise from the men inspectors. They voted intelligently, taking the trouble beforehand to possess themselves of enlightening information about the candidates for office. As voters casting their first votes, I am proud to say that they left little to be desired as to the way they assumed their political obligations.
>
> While comparisons are sometimes invidious, they are often illuminating. Of the men who registered in the four Congressional Districts, only 26 to 40 per cent. voted. Contrasted with the 90 per cent. standard set up by their sisters, this is a showing that justifies the prediction often made by suffragists during the campaign that women will make more conscientious voters than men. I believe that this is true, although I think that as time passes women in the East, like the women in the West, will inspire the indifferent men to take a greater interest in politics and to vote in greater numbers.
>
> The City Suffrage Party is much pleased with the way the women came out to vote and with the treatment accorded them. We wish to thank the political parties for appointing women watchers at the polls, and the Boards of Elections for the dignified and cordial way in which they met the new voters. I am sure that everywhere the women who voted feel that they have been welcomed into politics most courteously by their voting brothers. The leaders and captains of the Woman Suffrage Party did valiant work showing the women in the election districts where to vote and helping them in many ways. Altogether, I feel that March 5, 1918, will be a red letter day in the history of the woman's vote in New York State.

Baby Carriages at Polls.

Many of the polling places could be located at a distance yesterday by the squadron of baby buggies drawn up on the sidewalk on each side of them. After voting, women stayed at the polls in groups to talk over the experience. Often parties of them with buggies came to the polls, and pooled their children under the care of one of their number while the others went in to vote. At 78 Montague Street, Brooklyn, in a district where children are numerous, an entirely new rôle in New York politics was created by a number of women who spent the day doing nothing but watching the babies of women who voted.

Many boards had provided candy, flowers, or other souvenirs for their first women voters. The board at 1,701 Kings Highway, Brooklyn presented Mrs. Henry Beardsley of 1,549 East Nineteenth Street with a five-pound box of candy for being first in line when the polls opened at 6 o'clock, and her pretensions to being New York City's first voter are strenuously put forward by these election officials. One woman who voted in a bakery shop reversed the courtesy by buying half a dozen pies and presenting them to the Election Board.

One of the women voters who attracted interest yesterday was Mrs. Mamie Colvin, who was running for Congress on the Prohibition ticket in the Twenty-first District. She did not arrive at her polling place, in a stationery store at 4,227 Broadway, until 9:50 o'clock. She explained that she would have been there much earlier except that her progress had been impeded by photographers.

The oldest woman voter was Mrs. Sallie Gold of 25 Stagg Street, Brooklyn, who began her career as a citizen yesterday at the age of 102 years. She was slightly disappointed to learn that there was a woman in California who challenged her claim to be the oldest woman voter.

RESULT PLEASES MRS. BASS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Mrs. George Bass, Illinois' leading woman suffragist, discussing tonight the result of the election in New York said: "The news from New York is especially satisfactory because, while there is a general disposition in Congress among all members to vote for the necessary war measures, yet I am sure the President will welcome the election of men pledged to an enthusiastic and unstinted support of the policies of the Administration.

"I am much interested in the result, of course, on account of the part taken in it by the new voters. The registration of women was much higher in the Democratic wards than in any of the others, and I think this was because of the way in which women had been welcomed by Democrats into full political partnership. I think the Tammany management was especially astute in the way in which it threw open its clubs and its clubhouses and all of its facilities to the women. Speaking broadly, the Democratic Party management throughout the country has been most cordial and generous in its treatment of the women voters."

DEMOCRATS SWEEP ALL FOUR DISTRICTS

Republican. On the whole, however, the Socialists fared far worse than the Republicans.

The greatest interest in yesterday's election centred in how the women would vote, as it was the first time they had the privilege of the franchise in this State. The returns show that they took the fullest opportunity of their new powers. Of the 35,205 women who registered in order to vote at this election 31,958 marched to the polls. The percentage was far higher than that of the men, but this was expected, as male voters seldom take more than a casual interest in a by-election. Ordinarily, about 30 per cent. of the registered males turn out at a by-election. Yesterday 33.7 per cent. exercised their privilege. Of 136,866 men who registered last Fall and this Spring in the four districts where elections were held yesterday only 45,134 went to the polls. The percentage of registered women who voted yesterday was 90.8.

Woman Got Few Votes.

The Twenty-first District produced other surprises than the large Democratic plurality. In this district a woman, Mrs. Mamie Colvin, was running on the Prohibition ticket. A special drive was made to get the women voters to go to the polls and vote for her. The result was lamentable, for she polled only 382 votes in the entire district.

Representative-elect Donovan said last night that his election was an indorsement of President Wilson and his conduct of the war, as well as a rebuff to the Republicans. He said he was grateful to all his friends, and particularly to the women who so loyally supported him. He added that he would stand by the President in his desire for a speedy and successful termination of the war.

Mrs. Mamie Colvin, the Prohibition candidate, had this comment to make: "I was not disappointed in the outcome of the election, but I really felt as though I should have gotten more votes than I did. One thing I am grateful for is the splendid type of men, all of them, opposed to me. I met them all at our mass meeting a week ago at Corrigan's Hall in Harlem, and I was impressed with them. I was informed tonight that 90 per cent. of the women who registered voted. I am of the opinion that the most of the women who registered and voted were wives of politicians who had objects in having their wives vote. In all my campaign talks I particularly laid stress on the fact that I did not want a woman to vote for me because I was a member of her sex and I only desired the votes of those who favored the principles in my party's platform."

In the Twenty-second District the Socialists made a much better showing than in the Twenty-first. The Bronx section of this district, however, is heavily Socialist, and altogether 2,394 voted for Arthur F. Dieckman, their candidate. This was 211 more votes than the Republican candidate, Richard Furlong, obtained, Furlong's vote being 2,183. Anthony J. Griffin, the successful Democratic candidate, was formerly a State Senator. When he was informed of his election last night, Mr. Griffin said: "I have swept the district by 6,000 votes. It was a landslide for me. It means a majority in the House for the Democrats."

Socialists Are Jubilant.

Richard Furlong, the defeated Republican candidate, said

"Mr. Griffin has won hands down. I have nothing to say except that I was beaten by a better man and I bow to the will of the people. I believe, however, that the women gave me an equal share of their suffrage."

The Twenty-second District, while being normally Democratic, showed unexpected Democratic strength, ex-Senator Griffin's vote being 8,331, as compared to 2,183 cast for the Republican candidate. As in every other district, the women turned out en masse. Only 197 women who registered failed to take advantage of their new franchise rights. In the district 5,677 women registered last month and 5,480 women voted at the polls yesterday.

In the two Brooklyn districts the Democrats had no difficulty in electing their candidates, despite the fact that the Eighth District had been reapportioned by the Republicans with the view of making it easier for them. John J. Delaney, the Democratic candidate, beat his Republican opponent, John S. Gaynor, by 3,166 plurality. Although the district takes in part of Williamsburg, the Socialist vote was comparatively small, Alexander Fraser, the party's candidate, polling 1,805 votes. In both Brooklyn districts the women made fully as good a showing as those in Manhattan. In the Seventh District 7,744 women registered and 7,095 voted yesterday. Last Fall and last month 29,150 men registered, and yesterday but 12,086 voted.

In the Eighth District William E. Cleary, the Democratic candidate, had an easy victory over Wilmot L. Morehouse, his Republican opponent, his plurality being 4,744. The Socialists did but a trifle better than in the Seventh District, their total vote being 1,879. Part of this district includes Brownsville, supposed to be strongly Socialist.

John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader of Brooklyn, said last night that yesterday's vote indicated that the gerrymandering of the districts by the Republicans in order to embarrass President Wilson had failed dismally.

"The women came out surprisingly strong, almost up to their registration," he said. "It shows that they are entthusiastic and earnest over the franchise conferred upon them and the majority of them are with the Democratic party, standing firmly behind President Wilson in the war crisis."

Jacob A. Livingston, the Republican leader of Brooklyn, said:

"According to the enrollment, both the Seventh and Eighth districts are Democratic. When the Republicans reapportioned them, they never expected to make them Republican. As expected, the women proved to be a determining factor. Naturally, they have more time to vote than the men during the time the polls are open."

It is estimated that yesterday's elections cost the taxpayers in the neighborhood of $200,000.

DEMOCRATS LEAD IN HOUSE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The election of four Democratic Congressmen today in New York districts is viewed here by Democratic leaders as indicative of popular approval of the policies of President Wilson. By the return of Democrats from these normally Democratic districts, the hold of the Democrats on the House is strengthened. By a peculiar condition of affairs, existing for the last few months, the Republicans nominally had a plurality in the House, due to six vacancies existing in Democratic districts—four in New York, one in Ohio, and one in Illinois. The political complexion of the House stood Democrats, 211; Republicans, 212; Independents, 6; vacancies, 6. The vote of the independents was divided equally between the two parties.

TILLMAN TO RUN AGAIN.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Senator Tillman of South Carolina, veteran Democrat of the Senate and Chairman of the Naval Committee, announced tonight his candidacy for a fifth term. He said the entrance of the United States into the war had so changed the situation since his announcement before the 1914 primaries that he would not again seek to succeed himself, that he now believed he could best serve his State and the nation by continuing in the Senate.

Only One Flower Poses on This Beautiful Hat, Brought Into Existence by Lewis, of Paris
What Lewis lacks in flowers he makes up in the coquetry of a long width of Malines Veiling swathed harem-fashion about the face.
But this is not the only Lewis motif shown in GIMBEL Millinery from Paris.
Copies and Adaptations of Paris Creations Range from $8.75 to $22.50
Styles run from little close-fitting hats to larger ones suggestive of the picture hats, which assume so many names. Materials include straws, hair braid, malines streamers, flowers, ostrich and ribbons. A very prosaic description for a very poetic lot of fabrics and accessories just brought from Paris.
Choosing at random from these tempting Chapeaux here's a black lisere straw worked out with black satin and wings arranged coronet-fashion across the front—and mercury-fashion at each side. Very chic, and modestly priced, $8.75. Others up to $27.50.
No end of black straws of various sorts garnished with beautiful ribbons in pink or blue. The brims are flower-ladened and overlaid with chiffon, georgette or other transparent exquisite fabrics, and underlined with color, too! A meager description for such youthful, attractive covers for silken locks. Price, too, is meager, for it is around $8.75 each.
And another, a great flat of pink—"old pink"—milan hemp, made lovely by "old blue" satin leaves and flowers, laid flat like Persian arabesques on crown and brim. A navy blue malines veil superimposes itself on the crown and back and floats off quite two yards or more, to slip caressingly back and harem-veil a rosy face. Blue faces the great pink flat, and you wonder—can it be only $14.75 when you see so much art and so much beauty wrought in one!
See GIMBEL Millinery. Each a careful examination.

ROOSEVELT EXPECTS SOON TO BE FIT AGAIN

Will Rest Two or Three Months, Except for Maine Republican Convention Address.

PLANS TO RESUME WRITING

Tells of His Hospital Reading and Promises to be Careful for Three Weeks.

His recent illness, which cost Colonel Roosevelt the permanent loss of hearing in his left ear and impaired, for the time, at least, his power to maintain equilibrium, is not going to curtail his activities toward speeding up America for the war, he said yesterday afternoon in the first interview he has given since he went to the hospital a month ago.

The Colonel declined to discuss either politics or the war. He did, however, praise the selection of Will H. Hays as Republican Chairman.

"I was exceedingly pleased that Mr. Hays was chosen," he said, "and I think he has taken precisely the proper attitude."

He discussed his illness freely. "You really never know anything about a severe disease," he said, "until some one intimately connected with you has it. I never heard of a middle ear, for example, except to know in a remote sort of way that there was such an organ, so I could not understand how an operation on it was going to affect me. I have no trouble whatever walking along slowly so long as I keep my mind fixed on the walking. But if I turn around suddenly or chance to look up and forget I am walking, the chances are that I will stop walking and land on my head.

"This will not last very long," the Colonel continued. "The doctors tell me that in a week or so the muscles in the ear will accustom themselves to the changed conditions and that I will have no more trouble."

Colonel Roosevelt sat forward in his chair as he talked, and appeared to hear as well as ever. "Will your condition curtail your activities?" he was asked.

"No," he said, "I am going to be especially careful for the next three weeks. You see, I have undergone some pretty severe operations, and I want to be in good shape to speak at the Maine convention. After that I am going to take life fairly easy for a month or so, but by June 1 I expect to be fit to keep all my engagements, and to continue along the lines I was pursuing when I was taken ill."

Colonel Roosevelt said he was going to leave the Langdon for Oyster Bay in the near future, just as soon as his physicians gave him leave. He was asked whether he had read much while in the hospital.

"The last two weeks I kept up pretty well with current events," he said. "Before that the news did not interest me much. I read a good many books, covering a good many subjects."

SUFFERING IN PALESTINE.

More Than Half the Jewish Population Dead of Famine and Disease.

The Palestine Restoration Fund has received a message through British Government sources indicating the sufferings undergone by the people of Jerusalem. The message says:

"More than half of the Jewish population of Jerusalem have died of famine and pestilence, and the remaining 30,000 look little better than living corpses. The morale, however, is excellent and everybody is happy, despite three years of acute suffering.

"Corn is scarce and dear and other commodities are practically nonexistent. British soldiers are admired by all for their generosity to the poor, among whom they often distribute their own rations, and the British authorities are doing their best to feed the population."

Israel Friedlander, of the Faculty of the Jewish Theological Seminary, has been commissioned by the American Red Cross with rank of Major, to head a number of delegates who will visit Palestine to look after the needs of the sufferers in that region. They will start soon.

SIXTY INOCULATED IN TEST.

Americans Volunteer in Search for Trench Fever Parasite.

PARIS, March 5.—Sixty enlisted men of the United States Sanitary Corps, all from New England, are now serving as hosts to normal or infected lice, or have received injections of blood from soldiers known to have been suffering from trench fever. They are quartered in a British base hospital, where the American Red Cross is using them for an investigation of trench fever, which is new since the war began.

The organism producing the fever has not yet been discovered by microscope, although the malady heads the fevers among the British troops at the front and stands second in the list of those causing the greatest wastage. The disease is not fatal, but it means an absence of six to eight weeks from the ranks.

PRESIDENT EXPUNGES REFLECTION ON JEWS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—President Wilson has ordered the excision from a public document issued under the imprint of the Government of a sentence which carried a reflection on the Jews of the United States. The sentence also carried reflection upon foreign-born persons in this country subject to the draft.

The sentence in question was: "The foreign born, and especially Jews, are more apt to malinger than the native born." Through some inadvertence this sentence was allowed to creep into the manual of instructions sent to medical advisory boards on Feb. 16.

Protests against this language have been received by the War Department from persons of Jewish faith and from Jewish newspapers. As soon as President Wilson's attention was brought to the matter, he wrote a letter expressing his distress over what had happened and ordered the excision of the sentence.

Tonight the following statement was authorized by the War Department:

"Through inadvertence there appeared in form 64 from the office of the Provost Marshal General, containing a manual of instructions for Medical Advisory Boards, the following language: 'The foreign born, and especially Jews, are more apt to malinger than the native born.' The attention of the President and the Acting Secretary of War has been called to this language, and the President has written the following letter, under date of March 4, to the Acting Secretary of War:

I am very much distressed that the sentence quoted in the inclosed telegram should have been contained in the draft instructions to the Medical Advisory boards. They, of course, represent a view absolutely contrary to that of the Administration and express a prejudice which ought never to have been expressed or entertained. In all of this I am sure you will agree with me, and I hope that you will be kind enough to make an immediate excision of these sentences and instruct the Medical Advisory boards accordingly, letting it be known, if you will be kind enough, to the senders of the inclosed telegram that you have done so.

I am making this request with all the greater confidence because I am sure you will sympathize with my point of view in the matter.

WOODROW WILSON.

ARMY TO TRANSFER ALIENS.

Men of Enemy Nationality Will Go to Insular Posts.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Officers and men in the army who are of enemy nationality, but of whose loyalty there is no question, will not be permitted to serve on the battle fronts, but will be detailed to insular posts when their regiments are ordered to France. The War Department has adopted for the treatment of such cases a policy of sending the men to duty in insular possessions, releasing men in the regiments there who can be sent to France.

Avoid criminal waste

It would be almost as harmful to our war necessities to allow needless city horses to devour the nation's grain supplies, as to allow flames to devour them.

Every time you feed a team of city delivery horses you use grain needed for winning the war. Grain for horse feed, when it is badly needed for the table and the trench. Grain that these horses would be helping to produce if they were out on the farm where they belong.

G·V·Electric Trucks

In hard, short-haul city traffic the G. V. moves greater tonnage at less expense than either horses or gas trucks.

Grain for feeding horses is getting scarcer and more expensive. Gasoline for running gas trucks is getting scarcer and more expensive. BUT electricity for charging the G. V. is cheap and getting cheaper.

Ask today for the G. V. Catalogue, and get thoroughly familiar with G. V. economies and efficiency.

"Knights" Win War's Motor Test

Never has an automobile engine been put to more extreme demands than have been imposed upon the Knight engine in war service.

Never has an automobile engine triumphed as has the Knight engine in the Herculean war tasks imposed upon it.

The British selected the Knight-motored omnibuses for tremendous transportation tasks.

Then came the tank!

Again the Knight was selected.

In the tanks it has the greatest latitude to prove its resourcefulness, supreme quietness and complete dependability.

In America 25,000 owners of Willys-Knight cars enjoy this same high standard of efficiency.

Why not you?

The absence of noise and vibration of the Willys-Knight motor has exerted a refining coach influence, because its silence severely emphasizes the slightest body noises.

The great number of Willys-Knight sales makes it possible to place this more efficient car (with the only motor that improves with use) on the market at an exceptionally modest cost.

GREENHUT'S TO QUIT; WILL PAY ALL DEBTS

Big Department Store Says Discontinuance Is Due to General Business Conditions.

STOCK OFFERED AT RETAIL

Directors Decide to Liquidate Rather Than Attempt to Rebuild Trade Further Uptown.

The Greenhut Company, Inc., which for many years has conducted a big department store on the east side of Sixth Avenue, extending from Eighteenth to Nineteenth Street, announced last night that it will quit business. According to the statement of Benedict J. Greenhut, President of the company, it is fully solvent, and not only will liquidate promptly all its obligations, but will have left a substantial surplus for distribution among its stockholders, most of whom are members of the Greenhut family. The merchandise stock is to be disposed of at a series of retail sales, details of which, according to the official statement, are to be announced within a few days.

The foremost reason assigned by the company's members for discontinuing business was the change, from a retail merchandizing point of view, of a district not many years ago the centre of the city's dry goods and department store business. Added to this, they explained, was the unpropitiousness of the present war time for making such a business venture by following in the wake of other department stores and attempting to establish a new trade uptown.

Rather than attempt to build anew uptown the officers and Directors of the concern decided to liquidate now because the district where the store is located is developing rapidly in a new business direction. The war-time demand for loft space for the manufacture of uniforms and other military paraphernalia, is, it was said, filling up the big structures in the neighborhood which long stood idle. The opportunity to rent the "Big Store" for such purposes, therefore, was the deciding factor in the decision to suspend business.

Statement by Greenhut.

> It has been determined to discontinue the business of Greenhut Company. In arriving at this decision, the Board of Directors has been influenced by considerations based on special conditions affecting this business, and also upon business conditions generally. In connection with the discontinuance of the business, the entire stock of merchandise will be disposed of at retail as speedily as possible. Preparations are now being made for a series of special sales. Full details of such liquidation sales will hereafter be given in daily newspaper advertisements.
> All creditors will be promptly paid in full, and all obligations of the company of every kind will be met. There will be a substantial surplus remaining on hand for distribution among the stockholders of the company.

The real estate occupied by the Greenhut store is not in itself affected by the action, according to Benjamin G. Paskus, attorney for the corporation. The real estate holdings were taken over by the Big Store Realty Corporation in 1915 at the time the firm was reorganized after passing through receivership. The officers of this corporation, practically identical with those of the Greenhut Company, are J. B. Greenhut, President; B. J. Greenhut, Vice-President; and N. W. Greenhut, Treasurer. It is capitalized at $300,000 and took over the old company's real estate holdings, assessed at between $4,000 and $5,000. Most of the plot back of Sixth Avenue and extending almost half way to Seventh Avenue is owned outright, while a part of the frontage belongs to William Waldorf Astor and to the John Tonnele estate. These parts are held on long leaseholds.

Mr. Paskus said the realty company would continue in business and would devote itself to disposing of the rental of the property for the new uses for which there is much demand for space in that neighborhood at the present time. It could not be learned last night that any definite arrangements for the disposition of the property were being made. It was pointed out that the retail dissemination of big mercantile stocks would occupy several months, at the end of which time there would be an inevitable residue to be realized upon in some other manner. For that reason the exact date when the last of the big department stores would disappear from that district was uncertain.

Incorporated in 1915.

The present Greenhut Company was incorporated in New York State Sept. 2, 1915, and purchased the property of the J. B. Greenhut Company, sold at foreclosure sale on Aug. 18 of that year, after the old company had reached a settlement with its creditors. It was capitalized at $7,625,000, of which all but $125,000 was preferred stock of a par value of $10 a share. The preferred stock was divided into two classes, the first of which under the terms of incorporation was entitled to 6 per cent. cumulative dividends and the second to 6 per cent. non-cumulative. The Directors are J. B. Greenhut, B. J. Greenhut, N. W. Greenhut, E. H. Wolfner, J. G. Cohen, Jerome Siegel, Charles A. Cooper, Leo Schlesinger, Eugene F. E. Jung, Edwin L. Meyers, and J. T. Neff. The officers are B. J. Greenhut, President; E. R. Wolfner, Vice President; N. W. Greenhut, Secretary and Treasurer, and J. G. Cohen, Assistant Secretary and Treasurer.

In the absence last night of B. J. Greenhut, the President, Captain Joseph B. Greenhut, Chairman of the Board of Directors, said:

"The failure of other big stores in this vicinity, and the removal of others, gave the neighborhood a 'black eye' for the department store business. There was the Claflin snarl and the Henry Siegel failure, and the whole chain of reorganizations and discontinuances which ensued. As one after another big concerns quit or moved away we were left high and dry to fight the fight alone. We found the neighborhood pretty well destroyed as a shopping centre, and we suffered much for the misfortunes of others.

Business people who are familiar with conditions will not be greatly surprised. We knew they had a feeling that we could not carry out our plan of making things go here, but of course we could not foresee the entrance of this country into the war and the chain of business consequences. People are not buying as they once did—they are economizing and retrenching, and we, off the beaten path, were hit harder than others.

"So we were confronted with the alternative of ceasing our business or of moving uptown. There were several factors which decided us against the latter. To begin with, there was no available uptown location that could have been had immediately, and the construction of quarters big enough to carry on a modern department store business would have taken too long, particularly under present labor and material conditions. All the general business conditions of these times pointed to the inadvisability of such a radical venture. Business men generally recognize that this is not the moment for starting big new enterprises.

"I do not know the plans of all the members of the concern. As for me, I am 75 years old and I think I have worked hard enough. So far as my two sons are concerned, they still are young men, and I do not doubt that they will engage again in an enterprise of some sort."

Asked about the relation of the present corporation to the old one, and whether creditors of the old firm had any claim upon the solvent concern now about to liquidate. Attorney Paskus said the old obligations were wiped out absolutely at the time of the formation of the present business, and that the corporation, under the terms of settlement with the creditors, took over none of the debts of the former business. The present debts, he said, are the ordinary ones of any going mercantile concern. The assets, he said, consisted largely of merchandise stocks and bills receivable, the latter small in proportion to the whole. The assets of the separate realty corporation, he added, would not be touched in any way in liquidating the affairs of the department store.

NEW YORK LED IN THE LOAN.

Sent In Nearly a Third of the Country's Subscriptions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—New York led in patriotic support of the second Liberty Loan. When the rest of the country had finished subscribing and there was a wide gap between the total purchases and the $3,000,000,000 to be sold, the Empire State came to the front with a total of $1,413,045,800, which not only made the loan a success by completing the total sum to be sold, but went far toward the oversubscription which was allotted by Secretary McAdoo to the amount of over $800,000,000. Pennsylvania came second with a subscription of $497,372,550, Massachusetts third with $317,799,250, and Illinois fourth with $271,731,750.

The total subscriptions to the loan amounted to $4,617,532,300, but owing to certain subscriptions being reported in bulk without allocation by States, the total of the State subscription list shows $4,565,915,850.

WILSON ASKS TITLE TO GERMAN PIERS

SENATORS SEEK REASON

Request Held Up in Committee, Pending Reply—Palmer Explains Sales of Enemy Property.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Action on a request by President Wilson today for legislation authorizing him to acquire for the Government complete legal title to the German-owned piers of the North German Lloyd and Hamburg-American steamship lines at Hoboken, N. J., was postponed until tomorrow by the Senate Appropriations Committee because some of the members insisted upon knowing the reason for the proposed action.

Several Democratic and Republican Senators joined in opposition to granting the request until the Administration should submit reasons for acquiring the extensive German properties, with an estimate of cost. Some members expressed fear that the step might commit the Government to permanent shipping ownership and operation.

The President called Senator Martin of Virginia, Democratic leader and Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, to the White House early today and asked for the legislation. Later he sent by a personal messenger the draft of an amendment to the billion-dollar Urgent Deficiency Appropriation bill authorizing acquisition of the docking facilities by condemnation or otherwise.

A lively dispute in the committee followed, and it was decided to hear a representative of the Administration on the subject tomorrow.

A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, in a statement issued today, said there was no contemplation on the part of his office to sell enemy property in this country, except where concerns were being liquidated under license by the War Trade Board.

An amendment to the pending Urgent Deficiency Appropriation bill to give the Custodian larger powers for the disposition of property was offered in the Senate today.

M'ADOO REBUKES IDE; SUGGESTS A DEBATE

Very Happy to Meet Propaganda Against War Risk Bureau if One Is Beginning.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The article contributed to THE NEW YORK TIMES of last Sunday by George E. Ide, President of the Home Life Insurance Company, in which the administration of the war risk project was described as being confused and the dispatch of business disorganized with accounts far behind, payments delayed, and in some cases duplicated, has drawn from Secretary McAdoo a challenge to Mr. Ide to debate the merits of the war risk plan and the operations of the Government's War Risk Bureau. He made public today the following letter which he had sent to Mr. Ide:

> Treasury Department,
> Washington, D. C.
>
> My dear Mr. Ide: I observe an article in THE NEW YORK TIMES of March 3, 1918, by yourself and in which you are described as "Chairman of Committee of Insurance Men appointed by Treasury Department." I have no objection to any propaganda you may engage in nor to any criticisms you may make of the work of the War Risk Insurance Bureau, but I cannot permit you to represent yourself as "Chairman of a committee of insurance men appointed by Treasury Department," because it is not the fact. The committee I appointed and of which you were made Chairman was for the specific purpose of submitting your views about the legislation at the time it was pending. This committee is functus officio and has no status whatever in connection with the Treasury. I shall be obliged to make a public announcement to this effect.
> It is not necessary for me to comment upon the erroneous statements and observations of your article. If a propaganda against the War Risk Insurance Bureau is beginning, I shall be very happy to meet it. Such a propaganda may produce many beneficial effects in widening the field of the War Risk Insurance Bureau's activities.
>
> Sincerely yours,
> W. G. McADOO.
> George E. Ide, Esq., President Home Life Insurance Company, New York, N. Y.

Mr. Ide was named by Secretary McAdoo as Chairman of a committee of life insurance men when the preliminary conferences were held in Washington to consider the whole plan of life insurance, injury compensation, and benefits with a view to providing generously for the men who go to the front and to prevent the establishment at the close of the present war of a vast pension system. The committee acted entirely in an advisory capacity.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6, 1918.

BACK OF THE PRESIDENT.

New York City can be counted on to stand by the President and the war. That much stands out from the returns of the Congress elections held in four districts yesterday. They are districts that contain all kinds of populations, and they are in three boroughs: two of them in Brooklyn, one in Manhattan, one in the Bronx and a part of Manhattan. There could not be any fairer kind of test vote. No questions of State or city politics came in to confuse the issue; it was whether to elect Congressmen who would stand by the President and the war or not. What was the result?

In every district a Democrat was elected, in spite of the fact that one of the districts, the Twenty-first or Washington Heights district, was counted as Republican. There is no doubt that Mr. Donovan was elected by Republican votes in this district. Those Republicans who voted for him did not in the least question the sincerity of his Republican opponent, Mr. Bolles, who had promised to stand by the Administration; but they were determined, while they were about the job of standing by the President, to do it in the most emphatic way possible.

In the Twenty-second or Bronx district the Socialists outnumbered the Republicans, casting 2,394 votes, as against only 2,183 received by the latter. On the other hand, the Democratic candidate, Mr. Griffin, received 8,331 votes, a plurality of 5,937 over the Socialist and a majority over both the Socialist and Republican candidates of 3,754. It is evident that in this district, as in the Twenty-first, many Republicans voted for the Democratic candidate, not because they questioned Mr. Furlong's sincerity in offering to stand by the President, but for the purpose of making their support of the Administration tell in the most thorough and resounding way.

In the Eighth District, which includes Coney Island, Bay Ridge, and Canarsie, the Republicans believed they had a chance; it had been mapped by the Legislature so as to give them one. But in that district the Democratic candidate had 12,538 votes, as against 7,794 for the Republican and 1,879 for the Socialist. Again it is evident that Republicans voted for the Democratic candidate.

The idea that women would vote as women and not as Republicans, Democrats, and Socialists receives no encouragement from this election. In the Twenty-first District there was a woman candidate, Mrs. Colvin. She was running on the Prohibition ticket, and the women voters of that district were urgently appealed to for support. They received more campaign literature in behalf of Mrs. Colvin than in behalf of any other candidate, and it was expected that she would get a considerable vote. There was also a negro candidate, Reverdy C. Ransom, who was denied a place on the ballot because his petition was defective. Any negro who wished to vote for Ransom had to write his name in, which is always a deadly blow to any candidacy. Yet Ransom, who was not on the ballot, received 465 votes, and Mrs. Colvin, who was on the ballot and in whose behalf special efforts had been made to reach the women, received only 382. This result is highly complimentary to the intelligence and good citizenship of the women voters in that district.

In a by-election like this it is of no use to expect a large vote. About one-third of the men entitled to vote voted; about one-third of the women entitled to vote voted. Honors are easy between the sexes. The women seem to have divided on the same lines as the men, and for the same reasons.

The outlook for the Republicans in next Fall's election is not particularly happy. This election is a straw, and what it shows is that the wind is blowing strongly in the direction of a thoroughgoing, out-and-out support of the President that will inure to the advantage of the Democratic candidates; not in the least that there is any complaint of the loyalty of Republicans, but that it is the surest way to make support of the President count. As one woman voter, ordinarily Republican, put it yesterday, "I "know that Mr. Bolles will support "the President when the roll call is "taken on a bill, but Mr. Donovan "will support him as soon as the bill "is introduced"; and against that spirit campaign oratory will spend itself in vain.

Meanwhile the City of New York sends its compliments to Wisconsin, whose Senatorial election comes on April 2. We have stood up and been counted, and may the result hearten the loyal men who are making the same fight out there.

LORD LANSDOWNE AGAIN.

Lord Lansdowne, in his latest letter, makes it plain that what he is anxious for is that the war should be suspended as soon as possible, so that the belligerents may get around a table and try to reach mutually satisfactory disposals of the various territories which, to his mind, seem the only things in dispute. He is urgent that as soon as possible the nations begin their repetition of the dickering which seems to him inevitable because that is the way in which wars have ended before. To any moral principle in dispute, to any question of preserving the world's liberty, he seems to be, but we must hope he is not, indifferent.

He regards the time for such a conference as opportune because of Chancellor von Hertling's bland assurances that he approves of President Wilson's four principles as a basis of discussion. Lord Lansdowne's hearing is wonderfully acute, but his eyesight is bad. He can hear everything that Germany says, but he cannot see a thing that she is doing. Von Hertling's words fall soothingly on his ears, but his eyes are blind to Hindenburg's acts. It is strange, for the two things accompany each other; while von Hertling talks Hindenburg acts. "President Wilson's four principles would be a satisfactory basis," says von Hertling, while simultaneously Hindenburg lands an army in Finland and throws Transcaucasia into the arms of Turkey. "Of course we will evacuate Belgium," says von Hertling, while simultaneously the men of action go remorselessly ahead with their program of cutting Belgium into two provinces and imprisoning the gallant Belgians who protest.

Is Lord Lansdowne unable to read anything in the newspapers except the things that Germany says? Does some domestic censor black out, before he gets his morning paper, every item of news describing the things that Germany does? Is he in a mental state in which he believes everything that anybody tells him without regard to the evidence? Nobody will believe any such thing. Lord Lansdowne is in full possession of his faculties. He knows what Germany is doing as well as what Germany says. But he is anxious to end the war without calling Germany to too strict an account, and when he "makes believe" that he believes what she says, he is merely trying to attain those purposes.

INFLATION OR CONTRACTION?

The dividend statement of The Journal of Commerce for this month shows new maximum payments of dividends and interest. The increase is in the interest. Dividends alone show a decrease for industrials and railways alike. The changes are not large, but they are significant. Expenses have overtaken earnings, and it is necessary to choose between reducing expenses and increasing income in one way or another. The alternative is contraction by means of reorganization of finances, so as to reduce interest payments. It is undesirable to reduce wage payments except in cases of extortion, and it is not practicable to reduce other costs in wartime. Between reduction of capital and increase of prices it is easy to make a choice dependent on the merits and facts of particular cases. If the capital is fictitious, it may be reduced with beneficial results. So far as it is merely printed, and represents neither investment of resources nor good management, there is nothing to be gained by keeping it alive. But if the capital is real, as proved by services rendered, the wiping of it out will mean a reduction of service and of credit not in the public interest.

The tremendous services of our railways and public utilities of all sorts are on the record. There is no merit in the proposal to refuse them support on the plea that it is inflationary. If the inflation of their costs could be stopped, it would not be necessary to approve the inflation of their prices. But the two things go together. It is not possible to regulate one and neglect the other without producing conditions worse than the name given to one process and withheld from the other. Inflation of wages, rates, and all costs is related as inseparably as contraction of the same factors. Contraction by bankruptcy is the alternative of regulating one set without regulating the other. The thing is what counts, not the name. Everybody on principle is against either inflation or contraction or the inevitable alternative to either. Most are in favor of what suits their particular case, without regard to the general good. The facts show whether any particular case is consistent with the general interest or opposed to it, and the facts interpreted in a detached frame of mind should control.

We are in a new period and should be guided rather by judgment than by experience. Precedents are useful when the exact case recurs, but are misleading when the case is different. What is novel in this case is the regulation of one set of economic factors by laws passed by Legislatures, while the other set of factors is allowed free play. It is humane to raise wages, but it is "inflationary" to raise interest or rates. They will go up and down together, regardless of the adjectives. Neither capital nor labor can profit permanently by discrimination in their favor, or by trick and device. Service is the test for fair pay for either. If the service is rendered, the pay should correspond. If the service is not given, the pay not only should be withheld, but must be, for neither interest nor wages can be produced without service. The fair employer and the faithful worker are an unbeatable pair. The inefficient worker and the extortionate employer are not their match, and are doomed under modern conditions.

GERMAN FINANCES AND WAR AIMS.

Germany is beginning to think about her debt. Even her leading statesmen and financiers now see that the total is unmanageable in either peace or war. The former Vice Chancellor, Count von Posadowsky-Wehner, puts it at thirty billion dollars, or more than twenty-four-fold the pre-war total. In fact, the excess above what the President of the Reichsbank thought an unendurable maximum is fivefold the pre-war debt. The interest charge is still less than the pre-war savings from total national income, but, if the shrinkage due to the war should be deducted, it may be doubted that Germany's taxing power can find the interest. But this is only one of Germany's war troubles. In 1917 the Prussian railways had a deficit of a billion marks, and were in such a state of deterioration that they were becoming unequal to war demands. For this year the railway deficit is put at two billion marks, and the imperial railways "will have to take a few doz-"ens of millions of marks from the "State," according to the statement of the Prussian Minister of Finances.

Taking the European belligerents together, their aggregate pre-war debts of about twenty-three billion dollars have risen to about one hundred and twenty-seven billions. More than a third of their total wealth has been fought away, and they are burdened with currency increased eight or ten fold, which is more burdensome than the interest-bearing debt. Germany's condition in these respects is not peculiar, but it is unique in the fact that Germany has hitherto made no provision for the future. She has borrowed even to meet some portion of current interest charges, although other nations have provided by taxation for all interest and for a sinking fund contribution. Germany's intention has been to make the war pay for its cost. War is business with Germany in a sense that it is not with any other nation. Territory and trade are the object of Germany's wars. When she conquers a people she conquers their commerce, and "ties" it to her in a manner which is worse than that condemned by our courts when practiced by our conspiracies in restraint of trade. The indemnity paid to Germany by France turned Germany's head, and she sought another in this war. There are scores of expressions to that effect by her statesmen, editors, legislators, and public writers quoted in the documents circulated by our Government.

One utterance of application to the news of the day gains significance from the fact that it was made when it was not imagined by others that Russia would be laid open to the enemy by its Bolsheviki: "The Russian "south is the granary, the coalpit, "and the mine of the Russian Empire. "That is to strike Russia in her vitals. "Russia must be thrust back from the "Black Sea." Other nations fight wars for military victory. Germany fights for loot, not for the defense of the Fatherland. The fact that Germany fights on enemies' soil is proof that she is the aggressor. Her military successes are her moral condemnation. We learn from an official circular that "industrial productive "powers, the acquisition of colonies "and of securities, are therefore the "industrial purposes of the war." The reference to "securities" is to the twenty billions of marks in securities which should form part of the thirty billions of indemnity "simply to reimburse us for our war costs." The other ten billions were to be made up of two billions in gold and six or eight billions in exchange, the gold to bolster German internal finances and the exchange to be used for the purchase of material for the factories after the war. This is the picture which the leaders of German thought hold up before the Germans; it explains why they are loyal to their Kaiser. He makes money for them and keeps them from repining over their hardships by not taxing them, promising instead to loot their enemies. That rallies the Germans until they pawn their furniture and give their jewelry while their enemies respond to summonses to the colors for the defense of ethical and political principles.

Germany's enemies have only thought of taking from her what she has previously taken by the sword, "with the help of God." Their thought of indemnity is only as punishment for wrongs done. Not one of our cobelligerents has sought payment from Germany as capital in trade, or has thought of annexing hostile peoples to be made loyal subjects by force. Germany does not proportion her indemnities to the wrongs done her, but to the profits which she needs and to her "war costs." It would be fitting that she should bear the world's war costs, as a fine for her breach of all laws of God and man. Over and over again representative Germans have spoken of the "profit" of this war. It is impossible that there should be any profit above the cost. It is particularly impossible that profit should be allowed Germany. Her growing perception that she must bear her own war costs is a proof of her desperation, so convincingly argued by Professor Ladd in The Times Sunday Magazine. "World power or downfall" is Germany's rallying cry, according to Bernhardi.

THE EMPIRE DIVISION.

Thirty-one thousand hard-working men in uniform in the "up-country" of South Carolina between the Broad and Saluda Rivers are wondering when the call will come to them to go "over there." They have had six months and more of training, much of it intensive. They have marched and countermarched many hundreds of miles; they have dug trenches enough for a city's foundations; they have shot away cartridges and shells by the thousand; they have punctured dummies to rags with their bayonets; they have fought the enemy across No Man's Land and repulsed him with heavy losses; they have listened in trenches all night long for raiders; they have gassed and been gassed; and how tired they are of waiting to go "over there"!

If reorganization can make the Empire Division ready for the front after the toil and moil of training and discipline in snow and rain and mud, the last touch has been put to its preparation. The Empire is certainly the most reorganized division in America. The weak and the unfit have been weeded out, and units have been assembled to bring the division up to the highest state of efficiency. It should be the best fighting division the National Guard has ever known, and yet it tarries while Spring is coming up to the Piedmont Plateau. The Empire is not only trained to the hour in the school of the soldier and in all the devices and stratagems of trench warfare, but its physical fitness is the admiration of every visitor to the camp.

As long ago as Nov. 2 Governor Whitman reviewed the 27th Division, (it prefers to be called the Empire,) and he declared that the march past of the ranks, infantry, cavalry, artillery, engineers, ammunition and supply trains, 31,000 strong, was the most impressive thing he had ever seen. A month later Senator Wadsworth spent three days at Spartanburg. He had previously visited four other camps, and he said of the 27th:

> I find it hard to speak of the division or the camp without running into superlatives, but my impressions are so decidedly favorable that I guess superlatives are the only things that do the subject justice.

That was more than three months ago. In the interval the Empire Division has drilled, shot, bayoneted, bombed, and gassed as indefatigably as ever, and it must be as perfect as human hands and lungs can make it. Even Brig. Gen. H. H. Bandholtz of the regular army, who used to command the Philippine Scouts, and who has just been assigned to an Empire brigade, must take off his hat to General O'Ryan. If there is anything lacking in the division's equipment, it should be supplied at once. Machine guns it may not have enough of, but why should it wait for the "peak of production"? What finishing touch can be put to General O'Ryan's command? Perhaps a little more "combat" exercise—nothing else.

Other divisions have gone before. Perhaps it was a wise policy to train them in France. The design seems to have been to get the 27th ready "over here" to the last ounce of efficiency and put it into the trenches, after a breathing spell in France, as fit as the best of regulars. That has been General O'Ryan's ambition, and New York has a good deal of faith in him. How the 27th has longed to proceed to the front since it passed in review before Governor Whitman, and how it has feared that hope deferred would make it stale, is so well known that the sympathy of New York has gone out to its division, of which so much is naturally expected. The day when it shakes from its feet the dust of Spartanburg (properly named in the case of soldiers who have waited and endured for so long) cannot be far off now. The Empire Division is needed in France, sorely needed, and the call should be sounded soon.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Proposing a Great Injustice. Just as there was in the not very remote past an ill-advised effort made in certain quarters to establish a difference between volunteers for military service and drafted men—a difference to the advantage of the former—so now an equally ill-advised effort is making to draw an invidious line between officers on active service in the field and those whose duties are performed at a greater or less distance from the front. It is even proposed and advocated that the men doing work in positions either permanently noncombatant—at desks and sitting in swivel chairs, as it is often and scornfully put—should not be allowed to wear the full uniform of the fighting forces, but should be forced to admit by their dress that they are less worthy of honor than those who go where the bullets are flying or likely to fly.

This movement is entirely wrong. It is probably, even doubtless, true that in the noncombatant branches of the service there are men of the sort called "embusqués" by the French—men who are cowards and slackers and keep themselves in safe positions through the exercise of nefarious influence. These, however, are few, and to deal with them properly does not require the disgracing of a class the great majority of whose members are doing work as loyal, as important, and as deserving of respect as is that of the soldiers in the first line of trenches.

A considerable part of these desk men were ordered to their present places because of some special ability that made them necessary there. They took the positions reluctantly and at the very first opportunity will exchange them for others where glory may be won at that risk of life to which the courageous and the patriotic are so indifferent. Others, and not by any means a few, are men who because of age or some other good reason are ineligible for active service. They are gladly doing what and all they can for their country, and in many, many cases they are doing it at sacrifices of income and private interest that would, if known, silence all criticism.

The safety, the very existence, of the men at the front depends on the efficiency and the fidelity of these men in the rear. The two groups are co-ordinate parts of the national army, and both should, as they do, wear its honorable uniform.

A Rescue Without an Excuse. All initiates in those branches of science which used to be grouped under the name of "natural history" must have read with uneasy questionings the tale told by Mayor Hylan about the jellyfish that had caught a toad. The object of the narrative was to illustrate the kindliness that makes men likable, and the kindliness was shown, according to the distinguished anecdotist, by a man who, seeing on the shore at Palm Beach that a jellyfish had closed over a toad, rescued the victim by flicking it away with the end of his cane. "Why let the little creature suffer?" was the incidental inquiry that touched the Mayor's heart.

The first dubitation aroused by this story will be based on the large improbability that a jellyfish would go so far from its established habits as to capture prey as large as even the littlest of toads. Rarely, indeed, is even the largest and fiercest of the medusae as ambitious as that or as active as it would have to be to perform the feat. In the next place, if a jellyfish did catch a toad, why should it be deprived of its prisoner? Toads, too, are hunters, and not improbably the experience of the "little creatures" they swallow alive are decidedly unpleasant.

If the kindly man had a chance to do what he is said by the Mayor to have done, and if he did it, with or without the remark ascribed to him, he was guilty of a cruel injustice and interfered quite inexcusably with the working out of the next to universal law as to the proper fate of little and weak creatures caught by big and strong ones. Only as between men and men has that law ever been repealed or even mollified—and the Germans deny that there is a single exception to its application.

Another War Problem. No matter what may have caused the diminution of game birds regretfully reported by many Wise Ones at the Fourth Annual Conference of the Game Protective Association, it is equally desirable that the measures they proposed to prevent the extermination of the several tribes they mentioned should at once be taken. One need not be either a sentimentalist or a hunter to see that, and no giant intellect is required for appreciating what a blunder it would be to accept the war and the food scarcity it has produced as an excuse for repealing or suspending the game laws and permitting an immediate and wholesale slaughter of all the wild birds and animals that are fit to eat.

Circumstances sufficiently desperate to justify that can be imagined, but they are far from existing now, and it would be the stupidest of economics, for the sake of an immediate small addition to our food supply, to put a permanent end to that source of sustenance. The last Winter has been a cruelly hard one for all kinds of birds, and if the few survivors are subjected even to the usual amount of open-season hunting, the species that have suffered most are likely to become extinct. That would be a real misfortune, in its material as well as its aesthetic and moral aspects.

It is far from true, as the pot hunters vehemently claim, that the right to shoot game birds is natural and inalienable. As a matter of fact, no such right exists at all; it is a privilege to be exercised with due consideration of the national and international right to protect and perpetuate what is distinctly public property. The tribes now dangerously reduced should have the years of complete safety that is asked for them, and the others should have their open seasons shortened to whatever degree the experts say is requisite for replenishing their waning numbers.

Might in Alsace-Lorraine.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When, in the history of the world, were ever pen and sword so closely united for the infliction upon humanity of all that is despicable and odious as they are at present in Germany? Listen to the Herr Pedant Joseph Kohler expounding international law in the columns of the Taegliche Rundschau:

> The right of peoples to dispose of themselves is an eminently dangerous principle. It is beyond doubt that a Government ought constantly to keep in touch with the people, and take into account their wishes, at least in matters that concern home policy. But the question puts on a very different aspect when it comes to deciding to which group a population should belong. In no case can they ever be called upon to decide for themselves, for the only foundation upon which a State is built is force. It is therefore absolutely ignoring facts to want to confuse the problem of the necessary limits of a State with the doctrine of the right of nations to dispose of themselves. And it is Utopia to want to have the question of belonging to such or such a State decided by a plebiscite, which can never be sincere, and, moreover, knows no other argument than that of numbers.

Well-meaning Americans who, out of regard for justice and equity, would have the inalienable right of the people of Alsace and Lorraine to return to the mother country and the same right of the French to the return of their stolen provinces submitted to the test of a plebiscite will do well to give serious thought to this German opinion. There is but one answer to it—force; in other words, guns, more guns, and still more guns!

A Correction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's issue, under the heading "Arrest Plunkett's Son," you say: "George Plunkett, son of Count Plunkett, Chairman of the Irish Convention, was arrested, &c." Sir Horace Plunkett is the Chairman of the Irish Convention and a very different man in his political views from Count Plunkett, whose son was arrested. Sir Horace Plunkett is unmarried.

GERMANY IN THE CAUCASUS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While much attention has been given in the discussion of the peace treaty between Russia and Germany to Livonia, Lithuania, and Ukraine, we know little about the limits of the new area toward Asiatic Turkey now given up. Ostensibly it is a sop to Turkey from Germany.

The underlying reason probably is that Germany is assured of all the manganese ore that she will require during the period of the war, and forever afterward, as adjacent to Batum are the largest known deposits of high-grade manganese ore in the world. Germany has been in such straits to obtain manganese that she is now utilizing ore that contains as little as 5 per cent. manganese, at a prohibitive cost probably, but their necessities demanded it, as large quantities are required in war ordnance. Batum and Poti are the export ports for all this ore from the Black Sea. The ore can be shipped across to Odessa, Constantinople, or the mouth of the Danube and thence by boat or rail to Germany. The acquisition of this area, too, will probably give them control, through their ally, Turkey, of the railway from Batum to Baku, which will give them the petroleum from the large and high-grade oil producing district of Baku.

Thus Germany has made another "coup" and provided for two of her vital necessities by quietly getting control of a district that produced about one-third of the world's manganese ore in 1913, and added the Baku oil field to her controlled Rumanian oil fields. Wake up, America! A. K. STEWART.

Mr. Gompers's Good Example.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is devoutly to be hoped that President Wilson will not be drawn in by Hertling's aimless speech to the Deutscher Talkfest, otherwise the Reichstag.

Mr. Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, has shown his sound common sense in refusing to be lured by any German bait "to discuss peace." There has been far too much talk on this subject already, every proposal for such "discussion" or "statement of terms" emanating from some German or pro-German source.

Germany is, of course, anxious for a German-made peace, to give her a few years to consolidate "Mitteleuropa" and to make further plans to carry out the Kaiser's paranoiac scheme of world conquest. We as a nation would do well to talk less and act more energeticaly.

Further discussion is worse than useless. We do not argue with a madman; we do not try to soothe a mad dog with conciliatory phrases. But neither of these acts would be any more foolish than an attempt to negotiate with the treacherous Hun, whose idea of a treaty is that of "a scrap of paper." Let us crush our traitors here at home and unite vigorously in the work we have begun.

It is only by a crushing defeat of Germany that we and our allies can establish permanent peace in the world. When allied garrisons in Germany compel obedience, then will be time enough to discuss terms, and those terms will not be Germany's. CITIZEN.

Hospital Bulletins on Soldiers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A dispatch from Camp Wadsworth indicates that it is proposed to notify each soldier's family following his reception in the hospital, and if the family is willing to pay for telegraph charges daily bulletins on the man's condition will be sent. There are many families who cannot afford to pay the telegraph charges, but who are naturally anxious to learn the condition of their relative, and so long as a daily bulletin service is to be established under certain conditions it is suggested that this daily service apply to all soldiers while in the hospital, the proposed service to consist of a bulletin sent by mail, to be treated by the postal authorities on the same basis as a special delivery letter, the envelope to bear a symbol or indorsement indicating the nature of its contents and the necessity for special delivery by the postal authorities. Majority Suffrage Sentiment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article in The Times by Mrs. Wadsworth, treating of woman suffrage, is worthy of earnest attention. So great a question should have been referred to those most concerned—not left to settlement by politicians whose prime consideration is to obtain from any and every source votes to retain them in office. Injected at the most critical period of the nation's history, woman suffrage adds immeasurably to political problems of the moment. Is majority rule in a democracy a fallacy? Is the aggressive minority to rule? The sentiment of most women, if given expression, would be unfavorable to suffrage. But properly to express this sentiment would place them in the paradoxical position of having to vote when they do not wish to vote. Thus the field is left for exploitation by followers of fads and all sorts of political heresies. C. G. C.

THE SONG OF HOPE.

Young Hope rose high on wings of prophecy
And, poised upon a cloud, thus whispered me:
"I look beyond today toward all that is to be.

"Where once the sun on Teuton madness gleamed,
Where once a speeding death his message screamed,
A world through faith and love shall be redeemed.

"That world shall spurn the pomp and pride of Kings,
The rule of autocrats, and all that brings
Humanity to shame, and all that springs

"From tyrant will through tyrant might expressed.
Fight on! Democracy must never rest
Until its lifted sword has met the test.

"Fight on! The soul of man has never failed
To rear on ashes where red ruth prevailed
A better structure! Ever dawn has hailed

"The passing night; and now the shadowed hour,
Bespeaks one thing: a tyrant's waning power.

"Fight on! There is no freemen's compromise
With force that knows no law—that lies
In sceptred wrong! Democracy, arise!

"For you are young, but those you fight are old.
Despite their braggart vaunts they feel the cold
Of coming death. Democracy, be bold!

"Be resolute, uncompromising, true
To all the visioned goals you ever knew.
The God of all the ages fights with you!"

Thus Hope sang high. Nor did she sing in vain.
That evening's headline seemed like Hope's refrain:

ELIAS LIEBERMAN.

DEADLOCK ON PROHIBITION.

Opposition to Union with New Nationalist Party.

CHICAGO, March 5.—After a day of bitter debate, in which caustic epithets were exchanged and charges of disloyalty to the party were made, the delegates to the Prohibition National Convention still were deadlocked tonight on the question of merging with the new Nationalist Party, formed at St. Louis by Socialists who disagreed with that party's stand on the war.

The first victory for the anti-merging faction came when they forced through a motion to make the debate on the question unlimited. Led by William A. Brubaker of Chicago and Judge H. L. Peak, delegate from Ohio, those favoring the merger attempted to have debate limited to thirty minutes for each side. They were overwhelmingly defeated after E. J. H. Prugh of Pennsylvania charged that an attempt was being made to railroad through the merger.

Those opposing amalgamation won again when they succeeded in passing a motion making a two-thirds vote necessary to pass the resolution. It was said to be the first time the prohibitionists had required more than a majority vote on a proposal.

The third victory came when the merger faction was defeated in an attempt to have representatives of the Nationalist Party, which convenes here tomorrow, address the convention after the close of debate. The anti-mergers insisted that the Nationalists speak before the debate closed, thus giving opportunity for rebuttal.

Among the compromises suggested was one that the Prhibition Party keep its National Committee intact to work for nation-wide prohibition. Another was that an agreement first be reached that the prohibitionists have a certain number of representatives on the Nationalist Party's National Committee. A third, strongly favored by the anti-merger faction, was that each party retain its own name, but that committees be formed to co-operate in obtaining certain legislation.

The Prohibitionists were exceptionally bitter over the fact that Mayor Thompson of Chicago apparently refused to deliver the address of welcome. He was requested to do so, and Virgil Hinshaw, Chairman of the Prohibition National Committee, in opening the convention, said that "prominent Chicagoans asked to deliver an address of welcome had refused."

A demand for immediate, nation-wide prohibition as a war measure was voiced by Mr. Hinshaw.

"If all the prohibition forces of this country will pull together, we can secure war prohibition within ninety days," he said. "The time has arrived when we should not only beseech the 150,000 church organizations in this country to line up all their members, but, in addition, we should reach out after every labor union, manufacurers' organization, and farmers' organization in America.

The formation of a National Dry Federation, composed of practically every leading prohibition society in the country, and to be the biggest organization in the world opposing liquor, was announced tonight. William J. Bryan is President of the organization, which will start an active speaking campaign at once.

The main objects are ratification of the national prohibition amendment, success of the prohibition campaigns in six States which vote on the question in November, and immediate war prohibition. Among those expected to take an active part in the work are Governors Millican of Maine, and Whitman of New York, and Senators Kenyon of Iowa, Sherman of Illinois, Borah of Idaho, and Sheppard of Texas.

FOR HARVARD LIBERAL CLUB

There will be a meeting tonight at the Harvard Club of graduates of Harvard to follow the example set by Harvard graduates in Boston, and organize a Harvard Liberal Club. The movement is under way in many other large cities.

Those who signed the invitations sent out to about 200 alumni to attend tonight's meeting, were Travis H. Whitney, Emory R. Buckner, James Harvey Robinson, professor of history at Columbia; Herbert Croly, editor of The New Republic; William P. Montague, professor of philosophy at Columbia; John Haynes Holmes, Walter Lippmann, Walter Prichard Eaton, Witter Bynner, Oswald Garrison Villard, and Mark Sullivan.

A statement sent to alumni in various cities by the pioneer club in Boston said that the immediate program was to elect liberal overseers and trustees to the university, and explained the purposes thus:

"Harvard has always been controlled by a local group with some concessions of late to the demand for broader representation. This control in recent years has, almost unsuspected by the mass of the alumni, and due to various causes, fallen into the hands of a group of bankers who are interested in perpetuating their control.

"The Liberal Clubs of England during the middle half of the nineteenth century, in focusing educated liberal opinion, exerted great influence on public affairs. Such broad co-ordination of liberal opinion has never been effected in this country. This time of flux accents the need and offers unequaled opportunity."

PALM PATH HERE FOR HYLAN

When Mayor Hylan reaches the City Hall tomorrow he will encounter an atmosphere designed to remind him forcibly of Palm Beach, where he has been on a vacation with William R. Hearst, William Grell, Park Commissioner for Manhattan, had a corps of men yesterday decorating the corridors of the hall with potted palms, and the Mayor's private office with plants in bloom.

To reach his office at the west end of the building the Mayor will have to walk through an avenue of tall palms, while if he wishes to ascend the stairs to the upper rooms he will pass through other bowers of tropical luxuriance. The potted plants and flowers came from the city's Park Department.

CHECK ON AUTO CONGESTION

Magistrate Fines Owners Who Park Machines in Streets.

A campaign by Dr. J. A. Harriss, Special Deputy Police Commissioner, to rid congested sections of the city of automobiles not in use brought more than fifty offenders to the Traffic Court yesterday. Fines ranging from $1 to $5 were imposed by Magistrate House.

"People who own automobiles must learn that the streets were not designated to be used as public garages," Magistrate House said. "It is pure selfishness on the part of the owners of an automobile to go to dinner or to the theatre, meanwhile hindering traffic and adding to the already existing congestion."

ROPER ANSWERS CAPITAL QUERIES

ALL PROFITS INCLUDED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—A stream of questions concerning the income and excess profits taxes comes every day in the mail of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Some require careful consideration by the Advisory Committee and legal officials. Commissioner Roper today made public another series of questions and answers, as follows:

"Section 207 (clause 3) authorizes the inclusion in invested capital of 'paid in of a corporation and undivided profits used or employed in the business.' Can a corporation or partnership have any surplus or undivided profits which for purposes of the excess profits tax will not be deemed to be used or employed in the business?

"All the surplus and undivided profits of a coruporation or partnership (exclusive of undivided profits earned during the year) will, unless invested in assets the income from which is not subject to the excess profits tax, be deemed to be used or employed in the business and may be included in the invested capital. (See Article 62 of the regulations.)

"A corporation balances its books monthly, carrying profits into surplus account. Is the capital as of Jan. 1 increased by the addition of these monthly profits for the purposes of the excess profits tax?

"No. The law specifically excludes undivided profits earned during the taxable year. The profits accumulated during the year, even though entered on the books as surplus before the close of the year, cannot be counted as additions to the capital for that year. (See Article 61.)

"In computing invested capital for the purposes of the excess profits tax, may a corporation take as the value of its capital stock the amount fixed by the department for the purposes of the capital stock tax?

"No. Each return must be prepared in accordance with the provisions of the law under which it is made.

"According to Section 207, bonds (other than obligations of the United States,) the income from which is not subject to the excess profits tax, cannot be included in invested capital. Section 200 states that the term United States means only the States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and the District of Columbia. May State bonds be included in invested capital?

"No. The above definition applies only in a geographical sense. The term United States in the parenthetical clauses is not used in a geographical sense. Hence, the term 'Obligations of the United States' means only the obligations of the Federal Government.

"In 1901 a corporation was organized and took over the assets of a dozen going concerns, issuing therefor $25,000,000 of capital stock. The assets consisted of various plant structures, equipment, real estate, patents, and good-will. At the time of the transaction all of these items were entered in a lump sum, and no attempt was made to indicate the specific amounts of stock issued for the respective kinds of property. It is shown that at that time the tangible property was worth $10,000,000, the patents $2,000,000, and the good-will not less than $7,000,000. How is the invested capital to be computed?

"In accordance with Article 59 it will be presumed that $12,000,000 of the stock was issued for the tangible property and the patents and that $13,000,000 was issued for good-will. The tangible property will be taken at its value as of Jan. 1, 1914, but not to exceed $10,000,000, the par value of the stock deemed to have been issued for it. The patents will be taken at their value at the time of acquisition, namely, $2,000,000. Although $13,000,000 of stock was issued for the good-will, it can be taken at only $5,000,000, i. e., 20 per cent. of the total stock outstanding.

"A banking corporation began operations in 1902. In the course of twelve years, for reasons of conservatism, the bank charged off practically the entire value of its building and since Jan. 1, 1915, has been carrying it on its books at the nominal figure of $1. Can any of this value be restored for the purpose of computing invested capital?

"Yes. The building may be taken at cost, less a fair allowance for depreciation. However, any amounts which may have been allowed as a deduction for depreciation under the income tax law cannot be restored.

"A farmer bought a piece of land Dec. 1, 1913. He has put no new money in the business, but has spent all his income from the land for tile and ditching. The farm cost originally $4,000, and is now easily worth $10,000. In computing invested capital should the value as of Jan. 1, 1914, be taken."

"No. The property will be valued at cost, less depreciation, (on buildings, &c.,) plus the amount of earnings from year to year invested in the permanent improvement of the property."

POST-WAR ROADS' CONTROL.

Conferees Split Difference Between House and Senate Proposals.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Government control and operation of railroads probably will continue for twenty-one months after the war. A tentative agreement fixing that time limit was reached late today by conferees on the Railroad Control bill as a compromise for two years, proposed in the House bill, and eighteen months in the Senate. The conferees expect their tentative agreement finally will be presented to Congress.

The conferees adjourned until tomorrow, with the important question of rate-making still in dispute. Complete adjustment of differences on the measure is expected tomorrow in view of intimations said to have come from President Wilson that he would not object to the Senate bill's provision giving him power to initiate rates but retaining authority for their final review by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

On returning from a conference with the President, Senator Pomerene of Ohio, one of the conferees, announced significantly that he would not "now" yield from the Senate provision.

The rate question was made the special order for consideration tomorrow by the conferees. Senator Smith of South Carolina, who conferred with the President, is prepared to submit his compromise provision to the conferees tomorrow should the House representatives persist in their opposition to the Senate provision.

Another question in dispute and discussed today at considerable length concerns provisions to prevent all possible interference, during Government operation of the railroads, with regulatory and taxation functions of the States.

The conferees finally ratified their tentative agreement bringing all "short line" railroads into the Government system. The House provision for the "short lines" was substantially adopted by the conferees in lieu of the Senate's provision, which would affect only competitive lines.

OFFICIAL DEFENDS HOG ISLAND COSTS

JUSTIFIES SALARY JUMPS

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Dwight P. Robinson, President of the American International Shipbuilding Corporation, appearing before the Senate Commerce Committee today, defended the increase in the salary roll and denied that the corporation had indulged in waste and extravagance in constructing the Hog Island shipbuilding plant for the Government. The money expended over the estimated cost of the plant, he said, was due to rush work, performed in Winter months, and to railroad congestion, which frequently made it impossible to work efficiently and economically.

As the directing head of the Hog Island plant, which, when complete, will be the largest in the world, Mr. Robinson went into all its phases. He will be followed by other executives.

"What we wanted to do was to increase the tonnage-producing facilities without interfering with existing plants," he said. "We conceived the idea of building along new lines. It was not a problem of building a new shipyard, but of building an assembling plant. We do nothing at Hog Island we can get done for us. It meant the utilization of existing organizations in other parts of the country and the perfection of an assembling plant on the island. By working out this scheme, shipyard labor was not disturbed. Everything was sacrificed for speed, and in carrying out such a policy the cost, of course, was greater than in any ordinary commercial transaction."

"Has not Admiral Bowles reduced the salary roll a quarter of a million since he went there?" asked Senator Nelson.

"I would not say so," the witness replied.

Calls Day's Contract Fair.

Mr. Robinson explained that the contract the corporation had with the Government was of the fairest character. He said it was known as the agency system, by which the agent is paid for the work performed, working under the direction and order of the principal.

He said the corporation did not get any fee for supervising the construction of the yard.

"But you get 6 per cent. on the cost of the ships," put in Senator Nelson. "I suggest that you bring your fees down to the Liberty bond figure of 4 per cent."

In reply to a question as to whether his firm had ever done any Government work before the war, Mr. Robinson said it had not, but had offered to do Government work at the Rock Island Arsenal and at one of the cantonments in Texas for nothing, and the offer was accepted.

Time Wasted Over Contract.

Discussing the delay in awarding the contract, a delay of more than two months, Mr. Robinson said:

"I regret to say that time was wasted in the negotiations. Admiral Capps had a great sense of responsibility and labored zealously and earnestly, at the sacrifice of his own health. He did a great work, not only in this, but also other contracts. The contract will work out well to the Government's interest. While the Government puts up all the money, we cannot stay there unless we perform properly."

Mr. Robinson explained that, including himself, there were four men paid by his firm, and two or three came over from other work who were not on the Government's payroll. He said it was in accordance with the contract that the men of his firm should be paid by the Government while working at Hog Island.

"And all the rest were transferred to the Government payroll and some paid higher salaries than by you?" asked Senator Nelson.

"Yes, and all this was done in accordance with the contract and after consultation with the Emergency Fleet Corporation."

The salary roll was then discussed. One of the first names taken up was that of John W. Meigs, who had charge of the dredging. His salary was increased from $833 to $1,000 a month. Mr. Robinson said that this was done because he was the only man familiar with the work, and he could not be obtained for any less.

The salary of Walter Goodenough, General Manager, was increased from $15,000, which he received from Stone & Webster, to $25,000 a year by agreement with the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and in addition Stone & Webster paid him $5,000 a year.

"Would not Goodenough have stayed if his salary had not been increased?" asked Senator Vardaman.

"Yes; but we had intended making an increase the first of the year, and he will put the best three years of his life into this work," explained Mr. Robinson.

The witness told how the salary of Major Hamilton, the purchasing agent, was raised from $8,000 to $12,000.

"We would have to pay that, or more, to get a proper man," he said. "Major Hamilton, who had been with us ten years, went to the war with the National Guard of Massachusetts. We got him placed on the inactive list because we knew that he could do more effective work here."

J. J. SCANNELL, OLD TAMMANYITE, DIES

AVENGED BROTHER'S DEATH

John Jay Scannell, ex-Fire Commissioner of this city, an intimate of Richard Croker, and one of the picturesque figures in New York politics for many years, died yesterday in St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, L. I., from pneumonia. He was 78 years old, and his case was complicated by his advanced years and a stomach disease from which he suffered. For several years past he had made his home in Freeport, L. I., but he was in Jamaica visiting a friend when he was stricken on Monday. Mr. Scannell's near kin are nephews and nieces.

Mr. Scannell's rise to a chieftainship in Tammany Hall was due to his close friendship with Croker. Back in the seventies, when both were in the Tombs charged with murder—Croker innocent and Scannell guilty—this political partnership, which later caused the two men to be known among their associates as "The Big Two," was born. Another Tammany leader, "Ed" Stokes, was also lodged in the Tombs at the same time on a similar charge, of which he was found guilty at his trial.

The chapter headings in the life of John Jay Scannell might have been taken from a dime novel. Born on the lower east side, at an early age he became a horse dealer. He varied his occupation by becoming in turn a saloon keeper, then proprietor of the notorious Compton House, and professional gambler. In the palmy days of Saratoga as a horse-racing resort, the Scannell home there was known as the Chateau Ophelia. He owned a number of horses, but the best known was probably the Abbot, a famous trotting horse, and said to have been the dearest possession, second to the Chateau Ophelia, in Mr. Scannell's life. A base-relief reproduction of the Abbot he caused to be placed on a tombstone he erected to his murdered brother, Florence Scannell.

It was because he avenged the death of his brother that he found himself in the Tombs on a murder charge, and was the occasion of his meeting there with Richard Croker and "Ed" Stokes. The avenger was tried twice for murder. The first time the jury disagreed; the second time he was acquitted on the ground of emotional insanity, but after a brief stay in an asylum he was released.

Not long after his release Mr. Scannell began to figure in the larger politics of the city. He became a powerful Tammany force as leader of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District, but until Hugh Grant was elected Mayor he had not sought office for himself. Then Mr. Scannell asked for the Fire Commissionership, amid protests from all over the city. The Mayor refused the appointment, and it was not until Mayor Gilroy took up the reins that Croker brought pressure to bear in behalf of his friend. Scannell was Fire Commissioner until 1895, when he resigned before the election of Mayor William L. Strong. Mayor Van Wyck appointed him Chief of the Fire Department, and while in this office he was indicted for conspiracy to defraud the city in the purchase of supplies. Other indictments were for willful neglect of duty and defrauding the city.

Mr. Scannell fought the case through the courts until 1906, when, owing to a missing witness, District Attorney Jerome said he could not conduct the prosecution.

Mr. Scannell last figured in the courts in 1907, when he was sued for $15,000 by the daughter of the housekeeper at his Fishkill Landing home, for kissing her three times without consent. Mr. Scannell was then 67 years of age.

On another occasion he said: "I will fight for the United States so long as I am kept on this side of the Atlantic, but if I am sent to the other side I will act independently."

MOURN FOR PRENDERGAST.

Two Cardinals in Throng at Archbishop's Funeral.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—With all the traditional honors called for by Catholic rubrics, the funeral of the Most Rev. Dr. Edmond F. Prendergast, Archbishop of Philadelphia, was held today in the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul. Cardinals Gibbons and Farley, Archbishop Bonzano, Papal representative; more than a score of Bishops, Archbishops and Monsignors from many parts of the country, hundreds of priests and members of other religious orders, together with thousands of lay church members assembled to pay their last tribute to the memory of the late distinguished leader of one of the largest archdioceses in the country.

The large cathedral where the Archbishop was laid to rest in a crypt beneath the altar was far too small to accommodate the crowds of mourners. Thousands unable to gain admittance to the service thronged Logan Square, which faces the church building, many standing bareheaded throughout the exercises.

In accordance with the wishes of the Archbishop there was a note of simplicity at the funeral which contrasted with the elaborate service of the solemn pontifical requiem mass which was celebrated for the repose of his soul, and with the brilliant robes of the visiting church dignitaries. The removal of the body in a glass hearse, as was done at Archbishop Ryan's burial, was dispensed with, the late Bishop's body being taken from the archiepiscopal residence privately and without procession.

Bishop John J. McCort, the Archbishop's auxiliary, was the celebrant of the pontifical mass. Bishop Canovan of Pittsburgh preached the funeral sermon.

In the pause between the two plays of last night's bill—one of the most artistically successful and amusing of his programs—M. Jacques Copeau made an announcement of deep interest to the patrons of the Vieux Colombier.

Polichinelle has whispered that financially the present season has been none too successful. There has been trouble, moreover, with regard to the personnel of the company and the scheme of subscriptions. But all danger of a termination of the enterprise is now past. Otto Kahn and his associates have decided to finance a second season, and there is reason for believing that present shortcomings will be corrected.

Several members of M. Copeau's Paris company who have hitherto been in the trenches are to be released, notably the actor who is to take the leading part in M. Copeau's final production of this season, Molière's "L'Avare." The result should be far better casting in the leading parts. The system of subscriptions, which has caused so much complaint, is to be superseded by a system far more elastic and just. Last but not least, the company, which this season plunged into a very arduous undertaking without due organization or preparation, is to spend the Summer in the country preparing for the work of next Winter.

M. Copeau has thus ground for the belief that, while remaining loyal to his artistic standards, he will be able to make the Vieux Colombier at once more finished in its productions and more amusing to its patrons.

"La Petite Marquise" of Meilhac and Halévy is already familiar to lovers of the French theatre through the production of Mme. Réjane, and is also known here through a musical comedy in English which was lately woven about its plot and characters. First produced in 1874, it was the precursor of "Divorçons," by Sardou and Nanjac, and of any number of pieces of the same order. Yet it has held its place steadily on the Parisian stage, and is today far fresher and more amusing than ninety and nine of its successors. Shrewd observation of character and a deep sense of human values have seldom been combined with a lighter touch in satire and a gayer inspiration in farcical phantasy.

Paulette Noiseux struggles on unequal terms with the memory of Réjane's performance, and indeed she misses many of the essential traits of La Petite Marquise; but in all the lesser parts the company is admirable and holds its audience in the spell of a fine and illuminating gayety.

"L'Amour Medecin" is one of the farcical entertainments with which Molière varied his labors in high comedy, falling between "Don Juan" and "Le Misanthrope." It was written, rehearsed, and produced in five days at the command of Louis XIV. Quite frankly a piece of the theatre, it is memorable alike for its crisp characterizations and for its satire of quackery. With the exception of "La Jalousie de Barbouillé," Molière's prentice skit, already seen at the Vieux Colombier, it is the first of the series of plays directed against the doctors. The four physicians who prescribe emetics, bleeding, and purges for the lovesick heroine were, in Molière's production, made up to resemble the four court physicians of the King, for whom the farce was written.

The production is in the manner of M. Copeau's previous stagings of Molière, with gay costumes, grotesque make-ups and much physical activity centring in a raised stage within the main stage. The company is strongest on the male side, and MM. Vallée, Gournac, Jouvet, and Weber played together with rare spirit and exquisite humor. Madeleine Geoffroy made a charming heroine and Jane Lory a vigorous and amusing servant.

'GETTING TOGETHER' COMING

War Sketches in Aid of British Recruiting to Open at Lyric March 18

The series of war sketches and episodes which are being produced under the auspices of the British-Canadian Recruiting Mission will have their first performances next week in Albany and Syracuse, and will be seen in New York at the Lyric Theatre during the week beginning March 18. The production will bear the general title of "Getting Together," and, as previously announced, is composed of sketches and passages written by Major Beith, (Ian Hay,) J. Hartley Manners, and Percival Knight. Lyrics have been written by Harry B. Smith and music by Frank Tours and Lieutenant Gitz Rice of the first Canadian contingent.

The project is being undertaken in coöperation with the American military and naval authorities, and the profits will be divided among American, British, and Canadian war charities. The cast will be headed by Blanche Bates and Holbrook Blinn, and will include Percival Knight, Harrison Brockbank, William Roselle, James Lounsbery, and many others, including several scores of soldiers.

The scenes to be shown will range from a recruiting rally in Madison Square to a trench scene with men going over the top, and will include a replica of a British tank in action. The final act will show a ruined village in France. It is expected that the first performance in Albany will be attended by Governor Whitman, Adjt. Gen. Wotherspoon, and many other naval and military officials.

Franklin Pierce Left $150,000.

The will of Franklin Pierce, at one time Assistant District Attorney and counsel for the prosecution in the proceedings to remove District Attorney Jerome, disposes of an estate of $150,000. Mr. Pierce was committed to Bloomingdale nearly two years ago on the application of his wife, Mrs. Anna Shepard Pierce, and died there on Feb. 28. The will, drawn a year before Mr. Pierce lost his mind, gave $1,000 to Tessie Finnegan, a servant in his family for many years, and left the remainder of the estate to his wife and daughter, Millicent. The share of the daughter, who is twelve years old, will be held in trust until she is twenty-five.

JOHN D. CRIMMINS ART BRINGS $39,065

There was a large attendance at the sale of the paintings of the late John D. Crimmins at the Anderson Galleries last evening, and very fair prices were paid, the 78 paintings including a small collection of miniatures, bringing $39,065. The Inness, "Off the Coast of Cornwall," brought the highest price, going to George D. Smith, the book man, for $6,300. This was less than it was expected to bring by many experts.

One of the Corots of the collection, "A Castle in Lombardy," brought the second highest price, going to L. Block for $3,500. A Munkacsy interior, "A Visit to the Baby," brought the third price, going to F. F. Trowbridge for $3,000. The second Munkacsy of the collection, "Feeding the Favorite," an elaborately furnished dining room with two women, one feeding a grayhound, went to Henry Schultheis for $2,800.

Son-in-Law Gets Ranger.

"Old Oaks and New," a pleasing landscape by Henry W. Ranger, the American artist, brought brisk competition, a number of dealers being among the bidders, but it went back to the Crimmins family, going to a son-in-law of the late Mr. Crimmins, F. W. Childs, for $1,850.

Richard Parkes Bonington's "The Procession in a Cathedral Church" went to Mercedes Crimmins for $1,000, and Detaille's "Incroyables," two dandies of the French Revolution, went to May Crimmins for $235.

Ex-Ambassador to Austria Frederic C. Penfield bid on the small Corot landscape and a pretty little Diaz, "Ladies Bathing in the Wood." Others in the audience were W. M. K. Olcott, Warren W. Foster, Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach of Philadelphia, and Josef Stransky.

BERKSHIRE STRING QUARTET

A First Performance of Sowerby's "Serenade" in Its Program.

The Berkshire String Quartet resumed last evening in Aeolian Hall a time-honored custom of Tuesday evening chamber music, for which not only a special day but a trained audience exists in New York, or did until wartime fuel conservation interrupted such entertainments by this and other organizations. The public, after weeks of confusion in its musical calendar, came back slowly to the familiar time and place for intimate hearing of such music as Beethoven's quartet, Op. 59, No. 2, a classic that the Berkshire men played with keen relish of that master's use of an old Russian tune which also furnished Moussorgsky's theme for the coronation music in "Boris Godunoff."

Leo Sowerby's "Serenade," a first performance both for a new American composer from the West and for the particular title chosen from his works, of which another will be played by the Symphony Society next Sunday, proved interesting and novel, raucously so in its shifting harmony, yet relieved by much humor in the interplay of instrumental voices, and by a spirited and songlike theme carried mainly by the first violin, Hugo Kortschak. The piece was not too long, and it did not attempt great fervor of emotion or literalness of description. The program concluded with the quartet, Op. 109, of the late Max Reger.

SHANGHAI, March 5.—At least 730 lives were lost in the disaster at the Hongkong Jockey Club's track at Happy Valley last week, when a stand occupied by Chinese collapsed and then caught fire. Many charred bodies have been removed from the ruins.

M'ADOO FAILS TO END FINANCE BILL FIGHT

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Contention in the Senate over the bill to create a war finance corporation continued today. An attempt to push action on the measure was marked by sharp clashes between its advocates and opponents, after Secretary McAdoo had tried to compose their differences.

Attack was centred on the provision establishing a capital issues committee to license security issues of $100,000 and more, Republican leaders joining with Democrats of the Banking Committee in a fight on the legislation. No progress was made on amendments, and an early session of the Senate tomorrow was arranged.

Secretary McAdoo was invited to a conference of Banking Committee members and other Senators and is said to have urged passage of the bill substantially as it stands. He said it was necessary financially to aid war industries with millions of obligations maturing in a money market largely monopolized by the Government. To suggestions that the same end could be accomplished by giving the Federal Reserve Board much of the authority proposed for the war finance corporation, Secretry McAdoo said he "much preferred" the plan outlined in the bill.

Later in debate on the floor, Senator Hollis intimated that Administration influence had dominated the consideration of the bill and that Secretary McAdoo had outlined just what matter should be discussed or changed. This drew a sharp retort from Senator Simmons of North Carolina, in charge of the bill, who said the assertions were "unjust and unfair."

The licensing section was attacked by Senators Reed, Owen, and Hollis, all Democrats, and by Gallinger and Smoot, Republicans. Mr. Smoot declared that the present voluntary Capital Issues Committee was working successfully and that no securities could find a market if disapproved by the voluntary organization.

Senator Lodge said that the Finance Committee was as free from outside dictation as those that criticised it, and deplored the injecting of personalities into the debate.

Senator Brandegee, Republican, did not think such legislation was necessary. To enact a law that would permit the drying up of bond issues except those proved by a committee, he asserted, seemed "the height of insanity at the opening of the war."

Senator Stone criticised Senator Smoot for opposing the licensing clause when he, with other Finance Committee members, had ordered a unanimous report on the bill.

SPLIT OVER LA FOLLETTE.

Wisconsin Assemblymen Break Gentlemen's Agreement to Vote.

MADISON, Wis., March 5.—A gentlemen's agreement by members of the State Assembly to shun technicality and proceed to vote tonight on the resolution condemning Senator Robert M. La Follette was shattered in the first half hour of the session. Each side blamed the other.

The break came when Speaker Whittet ruled that forty minutes of debate was all that could be allowed. At this Assemblyman Evjue, La Follette floor leader, said that if "gag laws" were to be enforced he would not be bound by the agreement to vote nor would he cast his ballot.

When the night session began eighty-five members answered to the roll call. Under the rules, passage of the La Follette resolution requires a majority of the whole membership of 100, or fifty-one votes. It also requires this number to raise the call, which permits business to be transacted. When Speaker Whittet announced that the La Follette resolution was the order of business, Assemblyman Rosa, who shares the La Follette leadership with Evjue, immediately announced that he wished to amend the resolution.

Assemblyman Chapple, Loyalist, demanded the previous question, which would have prevented the amendment and would have limited debate on the resolution itself to forty minutes. Charges of "gag rule" from Evjue and the breaking of a gentlemen's agreement followed. A motion to raise the call showed that the Loyalists lacked two votes or enough to impose their program on the Assembly. The vote was 49 yeas and 36 nays.

A second motion to raise the call resulted in 46 yeas, 39 nays, a loss of three votes from the Loyalist ranks, and Evjue immediately moved an adjournment, which failed, 37 to 48.

URGE GAME CONSERVATION.

Roosevelt and Whitman Send Messages to Protective Association.

Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Whitman each sent messages to the American Game Protective Association, which closed its fourth annual conference with a dinner at the Waldorf last night, urging against relaxing of the game laws during the war. The Colonel's message read:

> To the profiteering proposal of the pseudo-patriots, the patriots for revenue only, that protection of wild life in war time be relaxed, the united hosts of conservation reply: "You shall not pass." Let this be the slogan of every farmer, of all who dwell in the open, and of all who love nature and who wish to see our natural resources preserved for the perpetual use of our people and not destroyed for all time to gratify the greed of a moment.

> It must be our aim just now that when our boys come back from "over there," they shall find that we have utilized wisely, but we have not dissipated, the natural resources of the out-of-doors, which have always constituted one of their chief concerns.

Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Whitman, in their messages epitomized the attitude taken by the association at the conference in the afternoon. A letter was read from Frederick C. Walcott of the United States Food Administration, in which he urged support of the efforts of the association to conserve the game.

"No condition has yet arisen," said Mr. Walcott, "which is so acute as to warrant any relaxation in our conservation of wild life."

A resolution offered by Dr. William T. Hornaday, head of the New York Zoological Park, protesting against the Sulzer bill now before Congress, providing for the sale of caribou meat, moose, and wild sheep north of latitude 62 degrees, was adopted unanimously.

George D. Pratt, Conservation Commissioner of New York, characterized attacks on the fish and game laws as "killing the goose that laid the golden egg." He has asked the Legislature for an appropriation of $10,000 to use abandoned parts of the Erie Canal for the propagation of black bass, perch, and catfish.

"The better way, they thought, would be for a representative of labor to sit with the board and determine questions applicable to all workers affected in the construction of ships, whether iron, steel or wood. An agreement was not reached."

Mr. Gompers explained that the conference had adjourned without fixing a date for another session. Referring to the agreement which Hutcheson has refused to sign, he said:

"While not entirely satisfied with the agreement as it now stands, the metals trade representatives believed it was the best obtainable under the circumstances, and they will continue to work under it until it proves a failure. Up to now it has not proven a failure."

While the closed shop demand as such has been withdrawn by Hutcheson, his requests at today's conference for special privileges for the carpenters contained a supplemntal demand that all necessary workers be procured through the Department of Labor. It is said that the carpenters insist that a member of their group should be on hand to pass upon the men employed. It is contended that this would be tantamount to the adoption of the closed shop and that to grant such favors to the carpenters would disturb the labor situation to a dangerous degree.

The demands for special privilege which have been refused were set forth in this memorandum, signed by Hutcheson and submitted to the conference:

"In order to bring about a closer coöperation and a better understanding between the United States Emergency Fleet Corporation and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America the following is proposed:

"1. That when matter pertaining to hours and wages in reference to construction of wooden ships or work affecting the woodworking craft are being considered by the Wage Adjustment Committee of the United States Fleet Corporation, a representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America shall sit on said committee, with full authority and voting power, the same as other members on said committee.

"2. That, employers procure all necessary and required help through the officers of the Department of Labor of the United States Government.

"3. Any grievance aside from hours and wages shall be taken up direct by the men and their foremen, failing of settlement the men shall take it up with the management. If adjustment is not reached, he matter shall be referred to the General President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and the United States Shippnig Board. Pending adjustment no cessation of work shall take place."

There was nothing conciliatory in the attitude of Hutcheson today, and there was much speculation as to the effect the position he had taken would have upon the deliberations of the joint commission appointed to work out a national labor program. Hutcheson is a member of the commission.

Hutcheson said today that he had information that the Philadelphia carpenters had declined the rulings of the Labor Adjustment Board in the Delaware district cases.

Another charge made by Hutcheson was that the Shipping Board did not want to build large numbers of wooden ships and thus give employment to the 50,000 carpenters whom he alleged were out of work.

INDIANA PARTY TRUCE TO AID LIBERTY LOAN

INDIANAPOLIS, March 5.—At a conference at the State House today, held at the request of Governor James P. Goodrich, it was decided to declare a political truce during the drive for the Third Liberty Loan this Spring. At the conference were Governor Goodrich, Charles A. Greathouse, the Democratic State Chairman; Will H. Hays, the Republican State Chairman, who was recently elected National Chairman; the twenty-six Congressional District Chairmen of both parties, and the 184 County Chairmen representing both Republicans and Democrats.

George H. Dunscomb of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, who has charge of the sale of the bonds in Indiana, said at the conference:

"This meeting is one which will ever be memorable in the history of the country, because here the Republican and Democratic Parties have agreed to disregard all differences, in order that by united efforts they may obtain the greatest measure of co-operation and unity in the righteous cause for which our nation is fighting. In doing this they have added a new lustre to the glorious record of their State.

"A subordination of party aims and ambitions at this time is, in my mind, an expression of the highest patriotism and an evidence of the loftiest ideals. With the great political parties working as a unit in the interest of the Liberty Loan, far-reaching results will be obtained that otherwise would never be realized."

FOR "DRY" AMENDMENT.

Assembly Committee Votes, 8 to 5, to Report It.

ALBANY, March 5.—The Hill-McNab resolution to ratify the Federal prohibition amendment will be reported by the Assembly Judiciary Committee tomorrow. This action was decided upon in committee tonight by a vote of 8 to 5. A minority report will be submitted.

Objection will be made in the minority report on the ground that the Federal amendment "is not now lawfully before the Legislature," the requirement in the Federal Constitution of a two-thirds vote in each house of Congress on the proposed amendment not having been complied with. The amendment is objectionable also, the minority report will state, "because it seeks to change a fundamental principle of the Government that the personal and private actions of citizens shall be regulated by the Legislatures of the several States."

GIANTS LIKELY TO BE WITHOUT SERVICES OF ROBERTSON

YOUNG IN RIGHT GARDEN

Promising Recruit Expected to Fill Vacant Position—Plank May Join Yankees.

Davey Robertson, the temperamental right fielder, is probably lost to the Giants, as no glad tidings have been received from Manager McGraw as to his interview with Robbie in Virginia last week. Friends of Robertson in this city state that the outfielder, who is in the Department of Justice, will continue his work instead of cavorting for the Giants at the Polo Grounds.

Toward the close of last season Robertson left the Giants for a few days and went down to Virginia and tried to enlist in the Medical Corps, but was unsuccessful. It is stated that old injuries which Robertson received while playing football at college prevented his passing the physical examination. When Robertson was first discovered by McGraw's scouts he was a promising pitcher, and it was as a twirler that he attracted attention as a youngster. After the Giants had signed him he went back to finish his college course and played football. His right shoulder was so badly injured that his pitching career came to an end, and McGraw developed him into an outfielder.

Robertson's wife has objected to his playing baseball, and this is believed to be another reason why Robertson will not play. There are no salary differences between the player and the Giants, and if this was the reason that the player was holding out the difficulty would be quickly adjusted. Robertson never did take baseball seriously. If he was in the right mood he could slam out three-baggers, but if he was in the throes of that tired feeling which often took hold of him he would just swing at the ball listlessly.

When Robertson entered the service of the Government it is believed that he decided that he would not leave the Department of Justice when the season opened. One of his friends in Norfolk made a bet with Robertson that he would not be able to resist the call of the game when the robins and the bluebirds began to come around, so Robbie made a bet that he would not play. Now he evidently expects to collect the bet.

The absence of Robertson may or may not be a great loss to the Giants. Robertson set a new record for the total number of hits in the last world's series, and he is one of the hardest hitters in the major leagues. When he poked the ball into the left-field bleachers at the Polo Grounds, he made one of the longest drives that has ever been seen at the Brush Stadium.

It is now certain, when the Giants report at Marlin next week, Manager McGraw will immediately start to groom Ross Young for Robertson's berth in right field. Young played in the last few games with the Giants in Philadelphia at the close of last season, and his average for that brief spell was well above .300. He is a wide, heavy swinger, with a good eye, and is fleet of foot. Ever since Young has been playing professional ball he has never hit under .300, and he has played in several minor leagues. Last season, playing with Rochester, he was second to Napoleon Lajoie in the batting averages, with the great mark of .356. Turner Barber, the outfielder for whom the Chicago Cubs paid $15,000 to Jack Dunn, batted lower than Young, with an average of .352.

When Miller Huggins leaves here Friday with the first carload of Yankees, he will stop off at Washington and have a talk with Eddie Plank. Judging from the letter Huggins received from the pitcher, Plank will very likely decide to play with the New York Club. There is no salary difference with Plank. Whether or not he plays with the Yankees depends on whether he is able to get a man to take his place in aiding his brother Ira in running the Plank brothers' garage on the Lincoln Highway at Gettysburg.

Huggins is not worrying about Derrill Pratt. He expects that the former St. Louis second baseman, who is now in Florida, will report at Macon and will sign his contract there before the training season starts.

Bill Kopf, the former ordham shortstop, who plays shortstop for Matty's Reds, has refused to sign his contract, which he claims has been cut so much that he would not think of playing at the figure offered him. Kopf will probably be drafted before the season is over.

During the twenty-one years that Hans Wagner of Pittsburgh performed in the National League he had a total of just 100 home runs.

The shelving of the Sunday baseball bill at Albany dispels the last chance the International League had of operating next season. If the bill had become a law, it is possible that the clubs would attempt to start the season, but with this possibility gone, the league will undoubtedly disband even before the date of the meeting here at the end of the month. The organization had permission to delay the sending out of contracts from March 1 to April 1, pending the outcome of the Sunday baseball movement.

When the International votes to disband it is likely that part of the territory now controlled by the various clubs will be taken up by new promoters, and some of the former International League cities will combine with several cities of the Eastern League of New England in forming a new circuit. Providence will be in the new circuit and possibly Jersey City.

FORDHAM WILL GO SOUTH.

Baseball Nine to Play Annapolis and Mount St. Joseph's.

The Fordham University baseball team will have a Southern trip this season. This was definitely announced at Fordham last night. Earlier in the year, because of the fact that Georgetown did not intend playing any home games, Joseph Kinsley, the Maroon baseball manager, thought that the trip would have to be abandoned. However, as one of the two contests arranged is with the Navy, and the other is with the Mt. St. Joseph's team of Baltimore, which is scheduled for a return game at Fordham, the Fordham management decided in favor of the annual trip.

The trip will advance the opening of the season several days. The first home game will be played with Columbia on April 10, in the initial tilt of a home-and-home series between the local rivals.

Faber Not to be Drafted.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Urban ("Red") Faber, pitcher, who played an important part in bringing the world's championship to Chicago's White Sox last year, is not to be drafted, according to information received by Manager Rowland. Faber's home district, Cascade, Iowa, has sent enough volunteers into the army to make the call on conscripted men unnecessary at present.

PLAN BIG HOCKEY LEAGUE.

Seven Cities May Have Teams in New Circuit.

The National Hockey League, with New York, Pittsburgh, and two Boston teams making up the circuit this Winter, has met with such success that the International Skating Union is making plans to enlarge the circuit, and next season will see an organization with New York, Boston, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, and possibly Chicago and New Haven in the race. Pittsburgh organized one of the best hockey sevens that has ever played in this country and next season it is expected that the other teams in the league will match the Smoketown stars in playing strength.

This year's race was a runaway affair for the Pittsburghers, while the Wanderers, which looked strong at the beginning of the season, was weakened toward the end by the loss of Heffernan, at cover point, just when that aggressive player was showing the great playing ability he displayed when he first appeared here two seasons ago.

The organization may be changed into a professional league, but this is not likely because many of the rinks about the circuit are not large enough to support teams which would carry a high salary list. The league this season was slow in getting under way, because of the lack of players. But players were more numerous than was expected and there were plenty of fast skaters to make up the various teams.

Not only will the National Hockey League branch out next season, but it is also expected that the Amateur Hockey League will resume operations under former conditions. Secretary R. L. Von Bernuth of the Amateur League stated yesterday that he believed that there would be five or six teams in the running next season. The New York Athletic Club, after a lapse of several seasons, will have a team, and the re-entrance of the Winged Foot will give the league the added interest that it has lacked during the last few years.

The Amateur League teams in this city lost many of their best players through enlistments and the draft, and when the season started it was impossible to get enough players together to start the league. However, the three teams which have recently organized, the Crescents, the Hockey Club, and the St. Nicholas Skating Club, were able to recruit enough players to end the season with spirited competition.

The Brooklyn Interscholastic Hockey League has developed a surprising number of fast young players, and next year these players will be available for the Amateur League teams. Hockey, like every other sport, has recovered from the first depression of the war, and the officials of the sport realize that there is a general demand for this sort of athletic amusement, so plans for next year's activity among the skaters are already under way.

AWARD SWIMMING EVENTS.

New York Gets Only Three A. A. U. Championship Races.

That increased interest is being shown in the sport of swimming in the West and Middle West was shown yesterday with the announcements of proposed awards of national indoor A. A. U. swimming championships, by Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary of the A. A. U. The awards give New York only three of the twenty-five titular events scheduled for men and women. Two of these are for women, the 220-yard swim and plunge for distance, and the other, the 100-yard junior championship swim, is for men. The women's events have been allotted to the New York Women's Swimming Association, and the 100-yard race for men to the Central Y. M. C. A., Brooklyn.

Chicago, Detroit, San Francisco, and Los Angeles are the cities chiefly favored. If the necessary interest can be aroused, it is not at all improbable the unawarded events will be turned over to local clubs. No dates for the meets have been set. The events must be all decided before April 30.

Senior Events for Men.—50 yards, Chicago Athletic Association; 100 yards, Neptune Swimming Club, San Francisco; 220 yards, Los Angeles Athletic Association; 500 yards, Chicago Athletic Association; 200 yards, breast stroke, Chicago Athletic Association; 150 yards, back stroke, Detroit Athletic Club; fancy dive, Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago; plunge, Detroit Athletic Club; water polo, Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago; relay, 400 yards, Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago.

Junior Events for Men.—100 yards, Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A.; 500 yards, Los Angeles Athletic Club; 100 yards, breast stroke, California Swimming Club, San Francisco; 100 yards, back stroke, Pittsburgh Aquatic Club; fancy dive, Neptune Swimming Club, San Francisco.

YALE SWIMMERS TRIUMPH.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, March 5.—Yale easily defeated Columbia in a dual swimming meet tonight by a score of 45 to 8. The Blue won first place in every race. Captain Mayer's swimming, the fancy diving of Benjamin, and the distance plunging of Loeb, Yale's second string plunger, were the features of the meet. Yale entered only one swimmer in the 220-yard event.

Yale easily defeated Columbia at water polo by 30 to 3. The first half closed with the Elis leading at 10 to 1. Captain Peterson of the Yale team played a brilliant game, as did Vorys and Dexter. The summaries:

HARVARD FAVORS BIG THREE MEET

CAMBRIDGE, March 5.—At the meeting of the Harvard Athletic Committee tonight Harvard went on record as favoring the proposed triangular track and field athletic meet with Yale and Princeton. It was announced that the games probably will be held May 18 at New Haven. The recently published baseball schedule for the Harvard-Yale-Princeton round robin series was accepted tentatively.

As Harvard's examinations will be held June 1, when the Crimson is scheduled to play at New Haven, it may be found advisable to ask Yale to come to Cambridge that day and transfer the game scheduled for Cambridge to New Haven.

It was decided that Harvard will send a few track athletes to the intercollegiate championship meet at Philadelphia, but the size of the team will not be determined until after the triangular meet with Yale and Princeton.

The question of adopting a strict R. O. T. C. rule governing the eligibility of Harvard athletes, was discussed, but no final action was taken, except to leave to the athletic Chairman to agree with Professor Corwin of Yale, and McClenahan of Princeton on individual cases.

The Harvard radio school henceforth will be allotted a portion of Soldiers Field for athletic sports, but its request that it have the exclusive use of the Weld Boat House was put up to the college trustees, who own and control the building.

Football was not discussed, but it is understood that the three deans will have a conference later in the month, when the advisability of plans for the Fall sport will be discussed.

Squash tennis players of the Columbia University Club nosed out a victory over the Crescent A. C. racquet wielders in a Metropolitan League Class B team match yesterday, by a score of 4 to 3. Several keenly-waged matches marked the struggle for supremacy and one verdict caused a ripple of surprise. This came when R. E. Wigham of the Columbia Club vanquished M. M. Sterling, one of the best of Crescent A. C. contenders in a sharply played three-game match. The score was 11—15, 18—17, 15—11. Another well-played match was that in which A. C. Scott of the Columbia Club defeated G. E. Cruse of the Crescent A. C. at 15—8, 15—17, 15—11.

The last match of the day was between R. L. Strebeigh of the Columbia Club and N. F. Torrance of the Crescents. Torrance put forth a fine game in his effort to secure the victory for the Brooklyn team and was not defeated in the first game until it had been carried to 18—17. In the second game he was an easier victim, Strebeigh triumphing at 15—9.

The summaries:

J. Dorg, Crescent A. C., defeated H. Kellock, Columbia Club, 11—15, 15—12, 15—12; A. C. Scott, Columbia Club, defeated G. E. Cruse, Crescent A. C., 15—8, 15—17, 15—11; R. E. ZBYSZKO MAY MEET LEWIS.

Heavyweight Wrestlers Appear Agreed as to Match.

Jack Curley, manager of Wladek Zbyszko, the wrestler, yesterday announced his willingness to match Zbyszko against Ed. "Strangler" Lewis, the Kentucky grappler. Lewis's manager, Billy Sandow, recently issued a defi to the wrestlers of the country on behalf of the Southerner, and particularly to Zbyszko. Sandow charged that the mat exponents were dodging the issue with Lewis, and were afraid of the Southerner's effective head lock.

Lewis and Zbyszko have been opponents in two matches locally, and each has registered a victory over the other. In their first meeting Lewis forced Zbyszko to quit with his head lock and in the second meeting, when the Southerner's chief hold was prohibited, Zbyszko was victorious.

JERSEY LEGALIZES EIGHT-ROUND BOUTS

Governor Edge Signs Bill Allowing Limited Boxing Contests in State.

The bill introduced by Assemblyman Hurley of Jersey City, permitting boxing exhibitions in the State of New Jersey, was yesterday signed by Governor Edge and immediately became a law. This means that the ring sport can now be promoted in New Jersey without danger of civic or State molestation and those in favor of the sport are already making plans for conducting bouts under the new law. Governor Edge's action was more or less expected since the Hurley bill successfully found its way through both houses of the New Jersey Legislature. In fact there has been a growing sentiment in favor of boxing as it promises to be conducted under the Hurley law, and there was practically no opposition encountered in getting the bill to that stage where only the State's Chief Executive's signature was necessary to make it a law.

Under the new law local boxing enthusiasts are presented with an opportunity to witness contests within easy access of New York. Nearby Jersey clubs will be opened and the travel entailed will hardly amount to more than in going to Brooklyn clubs in the past. The local promoters, however, are not entirely welcome in New Jersey. The sport's advocates in the State across the Hudson are reported as one in the decision to keep the game among themselves.

The bill opens the way for any number of important bouts to be held in New Jersey which would ordinarily have gone to Philadelphia, Boston, or some of the other nearby cities where boxing is permitted. At the present time there are a number of first-class boxers in New York, and it is likely that the very near future will see these ring exponents in action near their old stamping ground.

The Hurley bill promises clean supervision of boxing if its rules and provisions are strictly adhered to, and for this reason local promoters and others identified with the sport who have watched with interest the progress of the New Jersey bill since its introduction, are confident that the game will enjoy a long life in the State. It is modeled in its most vital parts on the bill now before the Judiciary Committee of the New York Legislature, which was introduced by Assemblyman Marty McCue.

The bouts provided for in New Jersey are to be of eight rounds' duration and without decisions. The participants in the bouts will be compelled to wear gloves of at least eight ounces in weight and boxers must be given a thorough physical examination by a competent physician before being permitted to enter the ring. The law provides that bouts cannot be held in any place where liquor is sold, and this is looked upon as one of its most favorable features. Prospective promoters will be compelled to deposit a bond with the Boxing Commission before securing a license to conduct bouts, and this bond has been made large enough to keep out the unfavorable element. The Boxing Commission is to discharge the duties of the office without compensation.

No member of the commission has been appointed as yet, but it is rumored that Tom Cassidy, the Amateur Athletic Union commissioner for Jersey City, is a candidate for the office of Chairman of the commission. Cassidy is well fitted for the position because of his administrative work with the A. A. U.

ALBANY, March 5.—Robert E. Dowling, President of the City Investing Company and frequently mentioned as a possible Tammany candidate for Mayor, made a frank appeal to the Republican Legislature today to protect the real estate interests of New York City from city officials. He was speaking at the hearing before the Senate Committee on Affairs of the City of New York on the Boylan bill, which would limit the real estate tax rate in New York City to $1.75 on $100 of assessed valuation.

"We look to the Legislature to protect us, not only against the pronounced tendency of New York City administrations to favor certain classes of residents at the expense of others, but against the almost revolutionary extension of governmental power in new directions such as the proposal for municipal trading that we hear so much of," said Mr. Dowling. "Some of the men who make these unjust demands on the city administration to get something for nothing are single taxers, but others who make them do not believe in property rights at all. They would take our property away from us if they could. That is why I for one believe in Senator Brown's pay-as-you-go policy. It should be put into the law."

"We have had too much of this browbeating of public officials by people in New York City who contribute little toward the city's life and of weak yielding on the part of those who hold the purse strings of the city and seem altogether oblivious of the fact that somewhere there is a limit to the city's capacity to provide. You've got to protect the City of New York against the people of the City of New York, or they will take it away from you—make a wreck of the finest thing ever conceived or built on the Western Hemisphere.

"I have heard all I want to hear about home rule. We had 130,000 Socialists voting down there last Fall. You have got to protect the city against the revolutionary element in certain parts of the city. They want to take away personal propery. They do not believe in property anyhow. That is what they are after in their municipal trading schemes."

In discussing suggestions that personal property was too elusive to lend itself readily to any just and ample taxation, Mr. Dowling urged that provision be made for the registration of personal property in the city of New York.

"On Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-seventh and Eighty-ninth Streets, are twenty private residences, each containing $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 of personalty, which does not pay one cent of tax. Yet it has the same protection as has the property owner on Third Avenue, who is taxed to his capacity. There are persons in New York City with $5,000,000 of personal property on which they never paid any tax anywhere. My conviction is that if you put the proposed tax of twenty-five cents per $100 on personal property, New York City will have so much money that real estate will not even have to pay the $1.75 per $100 proposed in this bill, but will pay only $1.50 on an assessed valuation of $100."

Mr. Dowling explained that he did not intend to convey the impression that the city administration was dishonest.

"I do not think we have had dishonesty on any large scale in the city administration for the last forty years," he added.

Lawrence McGuire, President of the Real Estate Board of New York City, held that the provision for a small personal property tax had been proposed as a relief to real estate which could not safely be burdened further.

Edward P. Doyle, secretary of the real estate board, estimated that $230,000,000 could be raised under the plan proposed with real estate paying not more than $1.75 for each $100 of assessed valuation and personal property 25 cents per $100.

A. C. Pleydell of the Tax Reform Association and R. E. McGahen of the Citizens Union opposed the realty tax limitation because they thought that under it the city would face a shortage of revenues. Walter A. Lynch, representing the Private Bankers' Association of New York City, and F. G. Dunham, representing the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, urged that the Personal Tax bill be amended so as to make specific exemption for securities, deposits, and other personal property which now pays a direct tax. They were assured that such an amendment would be made.

Laces Continue to Improve.

With the manufacturing trades buying staple laces well, and the retailers taking them more freely than for some time, things are beginning to look up in that field. Two factors of the situation at the moment are regarded as encouraging. One is that "jobs" of laces have practically disappeared from the market, and that, partly as a result of their going and partly as a result of anticipation of needs in the near future, the retailers are cutting out most of their special sales of these goods.

Fewer "Consumer" Returns.

To the fact that there has been a distinct slump in the number of illegitimate returns of goods to retail stores, since the seriousness of the evil was made known to the public through the campaign instituted by the Commercial Economy Board, is attributed much of the improved business that is now being shown locally. It is said quite generally that, while gross business is not up to the 1917 mark as yet, net business is rapidly overcoming the deficit it shows. In some instances it is said already to have made up this deficit and to be showing some increase over last year.

Whole Trade Is Prospering.

The vogue for elaborate trimmings on women's hats which has developed during the last few weeks has resulted, it is said, in the most general prosperity in every branch of the millinery trade that has been experienced in recent years. "Other seasons some one or some few branches of the industry have had things pretty much their own way," said a prominent authority in this city yesterday. "But, this year, practically every branch of the industry is prospering. It's a peculiar thing, too, that each man in the trade will say 'business is not good generally, but we are doing exceptionally well.' He doesn't seem to realize that the other fellow is doing just about as well as he is."

Holding Up Trade?

Reports have reached the shoe market in this city that several New England manufacturers are offering shoes at prices considerably under those at which the original offerings were made. Authorities here believe that this can only result in holding up trade to a greater or less degree. Jobbers, with stocks on hand for which they paid the higher prices, will not be inclined to place additional business with the possibility of further reductions in shoe prices until they are actually in need of supplies. And, under present conditions, it is held to be highly improbable that any further reductions will be possible.

Something new in the way of Spring hats is now being seen in local millinery circles in the form of a long, high turban effect with cuff sides. The crown is slashed through the centre and filled in with burnt ostrich, which gives it a soft, "dressy" effect. This shape is seen in rough straws, as well as in Milan and liseré. Another new model seen here is a cushion-brimmed hat of rough straw. It is seen in practically all the leading shapes and is trimmed with wide, or polka-dotted foulard. It silk, satin, or polka dotted foulard. It is designed for either "tailored" or sports wear.

While fancy merchandise and that which is considered more or less in the luxury class is selling, it is being bought chiefly, it is reported, by those department stores located in large manufacturing centres. Where Government work is being done and high wages are being paid, the people seem to be very much inclined to buy the more expensive things which they probably have never before been able to afford. In other sections, however, the fancy goods are said to be more or less neglected. But plain staple lines have increased in demand in these localities, and those merchants who were farsighted enough to be prepared for the shift in buying have consequently managed to keep their volume well up and, in some cases, over last year's records.

More Cotton Hose Wanted.

Whether it is due to the great scarcity of what used to be "popular-priced" silk hose for women, or whether it is due to motives of economy on the part of the ultimate purchaser, a very strong wholesale demand for women's cotton hose has been in evidence here in the last few days. The great bulk of this business is duplicate and, while some of it is thought to be due to anticipation of increased retail demands in the next several months, it is also thought to show that consumer buying on this class of merchandise has taken a spurt with the coming of more seasonable weather. This kind of goods is scarce generally, and in certain quarters an especial shortage of "out" sizes for stout women is reported. A prominent selling agent says, however, that his mills could right now handle orders for at least 10,000 dozen.

Gray Goods Sales Smaller.

Sales were not so large in the local gray goods market yesterday as they might have been, in view of the active inquiry, but this was due very largely to the unwillingness of many sellers to trade. This was truer of printcloths than of sheetings, as some makers of the latter goods sold long contracts at nice prices. For shipment from July to January next, 15¾ cents was paid for 4.70 sheetings, while 56-60, four-yard sheetings brought 18½ cents for August-September deliveries. Among the sales of printcloths were 38½-inch 64-60s at 15 cents for shipments running into May. This construction now appears to be pretty well cleaned up at that price for any delivery, and practically everybody is asking 15¼ cents. Similar deliveries of 39-inch 56-44s were sold at 13 cents. Seventeen cents is now being asked generally for 39-inch 68-72s. Printcloth prices closed this way:

MANY REFORMS FAVORED

District Attorney Swann forwarded yesterday to Albany the report of Assistant District Attorney William Harmon Black, summarizing the results of the latter's investigation of the Fusion campaign fund. In this report, Mr. Black not only sets forth the receipts and the expenditures of all the committees which were engaged in assisting the cause of John Purroy Mitchel for re-election at the last mayoralty contest, but he also assails what he considers the "lavish" methods by which the committees pursued their work, with "little regard for money" and with a system of checking up expenditures that "was as full of holes as a sieve."

Mr. Black says in his report that William Hamlin Childs was the real boss of the Fusion campaign, and that numerous committees were formed which overlapped one another in a duplication of functions and expended funds on a reckless scale. The total receipts from all sources toward the election of Mr. Mitchel aggregated, according to Mr. Black's report, $1,345,159.97, and the total expenditures to $1,318,714.34. The itemized list of receipts and expenditures by committees, as presented in the reports, follows:

	Receipts.	Disbursements.
City Democracy	157,157.87	156,415.08
Mayor's Personal Committee	59,719.00	54,702.16
Public Welfare Committee	57,664.41	57,590.64
Public Education Committee	30,875.00	30,328.54

These figures do not include, according to Mr. Black, any disbursements for the election of other candidates on the Fusion ticket in addition to Mr. Mitchel. According to Mr. Black's report, the Fusion Campaign Committee engaged in all kinds of subterfuges to conceal its activities, accepting in violation of the law contributions from at least eight corporations, the names of which were as follows: Coleman Brothers, theatre business, $50; Cross Brown Company, real estate, $10; H. Milgrim & Brothers, ladies' tailors, $25; Hewlett, Robin & Co., millinery, $100; Hunt Land Corporation, real estate, $5; Lewis & Conger, housefurnishings, $50; Strong, Hewat & Co., woolens, $100, and T. Kirkpatrick & Co., jewelers, $50.

Despite the trivial character of these contributions and the comparative unimportance of the contributors, Mr. Black contends that the acceptance of such contributions from such concerns constituted in each case a distinct violation of the law.

Speaking of the publicity service, he says that "iron workers, plumbers, and others" served as camouflage for the payments of different sorts of political work. Describing alleged primary frauds and charging that Fusion funds were used to bail out offenders, Mr. Black says:

"During the primary election of the Republican Party, in which Mayor Mitchel and William M. Bennett were seeking the nomination of Mayor, frauds were committed by a number of Election Inspectors. The Inspectors were arrested and indicted. Subsequently some of them were convicted, and others pleaded guilty.

According to Mr. Black, the Fusion Committee kept no books, which added to the difficulty of auditing its account. He stated that many Treaurers of committees and others had admitted that they spent large sums paid them for campaign expenses in many directions not connected with the immediate campaign, "some betting on the races and others buying cigars and drinks for voters." He declares that expensive furniture bought with Fusion funds was in some instances broken up for firewood. He says that thouands of dollars were included in items for "postage."

"The system of checking up these expenditures," Mr. Black states, "was as full of holes as a sieve. Employes of the committee asked for stamps in large quantities, and the stamps were delivered without inquiry."

At the close of his report Mr. Black sets forth some general recommendations as to the future conduct of campaign committees — recommendations which he declared should be enforced by legislative action. He says:

"All political campaign committees should be compelled to publish a list of all receipts and disbursements in a local paper three days prior to election, the cost of such publication to be considered as legitimate election campaign expenses, or to file such itemized reports in the office of the County Clerk, the Board of Elections, and the office of the Secretary of State. The name and address of every contributor and receiver of money for campaign purposes should be stated.

"Newspapers should not be allowed to charge higher for campaign advertising than for comercial advertising.

"There should be no editorial comment in any edition in which any advertisement of candidate or party appears.

"All primaries and elections should be financed by the State.

"No employes of newspapers should receive any remuneration from any candidate or committee or party.

"An election law should be amended so as to provide that every speaker who has been paid or who expects to demand or receive compensation should be required to announce to his audience that he is being paid, the amount of his compensation, and by whom paid."

WASHINGTON, March 5.—At today's session of the Federal Trade Commission's news print inquiry, Chairman Colver indicated that the price to be set for April 1 would represent a fair figure for that date only and would not be anticipatory of future conditions.

The inquiry turned again to the production cost of pulp wood. Walter Meigs, a New York pulp wood operator, called by the manufacturers, testified to soaring costs for all operations necessary in fitting the product for market.

OIL MEN AGREE TO AID FUEL ADMINISTRATION

Mark L. Requa, the recently appointed Chief of the Oil Division of the United States Fuel Administration, who arrived here on Monday, continued his conferences with leading producers and handlers of petroleum yesterday. The object of the conferences was said to be a general speeding up of the oil industry in such manner as to meet the war requirements of the Amrican and allied Governments.

Mr. Requa attended in the morning a meeting of the Petroleum War Service Committee held at the office of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, 26 Broadway, at which A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the company, who also is Chairman of the War Service Committee, presided. Others present were E. C. Lufkin, President of the Texas company; H. F. Sinclair, President of the Sinclair Oil and Refining Company; J. W. Van Dyke, President of the Atlantic Refining Company; W. C. Teagle, President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey; S. Messer, President of the National Petroleum Association; J. S. Cosden, representing the Western Petroleum Refiners' Association; W. S. Farish, President of the Gulf Coast Oil Producers' Association; J. A. Moffett, secretary of the committee, and Frank J. Silsbee, statistician of the Oil Division of the Fuel Administration, Washington.

Mr. Requa conferred with oil representatives and Government officials at the New York offices of the Oil Division, 42 Broadway, later in the day. He has sent out a questionnaire to all petroleum producers east of the Rocky Mountains, which a representative of the head of the Oil Division said would, when completed, be in effect a survey of the oil situation in the important section covered. Mr. Requa urged the producers and shippers to expedite the getting of the data together.

One of the most pressing matters taken up at the conference had to do with assembling a greater tank tonnage. Those present agreed to co-operate with Mr. Requa and the Shipping Board in placing all available tonnage at the disposal of the Government.

The facts gleaned from the questionnaire, will probably later on be used in determining any policy as to a fixed price for petroleum products, similar to the fixed price for coal set by Dr. Garfield. It was stated at the close of yesterday's conferences that the question of further Government control over the petroleum industry rested entirely with the trade. Up to this time, a representative of Mr. Requa said, there had been the most complete co-operation on the part of the producers and other elements, with the Government. Consequently, no reason existed for the Government taking over the oil plants. Transportation facilities, now under the control of the Government, were declared adequate to move oil to seaboard.

The petroleum men gave their views regarding the benefits to accrue to Germany from possession of the Russian and Rumanian oil fields. They agreed that, despite the difficulties of transportation and the high cost of working the fields, Germany had been placed in a much better position to continue the war. According to trustworthy reports laid before the conference, Germany's weakest spot in military activities for some time had been in the military transport system, which the reports said, was threatened with complete collapse owing to lack of oil for motor trains. With new supplies available, Germany would be quick to replenish stocks, whatever the cost. None of the oil men was inclined to minimize the gain to Germany of peace with Russia and Rumania.

Denial was made by a representative of the Oil Division that a shortage in available supplies of petroleum existed at this time. This man reiterated that the chief concern at the moment was to find sufficient tank tonnage to move oil across the Atlantic.

Bonds Formerly Held by British Investors

We are offering a limited amount of First Mortgage 5% Bonds of a strictly high grade character to yield close to 6%. The bonds do not represent a new issue, but have come on the market as a result of the operation of British Treasury regulations. They thus constitute one of those investment opportunities which the war occasionally makes possible.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

If the public is paying any attention to the stock market it is doing it in a detached way, for commission business has been reduced to the minimum and speculative dealings have fallen away. Yesterday's turnover showed a further shrinkage and price changes were mostly unimportant. Some of the industrials moved up under the influence of favorable earnings statements and the list reflected underlying strength. The public is waiting on news from Washington and did not respond yesterday to the favorable influence of easier money rates. Call loans ruled at 5 per cent., with some money put out as low as 2½ per cent.

The railroads were generally inactive and firm with the market extremely narrow. The issues which were relatively active made slight gains, but there has been no evidence lately of any speculative interest in this department, and the volume of business has been steadily contracting. Not even the appearance of a report of the importance of the Pennsylvania's, with its showing of the inroads which higher operating costs have made upon net income, was sufficient to shake the market out of its lethargy. Some interest was manifested in a dispatch from Washington, which suggested an upward revision of rates, which may be announced shortly after the enactment of the new railroad measure. It is apparent that a considerable increase in aggregate revenues must be effected if the advancing costs of operation are to be covered without too much reliance upon Government aid.

Additional annual reports which are coming to hand indicate that most corporations will be able to meet the heavy burden put upon them by the excess profits tax without serious loss in surplus. The Republic Iron and Steel Company, after doubling the reserve for depreciation, set aside nearly $10,000,000 for new taxes and was still able to show net profits for last year of $16,616,000 as against $15,647,000 for the preceding year. The report carries a warning that with a larger percentage of operation taken up by Government business the average prices for the current period will be substantially below those received in 1917. The United States Industrial Alcohol Company set aside $5,240,000 for the new taxes and was then able to show net earnings of $7,108,000 against the $4,885,000 earned in 1916.

The extent to which Government business has entered into the calculations of many leading industrial companies is well illustrated by the case of the American Woolen Company, which has diverted more than 50 per cent. of its capacity to handle orders totaling $100,000,000 for Government account.

LONDON MARKET DULL AGAIN

LONDON, March 5.—The selling of Japanese bonds, which started on the Stock Exchange late yesterday, continued today on fears that the Eastern situation will check redemption purchases and further declines will be registered.

The market otherwise was dull with the chief attention given to Nigerian mines and Russian and other speculative issues at irregular price changes. Gilt-edged securities were neglected, while Chinese bonds were better.

Money was in increased demand for investment in war bonds. Discount rates were quiet.

HEARING ON UTILITIES BILL.

State Municipal Ownership Measure to be Discussed Here Friday.

The Wagner-Donahue Municipal Ownership bill will be the subject of a public hearing before the Committee on State Legislation of the Board of Aldermen in the Aldermanic Chamber, City Hall, on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The bill empowers cities to buy, acquire, and operate public utilities, and provides that any city may, by resolution of the Aldermanic Board, submit the question to the voters of the city as to whether the city shall acquire, own, and operate any public utility. In New York City the resolution must be passed by the Board of Estimate and Board of Aldermen concurrently. If the boards do not pass such a resolution, citizens may present a petition, which must be signed by 10 per cent. of the voters of the city, to have the question submitted.

Provisions of the bill will be explained by Senator Wagner and Assemblyman Donahue, who will report on the progress of the bill in the Legislature and what must be done by the citizens to obtain favorable action on the measure at Albany. Mayor Hylan and President Smith of the Board of Aldermen will also discuss the city's attitude on the bill. Robert L. Moran, Chairman of the committee before which the hearing will be held, announced that among those who have already signified their intention of speaking are Frederic C. Howe, Commissioner of Immigration; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, James P. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor; Dr. John Haynes Holmes, William A. De Ford, and representatives of taxpayers' and civic organizations.

"I hope the hearing will be largely attended by citizens," said Acting Mayor Smith. "This is an opportunity for those who are unable to go to Albany to register their views here on one of the most important matters that has ever come before a legislative body."

The general stock of money in the United States on March 1 totaled $6,351,548,056, as compared with $5,146,178,003 a year ago, according to estimates made by the Treasury Department. Money in circulation on March 1 amounted to $5,092,530,682, as against $4,583,695,870 a year ago. Based on a population of 105,293,000, the per capita circulation at the beginning of this month is placed at $48.37, compared with $44.26 a year ago and $47.23 a month ago. Just before the outbreak of the European war, namely, July 1, 1914, the per capita circulation was $34.35.

Elihu Root Engaged in Tax Case.

The Association of Partners in Stock Exchange Firms announced yesterday that its Committee on Legislation had entered into an arrangement with ex-United States Senator Elihu Root whereby he would represent the interests of Stock Exchange firms in the suits now pending in the United States Court on the question of the legality of Treasury Decision No. 2,609, this ruling permitting firms dealing in securities to inventory their holdings on Dec. 31 "at cost or at market price, whichever is lower." The legality of the ruling having been questioned, the Treasury Department has advised that all returns made under it would be accepted only tentatively, pending decisions on certain cases now pending which bear upon the subject.

The Hudson Tubes.

In view of the fact that the Government had taken over the Hudson tunnels, the earnings' report of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad Company for January is interesting as bearing on the Government's prospects. The Pennsylvania, with which the tubes are linked up, showed an operating deficit for the month of January. The tubes, however, although they lost $24,144 from their net income for January, 1917, kept on the right side of the ledger by a margin of $66,587 for the month. Their gross revenue for the month increased from $541,294 in January, 1917, to $575,927, but operating expenses and taxes went up from $234,332 to $291,808.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York is asking purchasers of the ten-dollar participation certificates issued by the bank in connection with the First Liberty Loan of June, 1917, to present them in multiples of five for exchange into the definitive 3½ per cent. bonds, in accordance with the terms of the certificates. All told there were sold $1,344,680 of these ten-dollar certificates, and to date there have been turned in for exchange $1,195,550. The balance of certificates outstanding amounts to $149,130.

Rate for Acceptances.

Officers of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, when asked about the report published on one of the news tickers that the bank had raised the rate at which it will buy bankers' acceptances, said that the bank had not suddenly advanced the rate, but, having a leeway from 3 to 4½ per cent., had for about ten days been paying as much as 4¼ per cent. for certain acceptances. The rate is not fixed, and the bank may on a single day buy acceptances at varying rates. The margin of from 3 to 4½ per cent. is determined by the Federal Reserve Board in Washington.

Canadian Shipbuilding Prospects.

The Monetary Times of Toronto publishes some interesting figures on the Canadian shipbuilding program, which is under the direction of the Imperial Munitions Board. Since March 1, 1917, a total of 339,300 tons of new shipping, to cost $64,500,000, has been contracted for in Canada. This includes 46 wooden ships, totaling 128,000 tons, and 43 steel ships, totaling 211,300 tons. Four steel ships of this program, totaling 13,900 tons, have already been completed, and four wooden ship launched. Canada hopes in 1918 to build at least 400,000 tons of new shipping. In 1914 the total tonnage output of Canadian yards was only 43,346.

Ten New Reserve Bank Members.

During the months of January and February the following ten State institutions were admitted to membership in the Federal Reserve Bank of New York: The Lincoln Trust Company of New York City, the Bloomfield Trust Company of Bloomfield, N. J.; the Trust Company of Fulton County of Gloversville, N. Y.; the People's Bank and Trust Company of Passaic, N. J.; the People's Bank and Trust Company of Westfield, N. J.; the Hudson Trust Company of West Hoboken, N. J.; the Alliance Trust and Guaranty Company of Hackensack, N. J.; the Bank of Hammondsport of Hammondsport, N. Y.; the Rutherford Trust Company of Rutherford, N. J., and the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York.

Cotton Price Fixing and Supply.

One cotton man in New York is heartily in favor of price fixing, provided it begins at the manufacturer and works back to the raw cotton, and he maintains that the price cut need not be very drastic to accomplish the result which he is looking for, and which constitutes his reason for favoring it. In fact, he is of the opinion that if a price is once fixed, quotations will actually go considerably below the minimum instead of holding up to it, as has been the case with other commodities. His reason is that, as he believes, there is an immense quantity of cotton, perhaps a million bales, being held speculatively in the South in the hope of realizing far higher prices than even the present after peace comes. If once the holders of this cotton find, he contends, that the Government will not permit them to carry out this plan, they will throw it on the market. Then, he believes, it will be discovered that the drastic cuts in consumption have already more than compensated for the short crop; cotton will be plentiful and prices will go much lower.

Yukon Gold Co. Reduces Dividend.

The Yukon Gold Company declared yesterday a quarterly dividend of 2½ cents a share, the reduction of 5 cents per share following out the suggestion made by President William Loeb, Jr., in the annual statement a few days ago that the payment would be cut. The dividend will be paid March 30 to stock owners of record March 8. The Yukon-Alaska Trust, which controls the gold company, voted the usual quarterly dividend of $1 per share, also payable March 30.

BANK MERGER ANNOUNCED.

Consolidation of Irving Trust and Market and Fulton Effected.

Frederic G. Lee, President of the Irving Trust Company, and Robert A. Parker, President of the Market and Fulton National Bank, issued a joint statement yesterday announcing the consolidation of the two institutions. The absorption of the bank by the trust company was completed yesterday, when the Board of Directors of the Market and Fulton accepted the offer made by the Irving to purchase the assets of the bank at a price said to be the equivalent of $310 a share on the outstanding stock of the Market and Fulton.

Its main office is in the Woolworth Building, and it operates five branches. The Market and Fulton National Bank, at 81 Fulton Street, which was established in 1852, has a capital of $1,000,000, surplus and undivided profits of $2,185,672, and deposits of $15,146,340. 2. If you invest now your income might offset any slight saving in price which you would make by waiting.

AMERICAN WOOLEN EARNS $15,644,985

BOOKINGS NOW $80,732,000

The American Woolen Company's annal report, yesterday revealed the tremendous demand which came to the mills for clothing and other materials to equip the American Army and Navy, the orders from the United States Government from March, 1917, to the end of the year amounting to more than $100,000,000. In order to expedite the filling of these contracts, the Government advanced the company $16,400,000 in cash. The product of the expanded Government business, together with increased orders from private buyers, was the most profitable year the company ever had, the net profit of $15,664,985 being $7,454,224 greater than in the preceding year.

"The year 1917 has been one of unparalleled business activity," said William M. Wood, President. "Starting the year as we did with an amount of unfilled orders on our books never before approached in the company's history and with every prospect of an unprecedented civilian business, the additional heavy demands by the Federal Government, pursuant to the entrance of the United States into the world war, far outstripped our ability to meet all requirements. Within a few months after the declaration of war, over 50 per cent. of the company's machinery was absorbed in the various fabrics required by our army and navy, and the company has since secured additional Government contracts, insuring the employment of approximately that same proportion of its machinery into the year 1918.

Civilian Trade Hampered.

"These extraordinarily large orders seriously interfered with civilian trade, causing a heavy curtailment of deliveries to our customers, and resulting in a constant inquiry for goods which we could not make, although looms adaptable to Government work have been devoted to civilian requirements. At the beginning of 1917 unfilled orders on the books amounted to $40,550,000, while the close of business Dec. 31 showed $80,732,000 of unfilled orders, for which practically all wool requirements have been anticipated by securing advance supplies."

The company's profit available for common stock dividends was equal to $20.22 a share, compared with $15.31 in 1916. The principal features of the income account, with comparisons, are presented in this table:

Insur. res...	1,250,000	......	......
Balance	$6,844,156	$5,863,818	$4,080,686
Dividends ...	3,800,000	3,800,000	2,800,000

The tabulation shows that the excellent income was availed of to build up special reserves, while nearly 20 per cent. of the profit was set aside to meet the Government's war taxes.

Exports Reach $1,303,000.

Mr. Wood informed stockholders that the manufacture of domestic dyes showed a notable improvement in quality, and many new dyes were brought to the market. The cost of supplies of all sorts increased substantially, and were hard to obtain because of difficulties of transportation. Early in the year, the report said, the export business was segregated from manufacturing and domestic selling corporations, and a number of new branch offices were opened in South America, Canada, Cuba, and Mexico. Exports comprised about $1,303,000 worth of goods.

The company sought to forestall expected difficulties in obtaining coal by equipping several of the larger mills with oil burning facilities. The action of the Government, said Mr. Wood, in commandeering tank steamers and slowness of rail shipments of oil made the fuel problem a troublesome one, despite the precautions taken.

In respect to supplies of wool, the report stated that on July 30 the Government began buying for its own account, and this reservoir of raw material, bought at fixed prices, had the effect of stabilizing the wool market. The market was held further in check by the arrival of 45,000 bales of Australian wool for civilian purposes, the first wool from this source to reach this country in nearly two years. Later the market was under the influence of the expected receipt of 200,000 bales of Australian product for Government account, to be shipped in the future.

ALCOHOL EARNINGS SOAR.

Industrial Company's Profits $12,511,277, a Gain of 150%.

The consumption of alcohol in the manufacture of explosives for the allied military forces, including those of the United States, found reflection in record earnings of the United States Industrial Alcohol Company in 1917. The annual statement, issued yesterday, disclosed a profit of $12,511,277, after provision had been made for operating costs, depreciation, and repairs. This was $7,466,934, or about 150 per cent., greater than in the preceding year. The management reserved $5,239,860 for the Federal war income and excess profits taxes, equal to more than 42 per cent. of the amount reported as profit.

After paying interest, a balance of $7,108,984 remained for dividends. The company paid out $420,000 on the preferred stock and $128,562 on the preferred stock of the Cuba Distilling Company, leaving a balance of $6,560,422 for the common stock. This was equal to $54.67 a share of Industrial Alcohol common, compared with slightly more than $36 in 1916. The report said that the net earnings included the income from the sale of a steamship owned by a subsidiary concern, and also the profit derived from operating the company's fleet of 32,000 tons.

THE COTTON MARKET

Prices Soar Again, the Active Months Hitting New Records —Net Gain 13 to 34 Points.

Cotton prices soared again on the local market yesterday, the continuation of the latest big bull movement once more carrying all the active months into new high records for the history of the trade. The advance was neither as steady nor as well sustained as it had been on Monday, and at several points, when prices wavered under realizing, there were predictions of a reaction, but it failed to come. The close was steady, from 13 to 34 points up from Monday's closing figures.

There were many indications during the day that the recent advance had not only obliterated the effects of the slump caused by the fuel holidays, but had also squeezed out most of the big short interest which was built up during that slump. Some observers, indeed, were of the opinion yesterday that, if anything, the market was rather oversold than otherwise, basing this judgment on the course of the trading and the manoeuvres of men formerly known to be heavily short.

It was noticed, for instance, that at the very outset March contracts, in which until recently there was supposed to be the largest short interest, were relatively easy, with few notices out but no great rush of takers. The first prices were from 2 points lower to 9 higher. Trade demand speedily developed in volume comparable with that of Monday, and prices began to go up again. As on Monday, Liverpool as well as domestic trade interests bought strongly.

After the Liverpool closing hour, however, the demand eased off, and some realizing developed tenderness in the new prices, with reactions of several points. This did not last long, however, and the best prices of the day were made in a renewed advance toward the close, which was a trifle off from the best.

Exports yesterday totaled 21,956 bales. Private cables from Liverpool spoke of renewed anxiety regarding cargo space, but this does not coincide with reports from shipping circles here. There were no signs of such a condition in the spot market reports, as all Southern spot quotations were higher for the day.

WHEAT.

Receipts of wheat at Western points were small, and mills continue to complain of their inability to offer flour on account of the scarcity of wheat and the fact that many of the mills have already ground their full allotment. The flour trade is hoping that if the Government report on farm reserves shows a total equal to private estimates, and the crop outlook seems favorable, the Food Administration may make some modification in its ruling regarding the amount of wheat mills can grind.

RYE.—The rye market was again strong, with prices in the West unchanged to 2c higher. The local market was unsettled and nominal, but based on conditions in the West prices here were quoted nominally at $2.87, cost and freight, New York, to arrive.

CORN.

The demand for cash corn throughout the West is unabated, and while receipts continue liberal prices hold firm. Driers throughout the country are anxious buyers of sound corn, and even the lower grades were in good request. As long as this big demand continues the trade sees little prospect of much accumulation. Stocks at Chicago gained 665,000 bushels for the week, bringing the total there to 2,627,000, against 4,692,000 last year. In the local cash market kiln dried No. 2 yellow was quoted at $2.19½; No. 3 yellow, $1.98½; No. 3 white, $2.26½, cost and freight, New York. Argentine corn, $2.25, free on board cars.

OATS.

A very firm undertone developed in the oats market and prices at the close were ½c to 1½c net higher. Shorts were good buyers and the market was influenced by pronounced strength in the Northwest and by firmness in the cash position. There were rumors that the embargo against shipments to the East will be raised in the near future and this was looked upon as a bullish feature as far as the Western cash position is concerned. Receipts were quite liberal but the trade fears that the movement may not hold as special efforts are being made to move corn. The local cash market was firm; natural quoted at $1.06½ to $1.06½; clipped white $1.07 to $1.10, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Prices in the provision list are being dominated largely by the stocks on hand. Lard, which is in comparatively small supply, continues to rule firm, while ribs and pork show an easier undertone owing to the large increase in stocks. The market yesterday was only moderately active and price changes were irregular. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 48,000; estimated for Wednesday, 32,000; Kansas City received 8,800, and Omaha 11,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The only feature in the cottonseed oil market on Tuesday was the delivery of a thousand barrels on March contracts. Otherwise the market was entirely without feature, and closing prices were nominally unchanged. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

Trading in coffee futures yesterday was extremely quiet, the moderate demand coming mostly from local trade sources, while offerings were light. The market opened unchanged to a decline of 1 point, and prices worked upward later, closing at net gains of 5 to 7 points. The jobbing demand for coffee was less in evidence, but the local spot market was firmly held at unchanged prices on the basis of 8⅝c for Rio 7s and 10⅝c for Santos 4s. No fresh cost and freight offers were reported here from Brazil, with indications pointing to an unchanged market. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There was no change in raw sugar prices, which were quoted at 4.985c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.005c for centrifugal, but business was larger, the committee reporting sales of 280,000 bags of Cubas for March shipment at 4.985c, cost and freight, equal to 6.005c for centrifugal to the United States, and 43,300 bags Santo Domingos, afloat, at 4.749c, cost, insurance, and freight, for Canada. In refined business is by no means up to normal, although deliveries from day to day are of fair proportion, and conditions are gradually improving. The weather has aided in the transportation of sugar to some extent, and, as there is considerable sugar purchased for this country for shipment during the current month, refineries should be kept working up to full capacity. Prices are unchanged at 7.45c for fine granulated.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 12,479 packages. Market firmer. Pretty full receipts and a good deal of stock accumulated here, but trade is enlarging quite rapidly, and there is a much more hopeful feeling. Prices about ½c higher on most grades of creamery, about steady on renovated, and still weak and unsettled on ladles and packing stock. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb, 48½@49c; extras, (92 score,) 48c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 46½@47¾c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 45@46c; thirds, 43½@44½c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 49@49½c; extras, 48@48½c; firsts, 46½@47½c; seconds, 44½@46c; creamery, held, as to quality, 43½@47c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 47@47½c; good to prime, 45½@46½c; common to fair, 41@45c; renovated, extras, 44½@45c; firsts, 43@44c; lower grades, 38@42c; imitation creamery, firsts, 41@41½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 36½@37½c; seconds, 35@35½c; lower grades, 33½@34½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 35c; No. 2, 34c; lower grades, 31@33c.

EGGS.—8,426 cases. A more active demand developed Monday afternoon and yesterday morning. With firmer Western advices, a better distributing trade and some speculative support the market opened firm and higher, with prices up to this writing having recovered fully 1½c on average Western and Southern. There is also an active demand for white eggs, and both Pacific Coast and nearbys are clearing readily at considerably higher prices than prevailed Monday. REPUBLIC STEEL HAS BEST YEAR IN HISTORY

Net Earnings for 1917 Reach $28,329,718, a Gain of $11,785,083 Over Preceding Year.

The Republic Iron and Steel Company reports net earnings amounting to $28,329,718 in 1917, a gain of $11,785,083 over the preceding year. The statement issued yesterday was the best ever presented by the company. After setting aside $9,878,657 to cover excess profits taxes and other contingent charges, and writing off nearly $1,000,000 more for depreciation and plant renewal than in 1916, a balance of $16,616,531 remained, which was approximaately $1,000,000 more than the preceding year brought in when no reserve had to be made for war taxes.

The amount available for common stock dividends was $14,007,197, equal to more than $53 a share of stock and surpassing the equivalent figure of the United States Steel Corporation by about $13 a share. In the preceding year the balance for the junior stock issue was $10,289,163, but this was left after the company had paid off a large accumulation of preferred stock dividends. The total surplus at the end of the year, amounting to $30,711,988, was $12,475,737 larger than on Dec. 31, 1916.

The company employed an average of 14,510 men, an increase of 1,454, and paid out $17,574,480 in wages, an average of $1,211 a man. In the preceding year the payroll entailed $12,778,836, an average of $979 for each worker.

John A. Topping, Chairman, said in his statement to the stockowners that a shortage of fuel and inadequate transportation facilities had hampered operations in the last quarter. In order to insure adequate fuel supplies, additional coal property was bought and manufacturing facilities were also expanded, all with an expenditure of $7,277,464. The management set aside $7,500,000 for new construction and $2,341,000 of the company's first mortgage bonds were bought for retirement. The net working assets at the end of the year amounted to $25,945,536.

The production of finished and semi-finished steel was 1,109,829 tons, a decline of 106,887 tons from the 1916 record. The iron mines turned out 1,706,555 gross tons of ore, compared with 1,693,450 tons the year before, and the pig iron production amounted to 1,062,657, against 1,117,697 tons.

"The balance of unfilled orders on hand as of Dec. 31, 1917," said Mr. Topping, "shows some loss of tonnage as compared with the preceding year, which is due partly to our policy of holding in reserve tonnage for the Government's war program, and partly to the reduction in the general demand. This loss of tonnage, while suggestive, is not disturbing because it will require a large part of all productive capacity to satisfy the demands of our Government, its Allies and those of transportation. Orders now booked, however, will insure active operations for several months to come at full capacity, but average prices will be substantially below those of 1917."

The orders on Dec. 31 were for 318,324 tons of steel, compared with 617,950 tons a year before, and 100,619 tons of pig iron, in contrast with 183,026 tons on Dec. 31, 1916.

RATE ON BANK DEPOSITS LIMITED TO 3 PER CENT.

New York Clearing House Makes Public Proposed Amendment to By-laws—Penalty $10,000.

The New York Clearing House made public yesterday the text of the resolution adopted by the Clearing House Committee in respect to interest rates paid on deposits, and also the text of the amendment to the association's by-laws governing the same, which will be acted upon at a special meeting of the association called for next Monday afternoon.

Under the provisions of the proposed amendment, national banks, State banks and trust companies which are members of the Clearing House and those institutions which clear through members, will not be permitted to pay interest on demand deposits which is in excess of 2 per cent. under the prevailing Federal Reserve Bank's rate for the rediscount of 90-day commercial paper, and in no case shall the rate paid be in excess of 3 per cent. With the Reserve Bank rate of 4½ per cent., the maximum that members would be able to pay would be 2½ per cent. Emphasis was placed on the fact that under the terms of the proposed by-law banks are not obliged to pay a uniform rate of interest, but must not pay more than the fixed maximum. In the circumstances, if the amendment is adopted, institutions which disapprove of paying at the present time more than 2 per cent. will be able to adhere to that rate.

The amendment provides for a penalty of $10,000 for violation of the proposed new by-law, and a second offense is punishable by expulsion from the Clearing House. The propsed amendment is silent on the subject of interest rates paid on time deposits.

Whereas, It is believed there is serious danger that bidding for deposits through competing interest rates may weaken the banking structure and lead to injurious results; and

Whereas, The Federal Reserve Board have expressed their apprehension of like consequences from such practice, and have suggested the establishment by the New York Clearing House banks of maximum interest rates on deposits based on the discount rates fixed from time to time by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That this committee call a special meeting of the association, at which notice shall be given of a proposal to amend the Constitution of the association by the addition of a new article to be designated "Article XI.," and by renumbering the present Article XI. so that the same shall be designated Article XII.

Section 1. No member of this association, or bank or trust company or others clearing through such members, shall agree to pay, or shall pay, directly or indirectly, on any domestic credit balance or any certificate of deposit payable on demand or within thirty days, a rate of interest in excess of 2 per cent. less than the then rate for ninety days' rediscounts at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, except that the maximum rate paid by members, or nonmembers clearing through members, shall not in any case be higher than 3 per cent. per annum.

The Clearing House Committee, upon ascertaining to the satisfaction of a majority of its members that a member, or nonmember clearing through a member, has violated the provisions of this section, shall report their findings to the association and if approved by a majority vote of all the members of the association, the offending member or nonmember shall be fined ten thousand ($10,000) dollars. On the second offense the member, or such nonmember, shall be subject to expulsion from the Clearing House Association and the committee will proceed to act as the Constitution provides for the expulsion of a member.

The membership of the Clearing House numbers fifty-nine, and it is expected that at Monday's meeting there will be a full attendance.

REAL ESTATE FIELD.

The uncompleted six-story apartment house at 119 to 125 West Twelfth Street, formerly owned by the company headed by William Lustgarten, was taken over yesterday at foreclosure on a bid of $69,000 by the 119-125 West Twelfth Street Company, representing Lustgarten creditors. The new company, with a directorate consisting of O. B. Bertelson, M. Jarcho, and W. M. Hyman, plans to complete the building operation and have the structure available in about two months.

Joseph P. Day conducted the sale, which was brought about as a result of the action instituted by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company against the William Lustgarten Company to recover on a judgment of $68,782 and interest. The building operation was started in 1916, but work suspended last August when Lustgarten suddenly disappeared.

The site, which measures 75 by 103.3 feet, was formerly occupied by the edifice of the Second United Presbyterian Church.

Adds to Harlem Holdings.

Henry W. Kriete purchased from the estate of Baruch Wolff the three-story dwelling at 68 West 126th Street, on a lot 18.9 by 100. The purchaser owns the abutting four-story building at 61 West 125th Street, where he operates a café.

Investors Buying Tenements.

Max Kornreich sold to George B. Burnham for investment 1,707 Third Avenue, a three-story tenement, on a lot 25.2 by 100, adjoining the southeast corner of Ninety-sixth Street.

J. M. Tienken and J. H. Wohltman have increased their holdings on West Forty-ninth Street by the purchase of 322 from Sol Dornberger. The property consists of a five-story tenement on a lot 25 by 100.5. The buyers own similar houses at 320, 326, 332, and 340 on the same street.

Private Dwellings Sold.

S. M. Stroock sold to an investing client of Slawson & Hobbs 133 West Eighty-fifth Street, a four-story dwelling, on a lot 20 by 55 by 97, held at $40,000.

The Land Estates, associated with the New York Title and Mortgage Company, sold to an investor 265 West 132d Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 14 by 99.11, to Dorothy McCullagh.

Queens Borough Sales.

E. G. Alsdorf sold to the Seaside Improvement Company a plot 53 by 100 feet, on the west side of Hollywood Avenue, 350 feet north of the Boulevard, Rockaway Beach.

A. J. Cisney sold to L. N. Pipes of Pittsburgh, Penn., a plot 60 by 113 feet, on the east side of Spruce Street, 370 feet north of Kimball Avenue, Jamaica.

M. Irwin sold to J. G. McNicoll the dwelling and plot, 50 by 100 feet, on the south side of Willow Street, 275 feet east of Sycamore Avenue, Corona.

The Lafayette Trust Company sold to A. Lischower the dwelling and plot, 40 by 100 feet, on the northeast corner of Amstel Boulevard and Clarence Avenue, Arverne.

Long Island.

Westchester County.

Long-Term Wooster Street Lease.

Frank P. Cruger has leased, through the Charles F. Noyes Company and White-Goodman, from Daniel P. Morse, 80 and 82 Wooster Street for ten years, at an aggregate rental of about $85,000. The building is a seven-story and basement semi-fireproof structure, and was recently purchased by Mr. Morse through the Charles F. Noyes Company from Clarence Payne.

The lease is of interest in that the tenant, who is a prominent dealer in dried fruits, nuts, and specialty manufacturing, has been located for twelve years at 470 Greenwich Street, and this lease brings another line of business into the old dry goods section.

Lease Changes on West 45th Street.

The Cross & Brown Company and T. B. Robertson have sold the lease held by the Forty-fifth Street Garage Company on 502 to 508 West Forty-fifth Street, and have leased this plot, in conjunction with 510 to 514 West Forty-fifth Street, adjoining, for A. C. and J. A. Fiske and Thomas Connors, to the New York Bottling Company for a term of twenty-one years. The tenant will remodel the buildings for its own occupancy.

To Remodel West Side Dwelling.

For the purpose of altering it into bachelor apartments, Benjamin B. Kirtland has leased from Noble McConnell the four-story dwelling at 121 West Eighty-sixth Street, on a lot 20 by 100, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues. The lease is for a term of twenty-one years, at an aggregate rental of about $70,000. The Duross Company and the Houghton Company were the brokers in the transaction.

Commercial Lease.

Postpone Hearing on Astor Appeal.

At the request of Peabody, Wilson & Brown, architects, who appeared in behalf of Lord Astor, the Board of Appeals yesterday laid over until May 14 the appeal to amend the zoning resolution which would permit the erection of a business building on the block front on the west side of Madison Avenue, between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth Streets. This property, which also includes the frontages at 11 to 17 East Thirty-fifth Street and 12 to 18 East Thirty-sixth Street, is now restricted to residential use. Lord Astor some time ago filed plans for a tall commercial structure which brought the matter to an issue.

A representative of Lord Astor, in asking for the postponement, stated that a petition had been filed with the Board of Estimate, seeking the necessary change in the law. Action by this body is expected within several weeks. If it should grant the petition no action on the part of the Board of Appeals would be required, since the Board of Estimate has power to change the content of the zoning law at its own discretion.

Edmund L. Baylies, appearing for the Murray Hill Association and the Flintlock Realty Company, which own property on the other side of the avenue, registered his opposition to the proposed amendment, but did not object to the postponement of the hearing.

City Island Shipyard Growth.

Kyle & Purdy, yacht builders at City Island, will build a $150,000 addition to their shipyard. Plans were filed yesterday by J. Robert Kaplan, architect, calling for the erection of a three-story hollow-tile factory, 180 by 60, on the west side of King Avenue, 155 feet south of Fordham Avenue.

A Recent Buyer.

Realty Notes.

KING GEORGE CABLES TO PILGRIM DINERS

HONOR ARCHBISHOP OF YORK

The high mission of France, England and America as continuing guardians of the world's ideals of liberty was the theme of distinguished speakers from the three nations last night at the fifteenth annual dinner of the Pilgrims, held at the Waldorf. The guest of honor was the Most Rev. and Right Hon. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York, and associated with him were the Earl of Reading, British Ambassador and High Commissioner, and J. J. Jusserand, Ambassador of the French Republic. For the first time the guests included women, who were present in hundreds, and who joined with the men in applauding the firm determination voiced by all the speakers to persist until victory shall come to the free nations in the fight against Germany.

The Archbishop of York, in a phrase well fitted to the purposes of the Pilgrims, declared that "Britain and America must forget the past, embrace the present, and prepare for a common future, the future of the free nations of the world." And the same word was spoken for France by Ambassador Jusserand and Lord Reading.

"The Pilgrims Society of America, gathered tonight at dinner of welcome to the Archbishop of York and to your Majesty's new Ambassador, Lord Reading, also in celebration of the fifteenth anniversary of the society, the thousand guests, including the Ambassador of France, hail your Majesty as America's honored and glorious ally, and offer respectful and heartfelt greetings as well as prayer for the victory of our united cause.

"To Cunliffe-Owen, Vice President Pilgrims Society, 37 Riverside Drive:

"The message from the Pilgrims Society of America has been received by me with feelings of pride and of gratification. I warmly thank those who have joined in this expression of greetings to myself and of hopes for that victory for our common cause by which the future peace of the world can be secured. My countrymen with me will appreciate the honor done to the British Ambassador and to the Archbishop of York by this distinguished gathering, including the French Ambassador, which this evening commemorates the fifteenth anniversary of your society.

"GEORGE, R. I."

Persons familiar with British Court etiquette commented on the fact that the message was penned and signed by the King himself and not by a subordinate as indicating his deep personal interest in the event.

"End May Be Distant, but Is Sure."

In the absence of Chauncey M. Depew, the newly elected President of the Pilgrims, who is in St. Augustine, Fla., Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, one of the Vice Presidents, presided, and was greeted with a burst of cheers when he affirmed America's unalterable purpose to continue the war to victory.

"The end may be distant," he declared, "but the end is sure." In welcoming the two British guests of honor he called them the representatives respectively of faith and justice—for Lord Reading, besides his diplomatic office, holds also that of Lord Chief Justice of England—"faith and justice," said Dr. Butler, "the two great pillars of all civilization and all progress.

"A celebrated German historian," he continued, "has said since the beginning of the present war that the world would be healed by being Germanized. We think not. This fight and this stupendous sacrifice for an idea are the answer of a new-born world to those sociologists who see in history nothing but a cunning contest for material gain.

"We have as guests tonight two eminent representatives of Great Britain, a nation which, confronted by a momentous decision at the outbreak of this war, chose to keep her faith. Her national and imperial efforts since that moment stagger the imagination; and we greet tonight the spokesmen of that England which for a thousand years has been the guardian at the gate of the house of liberty."

Lord Reading, in responding, recalled a previous occasion on which he had been the guest of the Pilgrims, on Sept. 30, 1915.

At that time Lord Reading was a member of the commission negotiating the Anglo-French loan, and Joseph H. Choate was President of the Pilgrims, and Lord Reading gave testimony not only to the assistance which Mr. Choate gave to the Anglo-French Commission at that time but to his services to the cause of Anglo-American understanding when he was Ambassador to England—"so beloved by us," said Lord Reading, "and I verily believe sowing the seeds of that accord which now exists. If I could ever have the choice of the death which should be mine I would ask to be placed in the same position as Mr. Choate just before he died."

Then, with a compliment to Ambassador Jusserand, he turned to the part of France—"France ever glorious," said Lord Reading, "but never more so than at the present moment, when her grave and heroic citizens have taken their places in the front line of the battle for liberty. Whatever may happen, English-speaking peoples will never forget the example that France has given us of true and sterling courage, and they will never forget that France is the bond which brings America and Great Britain together.

"I am often reminded of those days at the outbreak of the war, when England's decision hung in the balance; and I am certain that I am enunciating the views of those who took part in the momentous decision of August, 1914, when I say that if that moment were to come again, if we could see all the rivers of blood and seas of treasure that must be poured out, we should take the same position, cost what it may—counting honor our most valued possession and throwing all we had into the contest.

"In Great Britain and in the whole British Empire there is that firm determination, that grim tenacity, which is characteristic of you in this country. The words used recently by your President, speaking for a united country, 'We can never turn back from the course chosen on principle; our strength must be put into the war for emancipation,' those are words we cherish, for they tell us that when you have once entered into the war there will be no hesitation, but endurance to the end until the principle of liberty has been vindicated and set up on high. We stand together, all the Allies, making all sacrifices cheerfully, providing only that liberty and democracy are made safe."

War for the Pledged Word.

The Archbishop of York declared that it was the most obvious and natural thing in the world for America and England to know each other, understand each other, and stand together for the good of humanity. "I am not an accredited representative like you other guests," he said. "I speak for the plain folk of my country, but I am the holder of an office older than the crown of a united England, and I think I may speak as representative of some of the elements in our life which have made England free, stable, and strong.

"What brought us into the war above all was one point which touched the quick of the national conscience—Belgium. I don't think we thought about interest or safety, but about the keeping of our pledged word; and to the challenge we responded with a readiness and unanimity which I shall never cease to remember. Your entry was very different. It was steady, slow, and deliberate.

"You came in not so much on instinct as on reasoned principle; and when very often, in past times, the attitude of America was misunderstood, I always defended your President, for I believed that through the great words he spoke he was educating his people, and that when the time had come he would bring into this mighty contest a determined, convinced, and united nation. And the manner and motive in which you entered the war gave us just what we needed at that time. There has come a strain upon our nerves which tells more than we like to say; and it gave us heart when we needed it to find you, who had no interest in the contest, so convinced of the rightness of our ideals that you would cross the seas to help us."

The most vigorous applause of the evening greeted the Archbishop's passing reference to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt as "that great citizen for whose recovery I am sure every citizen, regardless of party, is most earnestly hoping and praying."

Ambassador Jusserand said that the relations between France and England had always been intimate, but "for a thousand years that intimacy consisted in being almost constantly at war. But now we are beginning a period which shall follow the thousand years of war with a thousand years of peace."

PLEA AGAINST HASTY PEACE

Archbishop of York Says There Must Be No Compromise of Ideals.

A plea against a hasty and inconclusive peace was made by the Archbishop of York in his midday sermon at Trinity Church yesterday. Out of the present world chaos, he said, the war must bring the re-establishment of a great moral order, untainted by the principles which the enemy is determined to perpetuate and impose upon all the other nations in the world. If peace were made before this end was accomplished, the Archbishop declared, it would only mean that all the lives sacrificed to the cause of liberty and idealism will have been sacrificed in vain.

"If only peace were wanted," said the Archbishop, "it could be said at any time that the sacrifices have been more than enough toward the achievement of that end. But peace is not the goal, and must not be the goal, if peace means a compromise of any of those ideals upon which the nations have dared stake their national lives. And if they have dared that far, we must not even think of peace. We must not let any thought or any resolve upon peace weaken our determination to emerge from the war with a clean and enduring vindication of those ideals which alone can make peace a lasting blessing to humanity.

"If we dared stake all upon those ideals, it is possible, can it be possible at this time, that we should even think of bartering away the aims for which the Allies are battling? Oh, the fight is a hard one—one which saps nations of their lives and their strength, one which leaves peoples weary and exhausted, one which requires the exertion of every ounce of moral courage that we possess.

"A great moral struggle can be won only by a great moral power. This power cannot exist if it has the slightest taint of hypocrisy. The demand made on the people is that they consecrate themselves to moral loyalty. Out of this war the warring nations have learned the lesson of 'What shall it profit a nation if it win the whole world and lose its own soul?' The older rendering of this lesson makes a direct application to the man, and thus it is brought home to the individual conscience and conduct.

"The nations have been called upon to vindicate the security of the common good, to uphold the right of each man to serve God and his country without interference on the part of any other nation. There can be no backward step now—no faltering step now without inviting the most appalling disaster. This is the time to do away with the bitter party strife and divisions of political life that have cost so much in the past. The whole people, united firm in loyalty and morality, must hold together, work together, strive together to bring about a satisfactory end of this cruel war."

Archbishop Pleased with Troops.

CAMP UPTON, N. Y., March 5.—The Archbishop of York arose with the rest of the cantonment at 6 o'clock this morning so that he could review the 305th Infantry and inspect the camp before hurrying back to the city to keep his engagements.

"I am amazed," he said to General Johnson, "at the remarkable physique of the men, their notable intelligence, and the advanced stage of training they have reached in the short time they have been here."

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., March 5.—Cardinal Gibbons, who attended the funeral of Archbishop Prendergast in the Cathedral here today, is not apprehensive as to the Allies' victory over the Germans. He stopped for a few moments to discuss the war while in the archiepiscopal residence shortly before his departure for Baltimore.

"What message have you for Philadelphia?" he was asked.

"My message to the people of this good city is one of cheer. We will eventually have peace with victory. Things look pretty black at present, I admit. But the Lord is with us, and if the Lord is with us who can be against us?"
